LEO M. FRANK READY TO TELL HIS OWN STORY TO JURY

Sulzer Won't Vacate

LET COURT DECIDE, HE SAYS IN REPLY TO GLYNN DEMAND

First Formal Demand by Glynn Refused—Sulzer Regrets the Mention of Mrs. Sulzer in Case—Man's Fight, He Says

CHAIN AND PADLOCK DECORATE GREAT SEAL

Glynn Proclaims Himself Acting Governor, but Sulzer Still Occupies Executive Offices and Has Privy Seal

(By Associated Press.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Formal demand for the surrender of the executive chamber and offices, the privy seal and all books, papers, records and documents relating to the executive department was made upon Governor William Sulzer this afternoon by Lieutenant Governor Martin H. Glynn.

Governor Sulzer refused to comply with the demand.

Included in Governor Sulzer's refusal, according to his counsel, is a proposal that Glynn and Sulzer prepare an agreed statement of facts and submit them to the courts to determine who is governor of New York.

Mr. Glynn's letter reads as follows:

"In the performance of the duty which has devolved upon me by article 4, section 6, of the constitution, I officially demand that you deliver and surrender to me as acting governor, during the period of your constitutional disability to act as governor, the use, possession and occupancy of teh executive chamber and office; and that you likewise deliver and surrender to me the executive privy seal of the state of New York; and, also books, papers, records and documents in said chamber or offices or elsewhere, in your charge, possession or custody, relating to or in any wise connected with or pertaining to the executive department. The bearer hereof is authorized to receive your answer or communication.

"Respectfully,
"MARTIN H. GLYNN,
"Acting Governor."

SULZER'S REPLY.

Governor Sulzer's reply to Mr. Glynn was:

"Sir—Yours of August 15, demanding that I deliver and surrender to you as acting governor the use, possession and occupancy of the executive chamber and offices; and I likewise deliver and surrender to you the executive privy seal of the state of New York and also all books, papers, records and documents in said chamber or offices, or elsewhere in my charge, possession or custody, relating to or in any way connected with or pertaining to the executive department, received.

"In response thereto I decline to recognize you as acting governor of the state, and decline to deliver to you the use, possession and occupancy of the executive chamber and offices; or in any way comply with the demands or requests in your letter.

"I shall continue to exercise and discharge the constitutional duties of the governor of the state of New York, and, among other reasons, because I am advised that the assembly at its present extraordinary session possesses and possesses no power or authority to prefer articles of impeachment; and secondly, because the lieutenant governor of the state is not authorized to act as governor in case of the impeachment of the governor, unless such impeachment is sustained.

"For the purpose of preventing any unseemly struggle, I suggest that counsel for the lieutenant governor and for myself agree upon a method of submitting the question to the courts for decision; and for that purpose, that extraordinary sessions of the courts be

SENATOR PENROSE CALLS FOR ACTION TO AID U. S. CITIZENS

Republican, in Heated Speech, Demands That State Department Shall Act Immediately in Mexico

IMPUGNS CHARACTER OF PRESIDENT'S ADVISER

Will Wait Few Days on Lind's "Mysterious Mission" and Then Expose Entire Situation to Public

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 15.—Plain talk about the danger of war with Mexico and the failure of this government to protect Americans' lives and property south of the border again was heard in the senate chamber today.

It was made more clear than ever that there is a hair-trigger situation on in the senate with respect to Mexico. Any day an explosion is likely. Senators, flooded as they are with letters and messages telling of the indignities to which Americans are subjected in Mexico, are holding themselves with difficulty from demanding use of the force.

Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, stirred up the Mexican debate today. Before it was over, however, Senators Bacon, Lodge, Poindexter and others had got into it.

Senator Penrose laid before the senate the facts in the case of Shirley C. Hulse, of Pennsylvania, a son-in-law of Lieutenant Governor Reynolds, of that state. Mr. Hulse with his wife and little daughter are in danger of their lives from a Mexican banditti force under General Mercado at the mining camp of Ocquilla, 190 miles south of Chihuahua. They have appealed for help and Lieutenant Governor Reynolds has asked for their protection. The matter has been called to the attention of Secretary Bryan, who is seeking to aid them.

Senator Penrose declared it was "coming very near home," and added that in a few days he would address the senate on the Mexican situation and seek to find out why American citizens were not better protected.

ATTACKS ENVOY.

He added that he was perfectly willing to wait at few days and see whether the "mysterious mission," of Mr. Lind accomplished anything.

The Pennsylvania senators offered two resolutions. First they requested the president to inform the senate whether William Bayard Hale was employed as an agent of the government in Mexico and under what instructions. Senator Bacon demanded reference of this to the foreign relations committee. He declined to answer a question as to what Hale was doing.

"We're rapidly reaching a point where declining to answer will not satisfy the American people," said Senator Penrose.

Senator Penrose then criticised Hale as "strangely active" and declared he left Ardmore, a suburb of Philadelphia about thirteen years ago, under circumstances not necessary to describe. He charged Hale was "exploiting a well known publication concern."

"I consider him a most dangerous

NEW BASEBALL LEAGUE FORMED IN SOUTHERN

Outlaw Organization May Result in Cities Now Forming Southern Association

To furnish continuous baseball in six of the towns now comprising the Southern Association of Baseball clubs, southern capitalists are now busily engaged in organizing the Dixie Baseball league, it being the idea of the promoters to have the clubs of their league play in the Southern league cities while the same teams of the Southern are on road trips. The organization has yet to be perfected, but from one on the inside it is learned that all plans will be ready early next week and a charter applied for.

Plans for the formation of the league are being kept very close and very little is known of just who are back of the scheme and what towns will comprise the circuit. Baseball laws, however, make it practically sure that the league will be an outlaw organization, the rules of organized baseball prohibiting the formation of one league within a certain radius of towns which go to make

Third Degree Evidence Held Illegal by Court of Appeals

Georgia Court Reverses Decision Against Underwood Because Evidence Was Obtained by Third Degree Methods

A solar plexus knockout was given by the state court of appeals Friday morning to the "third degree" methods as practiced by the police and detectives in many Georgia cities.

In reversing the city court of Americus in the case of C. E. Underwood vs. the State, the court of appeals laid down this broad proposition:

"Courts should liberally construe the constitutional provision against compelling the accused to be a witness against himself, and refuse to permit any first or doubtful steps which may invade his rights in this respect."

Underwood was convicted of keeping intoxicating liquors on hand at his place of business. The lower court was reversed because the evidence resulting in Underwood's conviction was obtained by the police officers by arresting him on suspicion, compelling him to

TROLLEY CAR BURNS FROM GAS EXPLOSION

56-Gallon Gasoline Tank Blows Up Fairburn Line "Hoodoo Car"

As car No. 2, of the Atlanta-Fairburn Railway and Electric company, carrying fifty-eight gallons of gasoline, rolled into Stonewall station this morning it burst into flames, and two explosions created a spectacular blaze which rose to a height of seventy-five feet.

There were ten passengers including women and children on board, but the air-tight gasoline tanks delayed the explosion for a time and no one was hurt.

The car, which is the hoodoo of the line, left Atlanta at 9 o'clock Friday morning, and somewhere between the city and Stonewall, sixteen miles out,

TAKES WITNESS STAND SATURDAY MORNING; UNDER LAW CANNOT BE EXAMINED BY THE SOLICITOR

Defense's Case Is Rapidly Nearing Completion, and Indications Are That All Witnesses, Except Frank, Will Have Testified Before Court Adjourns Friday—Forty Atlantians Tell of Accused's Good Character

ATLANTA GIRL BROUGHT FROM REFORMATORY IN CINCINNATI TO TESTIFY AGAINST FRANK

Miss Dewey Hewell, Sixteen Years Old, Arrived Friday Morning With Matron Bohnefeld—Nature of Her Testimony Is Not Known—Expert in Varnish Department Says Spots in Factory Look Like Varnish

Forty Atlantians took the stand during Friday morning's session of the Frank trial and testified to the good character of the accused. In only one or two instances did the solicitor cross-question these character witnesses, and then only when the witness related something other than testimony concerning Frank's character.

The character witnesses testified in the following order: Dr. J. A. Sommerfield, F. G. Schiff, A. D. Greenfiled, Joseph Gershon, M. O. Nix Joseph Stelker, P. D. McCarley, Mrs. M. Y. Meyer, Mrs. David Marx, Mrs. Arthur I. Harris, A. L. Gluckman, M. S. Rice, Mrs. D. Glowsky, Mrs. J. A. Sommerfield, Mrs. L. H. Moss, Mrs. Joseph G Brown, E. E. Fitzpatrick, Emil Ditter, William Bauer, Miss Helen Loeb, J. C. Matthews, Al. Fox, Mrs. Adolf Montag, Mrs. Martin May, Julian Boehm, Mrs. Mollie Rosenberg, M. H. Silverman, Mrs. M. L. Sterne, Charles Adler, Mrs. R. A. Sohn, A. J. Jones, Mrs. Dan Klein, Nathan Coplan, Miss Rae Klein, F. F. Hulburn, Lester Einstein, M. J. Bernard, Jacob Fox, Marcus Loeb and Mrs. J. O Parmalee.

Leo M. Frank, the accused, will take the stand in his own defense Saturday morning and will relate the story which he told the coroner before his arrest. The law doesn't require the accused to be sworn, neither does it require him to submit to the cross-examination by the prosecution.

In fact, it is said to be the opinion of Frank's attorneys that the accused cannot legally be submitted to cross-examination. He will probably make his statement, therefore, and leave the witness stand without any questions being asked him.

Besides the character evidence given at Friday morning's session little of interest was brought out. Joseph Stelker, in charge of the polishing and varnishing department at the pencil factory stated his belief that the spots found on the second floor near the metal room were those of varnish. However on cross-examination he told Solicitor Dorsey that he would not swear that the spots were not blood.

New evidence is expected to be introduced in the Frank trial when Solicitor Dorsey begins rebuttal of the testimony that the accused superintendent of the pencil factory has a good character. It is known that Matron Bohnefeld of the police station, has just returned from Cincinnati with Miss Dewey Hewell, a young girl who was sent to the Home of the Good Shepherd about six weeks ago. It is known also that this young woman will testify for the state, but just what her testimony will be has not been learned.

CHARACTER WITNESSES.

Two character witnesses opened for the defense Friday morning. They were Dr. J. A. Sommerfield, of 200 Washington street, and F. G. Schiff, of 28 West Fair street. Both declared that they have known Frank for several years and that his character is very good.

B. J. Nix, aged nineteen, of Marietta, Ga., who was employed as an office boy of the National Pencil company between April, 1912, and October 24 of that year, was the next witness. From September 1 to October 24, the witness stated, he stayed at the factory on Saturday afternoons to 5:30 or 6 o'clock, and that Schiff and Frank were working there then. He seldom was out of the office, and he never saw any women there, he testified.

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined Nix.

"You say that you were there every Saturday afternoon?"

"Not in the summer months."

"Were you there when Forsyth street was torn up?"

"Yes, I was working there."

"How late did you stay on Saturdays at that time?"

"I got out every other Saturday at 1 o'clock, and on the other Saturdays I stayed until from 4 to 5 o'clock."

"You don't undertake to say, then, that Frank or Schiff didn't take women down Forsyth street through the back alley and into the building, do you?"

"No, sir, not when I wasn't there."

"You don't undertake to say that they didn't have women in the basement when you were there, do you?"

"No, sir."

BUILDING OWNER CALLED.

The witness was excused. A. D. Greenfield was called as the next witness. He testified that he is one of the owners of the building occupied by the pencil factory. He said that he and his associates had leased the property to Montag Brothers in 1900.

"Are you familiar with the metal room on the second floor?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"No, sir."

"Do you know where the Clark Woodenware company was located in the building?"

The witness answered yes, and pointed out on the diagram of the factory the parts of the building that had oeen occupied by that company.

"Since Montag Brothers occupied the pencil factory, has there been any new flooring put on the second floor?"

"I couldn't say as to that. Montag Brothers were to make all necessary repairs."

The witness testified then as to Frank's character, stating that he had known Frank for four or five years and that his general character is good.

Attorney Hooper cross-examined the witness. Mr. Greenfield admitted that his association with Mr. Frank was principally that of landlord. He had seen him a number of times at the pencil factory but had not been personally intimate with him.

"Did you contribute to the fund for the defense?"

"Not a penny."

Before letting the witness leave the stand, Attorney Arnold asked: "Is there a fund for the defense?"

"I never heard of any."

"Neither did I," remarked Attorney Arnold, in an aside audible throughout the court. "I wish I had." The deputies rapped for order.

The next witness called was Joseph Gershon, of 390 Washington street. He was raised in Atlanta and is in the wholesale woodenware business. He testified that he has known Frank about four years and that his character is ex-

Mothers Bill Is Now Law Of Georgia

Mrs. George Brown Takes Measure to Governor and Secures His Signature

The bill giving the mothers of Georgia an equal standing in court with fathers in the awarding of custody of minor children was signed by Governor Slaton Friday morning, and is now a statute of the state.

This law was passed very largely through the indomitable zeal and perseverance of a pretty and persuasive little woman. Mrs. George Brown, wife of Dr. George Brown, the well-known Atlanta specialist, who was himself a member of the general assembly for four years, deserves especial credit for the success of the measure which means so much to the mothers of the state.

Although the bill was introduced late in the session of the general assembly and its chances of passage appeared very doubtful, Mrs. Brown interested herself in it and through her personal acquaintance with the members of the house and senate, coupled with her unselfishness and her logical arguments in its behalf, the measure made record time in passing both houses.

Mrs. Brown haunted the corridors of the house and senate, never overlooking an occasion to put in a word for the bill, until she saw it receive overwhelming majorities in both houses. It went through the senate Thursday afternoon. Friday morning Mrs. Brown visited the capitol and prevailed upon the presiding officers and secretaries of the house and senate to sign the mothers' bill ahead of other measures. She then took it in person to Governor Slaton and stood beside his desk while he affixed his signature to it.

MEMBERS OF LEO M. FRANK'S CLASS AT CORNELL

When Herbert Lasher, former roommate of Leo M. Frank, came to Atlanta to testify to the previous good character of the man accused of murdering Mary Phagan, he brought with him several photographs of the class of '06, of which both he and Frank were members. The two men, and the half-dozen other professors and former fellow-students who made the journey south simply to testify, spent an hour at the court house Thursday noon gazing at the pictures taken in happier days.

The members of the class are scattered over the earth now. One is in Panama, one in China, another spent two years making geological investigation in Alaska. All who were within reach came to Atlanta in their former classmate's hour of need. In the accompanying picture Herbert Lasher, who has already told of his friend's character, is in the front row on the extreme left. Frank is the third from the left in the same row. This picture was taken some eight or nine years ago.

SPLIT BETWEEN UNIONS MAY BE HEALED SOON

Visit of Typos' President and Pressmen's President Promises Reconciliation

(By Associated Press.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 15.—While both President James M. Lynch, of the International Typographical union, and President George L. Berry, of the Pressmen's union, have spoken in interviews favorable to a meeting of representatives of both to bring about closer relations between the two unions, no formal action looking to such a conference has yet been taken, and from statements made today the date may not be fixed at the present meeting of the printers.

President Berry's visit to Nashville yesterday was pronounced by leaders of the Typographical union to have materially narrowed the breach between the two organizations.

The Typographical union this morning devoted its attention to consideration of the so-called "Pittsburg case," on appeal from the action of the executive council in a matter of organization work.

To avoid a night session the convention is working through the luncheon hour, the hungry delegates refreshing themselves with sandwiches.

GOVERNOR WIELDS PICK AND SHOVEL ON ROADBED

Alabama Executive Does Manual Labor to Increase Interest in Roadbuilding

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 15.—Governor O'Neal and state officials set the example for the masses in Alabama yesterday by an actual demonstration of manual labor in the interest of highway improvement. The executive, accompanied by state attaches, wielded the pick and shovel on a small section of road leading into the capitol grounds.

After preparing the soil they spread on a wagon load of gravel that was hauled to the spot at the request of the governor. A photograph of the road builders was snapped by State Highway Engineer W. S. Keller.

Annual good roads days in Alabama began yesterday and will continue until tomorrow night. Reports from the various counties indicate that much is being accomplished, and it is estimated that the movement will result in more than a million dollars' worth of highway improvements.

CROPS OF TEXAS ARE IN NEED OF SHOWERS

(By Associated Press.)

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 15.—Crops have not been seriously injured by dry weather, but rain within the next week is necessary in most sections of the state to prevent crop losses, according to reports from every section of Texas. The weather has played a trick this year by an unusual amount of local rains which has given one farmer an abundance of rain and his neighbor, a few miles away, scarcely a drop.

Many localities in north and northeast Texas and along the Oklahoma border will lose heavily in cotton unless rains come soon.

The Texas corn crop seems to have been largely made before the present dry weather.

Wealthy Families Sleep Under Stars For Coolness' Sake

(By Associated Press.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 15.—Unique schemes have been adopted by many residents of Kansas City to obtain sleep during the hot nights which have prevailed for more than two weeks.

Scores of wealthy families start for the country in their motor cars at night. When they come to an elevated spot, where the prospect o fa breeze seems good, they get out, pitch their beds in the open and sleep there until driven back home by the sun's hot rays.

Bert Goins, swimming Instructor of the Kansas City Yacht club, said today that he slept with a damp blanket over him. "It dries with the heat and don't take cold, but I would not advise any one else to adopt my plan," he said.

Many persons sleep in motor boats on the Missouri river, where the air is cool after dark.

JOHNSTON'S SUCCESSOR PRESENTS CREDENTIALS

Governor O'Neal's Appointee Reaches Washington Friday Afternoon

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Representative Clayton, appointed by Governor O'Neal of Alabama as the successor of the late Senator Johnston, will present his credentials to the senate tomorrow.

The representative telegraphed today that he would not reach Washington until late this afternoon. Meantime senate leaders are understood to be insistent that Governor O'Neal call a special session of the legislature to specifically authorize the governor to exercise the power of appointment of a senator.

Representative Underwood, house Democratic leader, is still considering becoming a candidate in the 1914 Alabama elections for the regular six-year term in the senate.

JAIL IS STORMED AND NEGRO PRISONER KILLED

Calhoun County Black, Charged With Murder, Slain on Eve of Trial

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ARLINGTON, Ga., Aug. 15.—About 100 men stormed the Calhoun county jail at Morgan last night and shot Robert Lovett, a negro charged with murder. It is said that the party was composed almost wholly of men from Randolph county, very few citizens of Calhoun participating in it.

Robert Lovett was the negro who killed two white men, Ben Swords and a man named Wilson, in the upper part of the county several months ago, and was taken first to Albany and later to Macon for safekeeping. He was brought to Morgan Wednesday for trial and a number of men gathered about the jail Wednesday night and made a slight demonstration, but were easily dispersed.

Judge Park placed fifteen guards about the jail last night, fearing a repitition of Wednesday night's demonstration, but this small force was easily overpowered. About thirty-five members of the attacking party entered the jail and shot the prisoner to death in his cell. A jury had been impanelled to try Lovett today.

The affair is greatly deplored by the citizens of Calhoun county, who say that few from this county took part in the affair. The deputy sheriff, W. L. Calhoun, is said to have made a brave, but futile resistance and was badly beaten up before he was finally overpowered and entrance to the jail gained.

THREE WESTERN STATES PARCHED AND RAINLESS

Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas Suffer From Twelfth Day of Burning Drouth

(By Associated Press.)

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 15.—How to get water for man and beast and how to save a little out of wrecked crops of corn and other late summer products presented Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma an increasingly serious problem today.

It was the twelfth day of intense heat. Scattered showers last night were ineffectual and while so much as half an inch of water fell yesterday at Topeka it was in restricted limits.

Cisterns are dry all over the country. Springs that never before were known to fail ceased to flow. In many sections a good deal as well is a gold mine. Long trains of tank cars supply several Oklahoma and western Kansas towns with all the water they get.

A train of 30 cars of water was shipped from Pittsburgh, Kas., today, to the mines of a coal company in the Pittsburgh district to be used by the hundreds of miners and their families and for operating the company's engines.

The expense of shipping water, however, is so great that several smaller mines have shut down.

In a section of Sweard county, Kansas, where no rain has fallen in two months, the few wells that still give water are surrounded by campers, families that have closed houses and gone to tent near a water source.

By noon in most sections of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma the mercury was well on the way to the 100 mark. In Topeka, last night was the eleventh day hand running during which the thermometer had not gone below 75. Last night's minimum there was 77.

Wichita and sorrunding country has had an abatement of heat during the last two days, the thermometer not passing 98 degrees. But the coutnry is parched. The people of the city and orchardists thereabouts are working hard to save fruit and shade trees by digging holes near the roots and carrying water to them as regularly as they would to horses.

DIVORCED WIFE TAKES BOTTLE OF CARBOLIC ACID

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

I heard a young mother talking to her little son about his teeth—telling him how important it is that the teeth be kept clean.

"If you want to be a big, strong boy," she said, "and then a big, strong man, you must have good teeth. And to keep your teeth sound you must remember now, while you are a little boy, to brush them twice every day."

The young mother told me that the youngster liked the taste of Ribbon Dental Cream and that this had helped her in inducing him to form the important daily habit. Of course, she talked with him about it now and then to impress on him the great advantage to his health and comfort that comes with this daily care. "Then twice a year," she added, "I have the dentist look him over."

Blease Wants no Favors of Wilson And Tells Him So

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 15.—Cole Blease, the South Carolina governor, has passed Woodrow Wilson up. He announced it today in letter to Thomas J. Pence, of the Democratic congressional campaign headquarters, who sent out a circular letter to the various Democratic governors asking them to help out. Most of them replied perfunctorily that they would.

Here is what Cole L. Blease wrote: "Dear Sir: Your letter of August 4 has been received. In reply I beg to state that the present administration at Washington has been very painstaking and careful in absolutely ignoring the present governor of South Carolina.

"No recommendation he has made has been given any consideration. He is proud, however, to state that he has asked no favors, either for himself or his friends.

"Some of his very bitterest enemies have been appointed to important positions and it has been publicly talked here that they were appointed for the purpose of discrediting Blease and trying to aid in his defeat for the United States senate. Therefore, I must say that I am surprised at the receipt of your letter, and particularly the last clause of your letter, in speaking of the election of United States senators.

"However, I can assure you that, whatever may be the purpose of your committee and of the administration in regard to taking part in these fights, I will be the next senator from South Carolina unless God Almighty intervenes by destroying my health or my life, which I am earnestly praying to Him every day to strengthen instead of making weaker. Very respectfully."

Blood Poison or "606"

I have been giving the "606" and 914 for the treatment of Specific Blood Poison for the past two years and have given something near eight hundred treatments. I have proven, in connection with other leading Specialists, that "606" is THE remedy for Specific Blood Poison. Numbers and numbers of patients have been permanently cured by this wonderful remedy and the blood tests has shown that these cures are permanent and I have numbers of other patients on the road to recovery through the use of this treatment. I was the first physician in Atlanta to begin advertising and using the "606" treatment. I use the intravenous method and consider it the best. There is no need now for a patient to go through long weeks and months of waiting when results can be obtained immediately by the use of this scientific treatment. If you need treatment don't hesitate to come in and talk the matter over with me or if you can't call, write for my booklet, "The True Story of Salvarsan," or "606."

JOLLIFICATION MARKS END OF 1913 SESSION

General Assembly Makes Merry During Last Hours Before Adjournment

The 1913 session of the general assembly of Georgia with the usual hilarity, song and pranks, in which every member played a part, adjourned sine die Thursday night at 10:12 o'clock.

The lower assembly had finished its business by 4 o'clock and there was no need for a night session save to await the upper branch which was struggling with house bills and the general appropriation measure. Freedom from legislative duties was the signal for the jollification to begin. Staid saloons threw aside their dignified air and joined in with one accord to make the last hours memorable ones.

The real fund did not commence until the night session began at 8 o'clock. While the senate worked and approved the bills sent to it the lower assembly took up its fun-making where it had left off a few hours previous. Official "song plugger" James, of Gilmer, gathered his chorus about him, and the midsummer festival was soon at its height. Hymns, coon songs and popular airs were the order. "Ole Crawf" Wheatley, as the house had dubbed him; Bob Blackburn and Representative Green, of Houston, better known to the members as "Mr. Pickwick," were his able helpers. This chorus gathered about the speaker's stand and as it sang was made the target for paper darts, improvised aeroplanes, state literature lying loose on the desks, useless house bills and other projectiles.

MORE NOISE WANTED.

In another part of the hall Representative Henderson, of Jones, stood on a desk and delivered an oration. Around him were gathered a score or more of legislators lustily yelling "louder." If the speaker had spoken louder, no roof would have been left on the capitol dome.

Some one rushed to the speaker's chair and began to pound for order with the gavel, but this only served to increase the turmoil of song and speechmaking. A quartet organized at the main entrance vied with the main chorus for honors of the evening.

The gallery was filled with men, women and children who had never before seen such a carnival of lawmakers. It was more amusing still to the new members who this season have had their first experience in the art of law-making. Many of them joined in the singing, but the more timid sat back in their seats and looked on.

"Do we act this way every year?" asked Frank Lipscomb, of Clarke, as a huge ball of paper sizzed past his head. The answer was a roar of laughter from those about him and forthwith he was made the target of missiles of every description.

SENATE MESSAGE.

A message from the senate brought order for the closing minutes of the session. While the house awaited the senate resolution to adjourn sine die, Speaker W. H. Burwell delivered a short farewell address to the members, again thanking them for the honor they had conferred upon him in making him their presiding officer.

When the applause subsided, Representative Berry, of Whitfield, arose and moved a rising vote of thanks to their speaker and of confidence in his ability. Clerk John T. Bolfeuillet and his assistants were likewise tendered a rising vote. Mr. Bolfeuillet responded in a happy vein and was cheered.

As he concluded his remarks a message from the senate announced that body was ready to adjourn sine die. And then the session came to an end, both house and senate joining in singing "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

SENATE WAS WORKING.

While the house was steeped in mirth and song, the senators spent the last night's session in work.

Special appropriations were passed, two bills of general interest, and one or two local measures.

Not until 10 o'clock did the senate actually finish its labor of legislating and pause for a moment or so to "draw a chord" on "Old Black Joe," and other songs of the plantation and the camp-meeting.

By 6:30 o'clock in the afternoon the senate had finished the general appropriations bill and concurred in the action of the house in putting back the sum of $280,000, which was cut when the senate first handled the bill.

It adjourned to meet again at 8 o'clock, when such general measures as the special appropriations for the department of agriculture and entomology, the "blue sky" insurance law, the "roosster" bill which allows freight trains to run on Sunday providing they carry perishable freight and the bill for permanent registration of voters were all passed.

There was some discussion on all of these bills and the time passed wearily until the clerk of the house announced that there were no more bills on his desk. Then the resolutions started pouring in.

The first was a resolution thanking Secretary Charlie Northen, Clerk Stevens and Messenger Flynn Hargett together with their assistants for their faithful work during the session.

Then was adopted a resolution thanking Senator Huie for his devoted attention to the steam roller of the senate and giving him permission to store it in his barn for the rest of the session.

Senator Richardson on behalf of the pages presented Messenger Flynn Hargett with a pair of gold cuff buttons, and Senator Allen, replying for Mr. Hargett, threw several bouquets at that gentleman's head.

Then it was all over. President Anderson tapped the block with his gavel and delivered a few farewell remarks.

With this, the president pounded for the last time this year on the old block, and the senators shouted and yelled themselves hoarse. Somebody struck up, "Auld Lang Syne," Pilot Anderson with more real feeling than fun-making the solons shook each other by the hand and told one another goodby until next June.

Senator Kea's Attack on President Anderson Resented

An interview attributed to Senator Fred Kea, of the Sixteenth district, in which he attacked President Randolph Anderson, of the senate, and the rules committee of that body, caused Senator McNell to address the senate Thursday afternoon in protest and to denounce the interview as a scurrilous attack.

Senator McNeil vigorously defended President Anderson for the fair and impartial way in which he had presided over the present session of the senate. He denounced the remarks attributed to Senator Kea as unworthy, and moved that the senate by a rising vote express its confidence and appreciation of President Anderson for the fairness, courtesy and ability with which he had administered the office of president.

When Senator McNeil had concluded, Senator Kea arose and bitterly attacked both President Anderson and the rules committee. He charged that his bills had been killed by Mr. Anderson in the committee and declared that no man, be he president of the senate, or president of the United States, had any such authority.

When Senator Kea had finished his attack, the senate by a rising vote adopted two resolutions, one expressing the confidence of the members in President Anderson and the other, thanking him for his splendid work and uniform fairness as presiding officer. When President Anderson resumed the chair, which he had turned over to Senator DuBose during the attack upon him, he was greeted with a round of applause from the members. Every senator present except Senator Kea voted for the resolutions, endorsing Mr. Anderson.

President Anderson in a brief speech said he would put the senator's attack down to "youth, ignorance and inexperience," and make no further comment.

Wife Shot at Hubby Because He Spilled His Coffee on Table

Mrs. L. P. Gray, of 12 Hull street, is a fastidious woman, according to her husband, who says she fired three shots at him after she had struck him, all it is said, because he spilled coffee on the table cloth.

Mrs. Gray is 23 years old. The quarrel began at the dinner table Friday and Gray, according to the police, ran into his room to escape another blow from his wife, and she, who had hidden his revolver, fired three shots through the door. None, however, hit the husband.

When the police arrived, she insisted on the husband's arrest, but the police gave her a copy of charges instead. They would have brought her to headquarters, except that she has a baby only six weeks old. Her hearing is set for the 22d.

HART'S APPOINTMENT CONFIRMED BY SENATE

Little Negroes Rout Dog-Catchers After Puppies of Darktown

There have been retreats in history, many of which have been immortalized in song and story; but unhonored and unsung was the rout of the dog wagon in Darktown Friday morning, though it provided a spectacle worthy of attention —from the modern bards of humorous song.

The retreat was accomplished, not to the sound of martial music, but to the notes of laughter. The antagonistic horde was in rags and its missiles were of stone and brick; but before the conquering onslaught the dog catchers turned and ran.

The ystarted out bravely enough, the three of them; and as the wagon rolled into Darktown, the cobble stones answered merrily to the wheels. But when the invaders started to take up the dogs they found a belligerent army of about 200 little pickaninnies ready to defend their beloved "dawgs" with their lives. The leader sent out his call, and the army of urchins materialized rapidly. Pockets, shirts and hands were full of stones; and when they saw the dog catchers meant to really take their dogs, they let loose their ammunition.

TOO MUCH FOR THEM.

The determined defense was too much for the dog catchers. They climbed back into the wagon and started out of Darktown quicker than they entered.

The asphyxiation of impounded dogs will begin this afternoon, and when the dogs are dead the bodies will be burned.

About fifty-six are in the pound, and although many people have called one the city chemist refuses him to save the canine lives, the law demands that they be put to death.

Only a few will be killed each day, as the furnace at the crematory can not take care of the whole number impounded.

ONE DOG SAFE.

There is one dog, however, that will not be asphyxiated. He made a dash for freedom Thursday afternoon, incidentally nipping City Clerk Taylor by the trousers as he made for liberty.

The clerk went down to No. 13 Rhodes street to see if the dogs had water. As there were so many, he couldn't see through the bars, and he entered the room where the dogs are. As he opened the door a big white dog started out, and as the clerk interfered the dog grabbed him by the trousers. The clerk made room, and the dog went loping down the street with dog catchers in full pursuit.

The dog, however, "had a hunch" that the neighborhood was an unhealthy one for canines, and when last seen he was making good time in the direction of the open country.

But the pickaninnies of Darktown meant to finish what they started, and they followed right after the wagon. The driver whipped up his steed, and the two assistants gathered up their long steel-tipped sticks and settled in the back of the wagon. They batted vigorously at every little woolly head that came near, but as the wagon rolled up Harris street the black-faced army was shouting joyfully, "We've got 'um runnin' now; let's keep 'um goin'!"

MOTHER AND TWINS ARE HURT FATALLY BY TRAIN

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Mrs. Stephen Drakowski and her twin babies, which she was wheeling in a go-cart, were fatally injured late yesterday when struck by the Monon Flyer at a south side crossing. The infants were thrown about twenty-five feet on opposite sides of the track.

EDWARDS OFFERS BILL FOR MILITARY HIGHWAY

Georgia Congressman Wants Roadway From Savannah to Tybee

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Congressman Edwards today reintroduced his bill asking for the construction of a military highway from Savannah to Tybee and an appropriation of $300,000, which is sufficient to construct the roadway.

This is a pet measure with Mr. Edwards and he has worked hard for its passage. Heretofore, however, conditions have been decidedly against him. He seems to be more hopeful now, as his friend, Congressman William Schley Howard, is a member of the military affairs committee. He and Mr. Edwards are close personal friends, and it is known that Mr. Howard is heartily in favor of the project.

CAN'T KEEP AWAKE IF SHE'S LYING DOWN

New Jersey Young Woman Has Peculiar Malady That Mystifies Doctors

(By Associated Press.)

WEEHAWKEN, N. J., Aug. 15.—Miss Alice Geiser, of Weehawken, is a victim of a peculiar malady which physicians say is without parallel in medical annals. She cannot keep awake unless she stands up. If she sits or lie down she soon becomes unconscious.

The affliction differs from the sleeping sickness of Africa, in that Miss Geiser has been troubled with her unusual somnolence for two years, while the course of the African disease is about two weeks.

Although she has been under constant medical treatment for two years, no headway has been made toward a cure. Miss Geiser in all other respects is a normal, healthy young woman.

ARMY ORDERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Army orders: Captain Richard M. Thomas, Eleventh cavalry, is detailed to enter next class at mounted service school, Fort Riley, Kan.

First Lieutenant Paul H. Clark, Twenty-third infantry, will proceed to Fort Benjamin Harrison, for temporary duty, thence to Fort Leavenworth.

First Lieutenant William R. Pope, cavalry, will proceed to the Walter Reed general hospital, District of Columbia, for treatment.

Captain Harry F. Dalton, quartermaster corps, will repair to this city and report to Major James E. Normoyle, quartermaster corps, for temporary duty.

Colonel Wilds P. May, infantry, unassigned, now at San Francisco, will proceed to Fort Snelling, Minn., for temporary duty.

Leaves of absence: Captain Edward Hill, Sixth field artillery, three months; Second Lieutenant Maurice D'Welty, Fifth infantry, two months; Major Francis C. Marshall, Second cavalry, ten days; First Lieutenant John F. Franklin, Seventh infantry, extended one month.

'Uncle Ben,' Blind 69 Years, Attends Trial And Neglects Fife

"Uncle Ben" Jones, the white-haired old blind man who plays the fife up and down the streets of Atlanta on Saturdays and holidays, is attending the Frank trial.

He sits just outside of the railing back of the Frank party, his head bent forward and his hand to his ear to catch every word of the proceedings.

The deputies let him in without question, escort him to his seat, and see that he is comfortable and undisturbed.

During the ulnch hour he often stays, sitting alone in the court room, when every one else has gone.

"I have been blind since I was four years old," said "Uncle Ben" to a reporter, "and I wouldn't give 2 cents to see again, except to look at Frank. I'm seventy-three years old. What do I think of Frank? I believe he's an innocent man, and I expect to see him come out all right in the end."

FIRE CHIEF CUMMINGS HAS BIG NEW "RED DEVIL"

Chief W. B. Cummings, of the fire department, has a new Red Devil; and it's a beauty, too. He's had it about a month. It is a six-cylinder Cole car with a capacity of 40-horsepower.

It will seat five men, and when it starts for a fire, it doesn't take it long to get where it's going.

The machine is a $2,600 car, but the city secured it for $1,600, the concession being made by the company probably in view of the fact that the possession of the car by the fire chief is a good advertisement.

The chief's old car has been repainted and put in fine shape and has been turned over to the assistant chief.

Bryan's 'Dove of Peace' Is Ancient War Eagle

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Although now masquerading as Secretary Bryan's "dove of peace" seal, which is being attached to peace treaties with other nations, it developed today that the design, copied from an ancient coin, really represents the war eagle and not a cooing dove. In addition, the design includes the figure of the war god, Zeus, who is seated on a throne with a scepter, or "big stick" in his powerful clasp. Secretary Bryan had added the seal to emblematic of his desire for world amity.

The revelation was made in a letter to the secretary from Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice, British ambassador to this country, who made inquiries of the British museum. There it was found that the coin, which Secretary Bryan picked up in Palestine while on a trip around the world, was of the time of Alexander, the Great. On the other side from that bearing the bird is a head of Hercules, famous Greek hero of mighty deeds. In addition to the official seal of state, it has been customary for secretaries of state, when signing treaties, to use also a personal seal. When appointed Secretary Bryan had a seal made from the coin.

City Election

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 15.—The registration books for the city bond election which will be held September 15, closed this afternoon. The election will be held for the purpose of deciding whether Savannah shall issue $200,000 in bonds to erect a new auditorium. There are only a few more than 1,600 registered, which is considered a small registration in Savannah.

CANDIDATE HENDERSON HOTLY SCORES COMER

Says He Has Egotism of Roosevelt and Ambition of a Caesar

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 15.—Charles Henderson, candidate for governor, made a bitter attack on former Governor B. B. Comer, also a gubernatorial aspirant, in the opening speech of his campaign yesterday at Troy. He compared Mr. Comer to Huerta, and charged him with "hypocrisy and inordinate ambition." This was the first public declaration of Mr. Henderson since Mr. Comer's former Attalla speech charging Mr. Henderson with being a railroad candidate.

"The leopard has not changed his spots," said Mr. Henderson referring to the former executive. "He is the man who forsook the platform upon which he was elected, ran from the issues upon which he made his campaign, when, as he thought, it appeared weakened, and sought notoriety by seizing the leadership of an issue foreign to his life's teachings, that he might perpetuate his reign in Alabama."

"No one who dares to obstruct his course is safe from his vitriolic slander," said Mr. Henderson, who further maintained that Mr. Comer uses "the dirk of an assassin on former friends and supporters."

"There is glory enough for us all," Mr. Henderson declared, referring to the creation of the railroad commission, "and no man without an egotism equal to that of Theodore Roosevelt or a selfishness and ambition as great as that of Julius Caesar, can claim to be the sole and only cause of the victory won at the polls."

Mr. Henderson took up in detail the various planks of his platform and in conclusion said "I shall go into your service untrammelled and unbought, unpledged to any private conclave or any secret clique, and undominated by any corporate interests, with no man's collar, and during this campaign shall bear myself as becomes a son of Alabama."

Abercrombie Candidate For Alabama Senatorship

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—J. W. Abercrombie, of Tuscaloosa, congressman-at-large from Alabama, will be a candidate for the United States senate in the event the Alabama legislature redistricts the state, thereby abolishing his job. It is stated that Congressman Oscar W. Underwood, the Democratic leader and joint author of the tariff bill has determined to run for the senate in the next general election. Nothing will induce him, however, to enter the scramble for the unexpired term of Senator Johnston.

IVY STREET WILL BE OPENED BY SEPTEMBER 15

Ivy street will be open for traffic in about a month's time, said Superintendent of Construction Clayton Friday morning. The car grade has been completed, and the county is now at work paving the street.

The reopening of the street will tend to relieve the congestion on Peachtree street, and will give another good central thoroughfare to the city. The heaviest grade on the new Ivy street is only about 3 per cent.

M. O. O. Nix was the next witness. He is credit man at Montag Brothers. On direct examination, he testified that he has charge of the books of Montag Brothers and also of the National Pencil company and that he is to some extent familiar with Leo M. Frank's handwriting, having seen it occasionally during five years. He said also that he is fairly well acquainted with the defendant. He examined finance sheets of the pencil company from May 2, 1912, to April 10, 1913, and testified that in his opinion they were written by Frank. He examined the eleven requisitions of April 26 and testified that in his opinion they were written by Frank. In response to questions he testified that it was he who employed Miss Hattie Hall, the stenographer at Montag Brothers, and that neither Mr. Montag nor Mr. Frank had anything to do with her employment.

He testified that her wages were raised on August 1 by him and not by Mr. Montag nor at Mr. Montag's direction. He testified that Frank, so far as he knew, had no knowledge of the fact that Miss Hall's salary was raised on that date. He said the raise was in fulfillment of a promise made by him when he employed her last December.

He testified that about 10 o'clock on the morning of April 26 Frank came to Montag Brothers and asked him if he could borrow Miss Hall for a while that morning as his own stenographer had not come to work. He said he told Mr. Frank that Miss Hall better had finish with Mr. Montag's mail first. He said he told Miss Hall that she needn't go to the pencil factory in the afternoon unless she wanted to, as that was her holiday, and that it was only an accommodation for her to go over there at all.

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined Mr. Nix. After submitting to him several handwriting samples which the witness did not identify definitely, he finally introduced the copy of the murder notes made by Frank for the police. The witness would not identify this note. He said he did not know whether it was Frank's writing or not.

FRANK DISGUISED HAND.

"If it is Frank's, it's disguised, isn't it?" asked the solicitor. The witness would not say that it was disguised, but admitted that it was somewhat different from the writings which previously had been exhibited to him by counsel for the defense.

Solicitor Dorsey, during the cross-examination of the witness, brought out the fact that the witness has been employed by Montag Brothers for seven or eight years and is a brother of the office boy who had testified just previously.

Mr. Arnold took the witness on redirect examination. Nix said that he was familiar with Frank's handwriting largely through abbreviations and figures such as appeared on orders and pay roll slips, and that he was not familiar with letters written in Frank's handwriting. He examined what he did not want to give any opinion as to the writer of the note submitted to him by Mr. Dorsey because he could not be positive.

Joseph Stelker was called as the next witness. He has charge of the polishing and varnishing department on the fourth floor of the National Pencil factory. He superintends the mixing of the colors and the varnish used on the pencils.

"Where were you Saturday April 26?"

"At home."

"Did you see Frank at the factory on Monday?"

"Yes."

"Did you see the blood spots this man Barrett claims to have discovered?"

"Yes."

SPLASHED FROM BUCKET.

"Did you make a test to determine whether it was blood or not?"

"Yes. Chief Beavers asked me to find out whether it was blood or varnish."

"Did you see the white stuff that was over it?"

"Yes, it looked like a composition used on the eyelet machine."

In answer to other questions, the witness testified that the white stuff looked like it had been splashed from a bucket.

"Has the floor of the pencil factory ever been scrubbed since you have been there?"

"Not that I know of."

The witness then testified that the floor is dirty and oily. He said that it is swept at frequent intervals. He said the white spot looked like it might have been there for some days.

"Did you bring those plans from the floor over here with you?"

"No, sir."

"Where did you think the white stuff on the floor had come from?"

"The eyelet machine."

"What time was it when you looked at it for Chief Beavers?"

"About 9 o'clock."

"How did it compare with blood?"

"Well, when a transparent varnish we use, soaks in, it looks like blood."

"Would you undertake to say whether it was varnish or blood?"

"I would not."

"Anybody could have shaken a bottle in the paint room and the varnish would have flown out there, wouldn't it?"

"Yes."

VARNISH OR BLOOD.

The witness testified that frequently he saw drops which looked like this, all over the floor. He said that a drop of this transparent varnish that he put on the floor looked almost exactly like this blood.

"Did you see this negro Conley on Monday?"

"Yes."

"Did you talk to him?"

"No."

"What did this varnish that you put on the floor do?"

"Soaked in."

The witness then testified that the alleged blood spot looked like it might have been on the floor three or four days.

"Did you ever see this white stuff, kascoline, spread on the floor like that before?"

"Yes, sir."

The witness testified that kascoline is used on the eyelet machine, and that it percolates from a cup on top of the machine to a bucket beneath. He said that when this bucket is full, it is picked up and emptied back into the cup at the top of the machine. Some of it might be spilled on the floor, he said, when anybody was putting it back.

AT UNDERTAKER'S.

"Were you at Bloomfield's undertaking establishment when Frank was there Sunday afternoon?"

"Yes."

"Did Frank say anything to you—"

The solicitor objected. Attorney Arnold said that the question was admissible inasmuch as the defense wanted to shew that Frank thought the inquest was to be held Sunday afternoon and went to the undertaker's to attend it. He said too that the defense wanted to shew that Frank looked on the body. Judge Roan sustained the solicitor's objection.

The witness testified that Quinn, Frank, Darley, Schiff and others called at the undertaking establishment at about the same time.

"Do you know whether or not Frank saw the body of this girl?"

"No, sir."

"How long have you known Frank?"

"Five years."

The witness continued that Frank's general character is good.

"Do you know Jim Conley?"

"Yes."

"How long have you known him?"

CONLEY'S CHARACTER.

"Ever since he's worked in the pencil factory, nearly two years, I think."

"Do you know his character?"

"Yes."

"Is it good or bad?"

"Bad."

"Would you believe him on oath?"

"No, sir."

That concluded the direct examination.

Stelker was given a severe grilling by Solicitor Dorsey on cross-examination. He testified that his wages are $20 a week; that he has been getting that for about a year and a half; that he is not a member of the society of which Frank is president; that he is no kin to Frank; and that he has been in Atlanta about five years.

"Whom did you ever discuss Jim Conley's character with?"

"No one."

"Then when you told the jury you wouldn't believe him on oath that was just your personal opinion, wasn't it?"

"Yes, I reckon so."

"You never heard anyone discuss Jim, did you?"

"No."

EVIDENCE RULED OUT.

Solicitor Dorsey then moved that the witness' testimony impeaching Jim Conley be ruled out, in as much as the term "general character" implies not only the witness' knowledge but the general reputation of the person about whose character he is testifying. Lawyers for the defense objected strenuously, but Judge Roan upheld the solicitor's motion.

"Did you ever hear anyone say anything against Jim?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"In the last three or four weeks?"

"Did you ever hear anyone say a word against him before Frank was indicted?"

"Well, they were speaking of him being in the chaingang and I saw him there myself."

"Don't you know that Frank took him back after he had been in the chaingang, as you call it?"

"Yes. But don't you know, Mr. Dorsey, that a negro is a better negro after he has been to the chaingang than he was before?"

The deputies rapped for order.

"Then you considered him a better negro after he had been to the stockad than he was before, did you?"

"Yes, for a few weeks."

"Now coming back to the question. Did you ever hear anybody say anything against Conley before Frank was indicted?"

"What did he do to you?"

PUT WATER IN BEER.

"I sent him for 25 cents worth of beer, and he brought it back and said, 'Here's your beer, Joe,' and I looked at it and said, 'You put water in this, didn't you, Jim?' And he said, 'Naw-suh, I wouldn't do a thing like that.' But I tasted it and it did taste like it had water in it to me."

During this answer, attorneys on both sides joined in a hearty laugh.

"What time did you send him for the beer?"

"About 10:30."

"How do you know it was about 10:30?"

"Well, I just knew it was."

"Tell us how you knew it was."

"Well, about that time of day I usually sent over and got a little beer."

"Then you could tell by the empty feeling inside you, about what time it was, could you?"

"Yes, sir, I guess that's right."

"Did you drink that beer Jim brought?"

"No, I went and got some more."

"Did you go to the undertaker's to see Mary Phagan's body?"

"Yes, about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon."

"Did you see Frank there?"

"Yes, he came in."

"What kind of a suit did he have on?"

"He had on a dark suit."

"Did he have a raincoat with him?"

"No."

"Are you sure he didn't have a raincoat?"

"Yes."

"Absolutely positive, are you?"

"Yes, I looked at him and I know he didn't have a raincoat in his hand."

"Who was with him?"

"He was by himself."

"How did you go in to see the body?"

"You had to go through a passageway and then turn to the right."

"How far into the room where the body was did you go?"

"I just went to the doorway and looked at the body and then turned around and went out."

"Which way was the head of the body?"

"It was toward the back of the building."

"Describe how the body looked."

"Well the hair was loose and hanging down, there was a sheet over the body, the right eye was discolored, and there was a scar on the forehead."

WAITED FOR FRANK.

"Did you go in before Frank got there?"

"No."

"You waited for Frank, then, did you?"

"Yes, we sat down and waited for him just about two minutes."

"Whom do you mean by 'we'?"

"I mean Fritz Yankee and myself."

"Who suggested that you go in to see the body?"

"Fritz did."

The solicitor then began to bore into the witness with questions of minute detail as to whether they did not see the body before Frank came. The witness first half admitted that they did, then took it back and said that Frank came ten minutes after they got there and that they didn't see the body until after he came. Asked why he sat down to wait, the witness said he felt nervous.

Stelker changed his statement of a reason for going to view the body of Mary Phagan. He said instead of going in to see the girl to identify her, he went in there to see the bruises as he had heard that she was badly hurt.

He learned when he reached the undertaker's that she had been identified. He said that it always nauseated him to look at a dead body, and when he looked at Mary Phagan's body he became nauseated and left right away. For that reason, he said, he could not give the solicitor any more detail of the injuries he saw.

WILL NOT SWEAR IT.

The solicitor concluded his examination by demanding of the witness if he would swear to the jury that the spot on the second floor of the factory was not blood.

"No, I will not swear that it was not blood," replied the witness.

On re-direct examination, Attorney Arnold brought out the fact that the witness was of Teutonic origin and was accustomed to drink beer.

J. D. McCarley, of 24 Hampton street, was called. He is a cotton seed oil man in charge of the cotton seed interests of M. Frank, the uncle of the accused. He declared that he had known Frank since Frank arrived in Atlanta and knows him to be of good charcter.

Mrs. M. Y. Meyer, of Washington street, who had lived on that street for ten years, testified that she had known Frank four or five years and that his general character is good. Other character witnesses who testified were Mrs. David Marx, wife of Rabbi Marx, 354 Washington street; Mrs. Arthur L. Harris, of Washington street; A. L. Gluckman, member of the grand jury which indicted Frank; M. S. Rice, a wholesale jeweler, who roomed in the same house with Frank from September, 1909, to December, 1910, before Frank was married; Mrs. D. Glowkosky, a widow, who conducts a boarding house at 499 Washington street, where Frank and his wife boarded for seven months; Mrs. Sommerfield, wife of Dr. J. E. Sommerfield; Mrs. L. H. Moss, wife of the treasurer of the Atlanta Paper company; L. H. Moss; Mrs. Joseph G. Brown; E. E. Fitzpatrick, of 105 Sinclair avenue, foreman of the receiving and shipping department of Montag Brothers; Emil Dittler, stationery manufacturer; William Bauer, a grocer, resident at the Washington terrace; Miss Helen Loeb, of Washington street; Al Fox, a furniture manufacturer of 86 Sinclair avenue, and J. C. Matthews, a clerk at Montag Brothers. Matthews was asked a few questions about what occurred at Montag Brothers on Memorial day morning. He testified he was there when Frank came. He could not fix the time, he said.

None of these witnesses was cross-examined. The witnesses usually bowed and smiled to Frank and his wife when they took the witness stand.

The following other witnesses testified in the order named as to Frank's character: Mrs. Adolf Montag, whose husband is a member of the firm of Montag Brothers; Mrs. Martin May, Julan Boehm, an insurance man; Mrs. Mollie Rosenberg, H. M. Silverman, Mrs. M. L. Sterne; Charles Adler, Mrs. R. A. Sohn, A. J. Jones, an employe of Montag Brothers; Mrs. Dan Klein, Nathan Coplan, Miss Rae Klein.

F. F. Hilburn, a type compositor at Montag Brothers, was put on the stand by the defense as a character witness, but when asked if he knew Frank's general character he said he knew him only in a business way. After an exchange of objections among the attorneys, Mr. Hilburn was excused by Attorney Arnold without testifying.

Other witnesses introduced to testify to the good character of Frank were Lester Einstein, M. J. Bernard, of the Atlanta Paper company; Jacob Fox, of Eiseman Brothers company; Marcus Loeb, overalls manufacturer, and Mrs. J. O. Parmalee, of 447 Spring street, whose husband is a stockholder in the National Pencil company.

SOLICITOR'S EXAMINATION.

Mrs. Parmalee was cross-examined by the solicitor. She admitted that she met Frank only once when she went to the factory with her husband some years ago, and had seen him twice at the jail since his incarceration. Their only other meetings were on the street, she said. She said she is a member of the board of directors of the Sheltering Arms and had heard much of Frank's charitable work. Asked as to who she had heard talk about Frank, she said, "A great many Jewish people," but named only the Haases, the Bauers and the Montags.

She said that in her work at the Sheltering Arms she had come in contact with a number of the pencil factory employes, and that many of the mothers who brought their children there talked of the men in the factory, but she did not know that any of them had mentioned Frank.

Mrs. Parmalee said that the men of the factory were discussed in their relation to the work done by the women, not from the standpoint of morality. The solicitor kept Mrs. Parmalee on the stand for some fifteen or twenty minutes with a cross-fire of questions.

The witness on the stand when recess for lunch was taken at 12:3 o'clock was Roy Bauer, not a character witness. He testified that in the summer of 1909 and 1910 he worked at the pencil factory as a clerk, and since then he frequently has visited the factory on Saturday afternoons to chat with Herbert Schiff and Frank. He said that he was there every Saturday afternoon in January, 1913; that he went there to get information about Schiff, who was in the Ohio flood region.

On cross-examination the solicitor asked about the time he was there the first Saturday. Bauer said he reached there about 2:45 o'clock. In the course of the examination the solicitor drew forth statements to the effect that the witness remembered looking at his watch at ten minutes to 2 o'clock on the first Saturday in January, 1913, just after he had finished his bath. It was an open-faced Ingersoll, lying on the bureau, the witness also remembered.

The solicitor made his examination of the witness much more vigorous, following these statements, upon the witness' statements that he visited the factory on Saturday afternoons. Bauer said that he stayed at the factory from 2:45 until about 4 o'clock on the first Saturday in January. He said he saw Holloway and an office boy and Frank. The solicitor went into most minute detail concerning each visit made by the witness to the factory on Saturday afternoons. The solicitor still was hammering hard upon the witness' testimony when court adjourned, Judge Roan having asked the solicitor how much longer he would continue, and the solicitor having replied that he would require at least fifteen minutes more to finish with the witness.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 15.—The service that is being rendered by Norman C. Shuptrine, the junior member of the legislature from Chatham county, is not sufficient for his friends, who are now anxious to give him another political duty—that of president of the Savannah Progressive Cracker club, a local political organization. Mr. Shuptrine is desired to succeed Mr. J. R. Williams, who has been president for the past year. Mr. Williams resigned on account of his removal to Charleston.

BILL PROHIBITS SOLONS ASKING CAMPAIGN FUNDS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Senator Clapp's bill to prohibit congressmen from soliciting campaign funds for any political committee, club or organization will be recommended for passage by the senate elections committee. The bill, however, has been amended to permit congressmen to serve in political clubs, committees and other organizations. The bill resulted from revelations before the campaign fund investigating committee of which Mr. Clapp was chairman.

Man in Love Has Right To Lie, Rules Judge

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—That a man who is in love is privileged to lie, was the ruling handed down yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Guy.

To quote the justice: "It is also a well known principle that in the state of mental exaltation accompanying courtship, statements made as to mental, moral or financial qualifications of the accused may not be too closely scrutinized, nor shall they be held to a strict accountability therefor."

In such a state of mental exaltation Phillip Cusick, while courting the woman he afterward married, told her, she avers, that he was earning $30 a week, while as a matter of fact he was a property boy at the theater at a weekly salary of $13.50. Later when Cusick vanished Mrs. Cusick applied for divorce, counsel fees and alimony.

Justice Guy's ruling accompanied his refusal of the request for alimony.

Deaths and Funerals

MR. W. D. HUMPHRIES.

The funeral of Mr. W. D. Humphries, who died Wednesday night, was held Friday morning from the chapel of Hary G. Pool. The interment was at West View. The members of the Atlanta Typographical union, to which he belonged, attended in a body.

MR. ALLEN DEAS.

The body of Mr. Allen Deas, who died suddenly of apoplexy Wednesday night, will be sent to his home at Camden, S. C., Friday night at 8 o'clock.

NOLAN N. BECK.

The funeral of Nolan N. Beck, the thirteen-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Beck, who died Thursday afternoon at a private sanitarium, will be held Friday afternoon from Bloomfield's chapel. The interment will be at Hollywood cemetery.

MRS. GEORGIA A. DURHAM.

Mrs. Georgia A. Durham, aged seventy-five years, died at the residence, 12 Candler street, in Decatur, Thursday night. The body was removed to Patterson's chapel and the funeral will be from the residence Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

ALL GEORGIA RECORDS BROKEN BY THE FRANK TRIAL

Testimony up to Thursday Would Fill 500 Newspaper Columns, Says Official

Mrs. M. Marcus, M. J. Goldstein, I. Strauss, Who Participated in Card Game, Declare Frank Showed No Signs of Excitement When They Saw Him Saturday Evening and Told Its Focus Instead—Not So Scratches on His Face

That all Georgia records for criminal trials already had been broken, and that probably there was no southern record approaching it, was the statement of the court stenographer informally Thursday afternoon with regard to the Leo M. Frank murder trial.

The stenographer stated that the records of the trial up to Thursday morning and including none of Thursday's testimony, were well in excess of 600,000 words.

That is equivalent to more than 500 newspaper columns of solid print, with each line a full one.

The count did not include, of course, the voluminous record of the coroner's inquest nor any of the other profuse documents which were written in advance of the trial's beginning.

According to witnesses for the defense Leo M. Frank was not nervous and displayed no signs of extra concern on Saturday night, April 26, just a few hours before the little girl's body was found by Newt Lee, the negro night watchman. The witnesses testified that they attended the card party at the home of Emil Selig that night and that the accused came in about 8:15 or 8:30 and sat in the hall and read a magazine until after 10 o'clock when he retired.

Mrs. M. Marcus, of 483 Washington street, was the first witness. She told the jury that she attended the Seligs' card party, saw Frank and noticed nothing unusual in his manner. M. J. Goldstein, also of Washington street, declared that he too attended the card game and noticed nothing unusual about the accused. I. Strauss told the jury that he went to the Selig home about 10 o'clock that night to escort Mrs. Strauss home and that he saw the superintendent who retired shortly after he arrived. John W. Todd, of Pittsburg, Pa., was the only character witness introduced early in the afternoon. He was treasurer of Frank's class at Cornell and said that the accused had a good reputation in college.

Mrs. Emil Selig, mother-in-law of the accused, occupied the stand for a while and denied the allegations in the affidavit made by Minola McKnight, the cook for the Franks. She declared that the married life of her daughter had been a very happy one, but this testimony was ruled out by Judge Roan.

Harry Denham, assistant foreman at the factory, testified that Frank left the factory on Saturday, April 26, the day of the tragedy, shortly before 1 o'clock in the afternoon and returned at 3. Denham gave the names of different visitors to the factory during the period he was there and said that he left Frank at 4:30 after 3, leaving Frank in his office writing. He borrowed $2 from Frank as he went out.

The first witness of the afternoon session was Mrs. M. Marcus, of 483 Washington street. She was one of the members of the card party at the Selig residence on the night of Memorial day. She testified that the group of friends with whom she was playing cards every Saturday night at the houses of different members. She testified that she saw Frank in the Selig residence between 8:30 and 8:45 o'clock; that he sat in the hall most of the time reading a magazine, and that he went up to bed about 10 or 10:30 o'clock. Nothing was brought out on examination.

Harry Denham was called as the next witness, but did not answer.

M. J. Goldstein, 485 Washington street, was called as the second witness.

Mr. Goldstein testified that he was a member of the card party at the Selig home on the night of April 26. He said that he arrived there about 8:15 o'clock, and that Mrs. Leo M. Frank and Mrs. Marcus were already there. He said he played cards in the dining room; that Frank was seated in the hall.

In answer to a question by Attorney Arnold, he said there was absolutely nothing unusual about Frank that night. To the best of his recollection, said the witness, Frank went to bed about 10:30 o'clock, and his wife went fifteen minutes later. There were no scratches or bruises visible upon Frank, said he.

Attorney Hooper cross-examined the witness briefly, developing nothing material.

Miss Eula Mae Flowers was called as the next witness. She did not respond and I. Strauss was called.

Mr. Strauss testified that he called at the Selig home about 10 o'clock on the night of April 26, to get his wife and escort her home. He stopped about an hour, he said, and played cards a while. From where he sat at the card table, he said, he could see Frank seated in the hall, and noticed nothing unusual about him. Frank went to bed soon after he, the witness, got there, and Mrs. Frank went soon afterward.

Attorney Hooper cross-examined the witness, asking a few questions, concluding with, "How long did you play?" "An hour maybe a little less," answered the witness. "How did you come out?" "I don't remember."

MRS. SELIG ON STAND.

Mrs. Emil Selig was recalled as the next witness. Attorney Arnold asked the solicitor for copies of the affidavit that Minola McKnight had made, remarking that he wanted to question Mrs. Selig about them. The solicitor gave them to him.

Mr. Arnold asked specifically about every detail of every statement in the affidavit, and Mrs. Selig denied each. She denied, brought out from Mrs. Selig that "Mrs. Rausin," referred to in the affidavit, probably was Mrs. Ursenbach, her daughter.

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined the witness.

"How long after Frank's arrest did Mrs. Frank go to see him?"

"That week, I think."

Later on in his examination, Mr. Dorsey drew continually to Mrs. Frank's first visit to her husband in the jail. Mrs. Selig said that not only did she not remember when that first visit was, but that also she would make no effort to remember it. Asking the solicitor what he was trying to imply by his questions, the witness admitted that Mrs. Frank was at home Thursday and Wednesday and that she spent some time each day reading to Mrs. Frank's mother.

Mr. Dorsey asked if Mrs. Frank went to see her husband before May 3, and the witness answered that she did not know. He asked if Frank had not been a prisoner two weeks when Mrs. Frank called, and the witness said she did not think so.

Mr. Arnold asked Mrs. Selig, when cross-examination was concluded, "Was the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Frank happy?"

"Exceptionally happy," answered the witness.

The solicitor objected to the question and answer and asked that they be ruled out. Before Judge Roan ruled, Mr. Rosser objected to all questions and answers by the solicitor about Mrs. Frank's delay in calling upon her husband at the jail. Arguing his motion, Mr. Rosser declared that in this case it seemed that the court had forgotten the rules of circumstantial evidence and seemed to think that any circumstance was relevant, whereas, as a matter of fact, only circumstances pointing to the guilt or innocence of the accused were involved.

"Suppose I had a veritable virago for a wife," said Mr. Rosser, "and when I was locked up she didn't come near me. Or suppose I had a devoted loving wife whom my inherent decency would me ask to stay away from the jail. How could that show whether I was guilty or innocent?"

Judge Roan ruled out all questions relating to the actions of Mrs. Frank, and also ruled out Mr. Arnold's question as to the happiness of their married life.

Mrs. Selig was cross-examined at length by Mr. Dorsey. She was asked especially regarding any statement which might have made to Minola McKnight, the cook, at the time when Minola was carried downtown by officers.

Mrs. Selig would not remember anything, but denied every question which pointed toward the affidavit of the negress as being in any way correct.

She did not remember what time Frank left home on the morning of April 26. The witness said that on that day she did not see Frank until Monday at noon, in the morning or at dinner time or at night. She had seen Minola talking to Albert Lee more than two or three times, she said.

EMPHATIC DENIALS.

The solicitor questioned Mrs. Selig closely about the different statements in the affidavit by the cook. Mrs. Selig's nothing from her except emphatic denials. The witness said that she was not up and did not remember seeing any officers who came to the residence for Frank on Sunday morning.

The solicitor asked a number of questions about the pay of Minola McKnight, which Mrs. Selig said is $3.50 a week and has been that since the negress first was employed. Mrs. Selig said that one week she did advance Minola $2 of her next week's wages, and took the amount out the following week.

Mrs. Selig said that she did not give Minola $5 with instructions to bring back the change, and that the cook brought back only $1, and that the following week she deducted 50 cents. The solicitor asked if Mrs. Frank had not given to Minola a hat since the tragedy. Mrs. Selig said her daughter had given Minola a hat, but she did not remember whether it was before or after the tragedy.

PITTSBURG WITNESS.

John W. Todd was called as the next witness. He is a citizen of Pittsburg, Pa., and acted as purchasing agent of the Crucible Steel company. He testified that he attended Cornell university at the same time Frank was there, and knew him as a fellow-student for four years. He testified that he, the witness, was treasurer of his class, and that Frank's general character was very good.

Harry Denham, assistant foreman on the fourth floor of the National pencil factory, was called. He testified that he was paid on Saturday afternoon and went back to the factory Saturday morning about 7:30 o'clock to work on some ma- chinery on the fourth floor.

He said that Holloway was there when he arrived, but that he didn't know whether Frank was in the building at that time.

He said that Mae Barrett came up about 9:30 o'clock, to the best of his recollection, and remained there about three-quarters of an hour. She came, said he, for a crocus sack, and stood around and talked awhile.

He testified that Mrs. Emma Freeman and Miss Corinthia Hall came up and stayed about fifteen minutes. He said they got something and wrapped it up. He thought it was a coat.

He said that the next person who came to the fourth floor was the wife of Arthur White, who also was on the fourth floor at work. It was about 12:30 when Mrs. White came. Mrs. White and her husband had a long talk.

The next person who came up was Frank, who told them he was going to dinner and would like to close the doors, and asked Mrs. White if she would leave. He supposed it was about five minutes to 1 when Frank came up, Frank stayed only a moment, and Mrs. White went out right behind him.

Attorney Arnold questioned the witness closely as to whether he heard the elevator running about that time. He testified that he did not hear it running about that time or at all during the day while he was there. He said that the big wheel of the elevator, and the cables of the elevator, can be seen from the fourth floor. The machinery in the building was not running, he said.

Asked if the elevator makes any noise noticeable on the fourth floor when the machinery is not running, Denham said that the elevator jars the building a little when it starts and when it stops. Asked if it was the motor or the elevator that jars the building, he said he thought it was the elevator. From where he and White were working, it would have been easy to see the elevator go turning around, he said.

Denham testified that about 3 o'clock Frank came back and told him and White to get ready to leave. He said they had about finished their work, and that they washed and went on downstairs to the office, getting there about 3:10 o'clock. Frank was at his desk writing, and White borrowed $2 from him. He did not know what it was that Frank was writing on.

"How did Frank look?"

"Did look like he always does."

"Did you look at him when he came up to tell Mrs. White that he was going to shut the door?"

"Yes."

"Did you know Mary Phagan?"

"I knew her by sight."

"How long had you seen her before the murder?"

"I hadn't seen her in about a week."

"Did you look from the third floor landing to the elevator shaft on the office floor?"

"You can stop there and look and see it."

"You had the run of the building on Saturday, didn't you?"

"I suppose we did."

"When you went downstairs everything was unfastened, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

"*Why did White tell Frank he want*ed the money?"

He said his wife had 'robbed' him."

DORSEY'S QUESTIONS.

Solicitor Dorsey took the witness on cross examination.

"You were knocking and hammering considerably when you went shoving up there, weren't you?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes."

"Where on the fourth floor were you working?"

On the diagram of the pencil factory the witness pointed out a spot about half way the length of the building.

"You were working over the back of the office floor, then, weren't you?"

"Yes."

"*How far were you from the stair*way?"

"Forty feet."

At the instance of Solicitor Dorsey, he designated the distance in the court room.

"You couldn't have seen the elevator from where you were, because it opens on the side, doesn't it?"

"I couldn't have seen it but I could have seen the wheels moving."

"How long were you busy with your work to look at it, weren't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"What kind of doors are on the elevator?"

"They are sliding doors; you can slide them up and down."

"They are always down when the factory is not running, aren't they?"

"Sometimes they're not."

"Did you notice whether the door was up or down, the day you worked there?"

"Do you know whether the box to the switch of the motor on the second floor is kept locked?"

"I don't know."

FRANK CAME AT 1 O'CLOCK.

"When was the first time Frank came up to the floor, you were working?"

"About 10 minutes to 1 o'clock."

"Didn't he come up earlier than that?"

"No."

Solicitor Dorsey read a portion of Denham's evidence before the coroner's jury, which was to the effect that Frank came up there about 12 o'clock.

"Is that right?" asked te solicitor.

"I'm not certain," replied the witness.

"Are you certain now about the time?"

"No, sir."

"How clo- did Frank come to where you were working, when he came up?"

"Within about 10 feet of me."

"That's the time he talked to Mrs. White, is it?"

"How many times did Frank come up that day?"

"Twice."

"Were you through when he returned at 3 o'clock?"

"Yes, we were washing when he came back upstairs that time."

"What did Frank say to Minola McKnight, which Mrs. Selig said is $3.50 a week and has been that since the negress first was employed. Mrs. Selig said that one week she did advance Minola $2 of her next week's wages, and took the amount out the following week.

Mrs. Selig said that she did not give Minola $5 with instructions to bring back the change, and that the cook brought back only $1, and that the following week she deducted 50 cents. The solicitor asked if Mrs. Frank had not given to Minola a hat since the tragedy. Mrs. Selig said her daughter had given Minola a hat, but she did not remember whether it was before or after the tragedy.

RETURNED AT 3 O'CLOCK.

"Three o'clock."

"You told the coroner that it was about 10 or 15 minutes to 3, didn't you?"

"I'm not certain."

"Frank said he was going right out, didn't he, when he was up there the first time?"

"No, he said he wanted to."

"Do you know whether he went out or not?"

"No, sir."

"On April 28 you went to the office floor, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"You saw some blood in the metal room near the girls' dressing room, didn't you?"

"No, sir."

"Didn't you say at the coroner's jury you saw this blood?"

"I said I saw something that I thought was blood."

"Did you hear the wind blowing Saturday?"

"Yes, I heard it snapping the blinds," was the answer.

"Do you know whether he went out or not?"

"No, sir.

"There is a door at the head of the stairs, as you come up to the floor you were working on, isn't there?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is there a way to lock or fasten it?"

"No, sir.

"Isn't there a way to tie it?"

"Not that I know of."

"Could a man on the office floor hear anybody walking up the aisle from the back of the fourth floor?"

"No, sir. I don't think so."

Denham then described how on April 26 he went down to the second floor to get some boards cut. He went to the band saw, he said, and that the boards were necessary for the work they were doing on the fourth floor.

"Didn't you *say at the coroner's in*quest that you did not leave the fourth floor between 1 and 2 o'clock?"

"I think I told them that."

"That is a mistake then, is it?"

"Yes, I was a mistaken."

In answer to another question, Denham said that he and White hunted up Holloway to get him to cut the boards for them.

"A person could have come into Frank's office and you wouldn't know anything about it, would you?"

"Yes, anybody could have come in or gone out."

"You said at the coroner's inquest that when Frank came upstairs, you did not see whether his face was flushed or not?"

"Yes. I didn't pay any attention to him then."

"What time did Miss Corinthia Hall and Mrs. Emma Freeman come there?"

"A little after 11 o'clock, I think."

"Didn't you say at the coroner's inquest that it was a little after 10?"

"I don't know," said the witness. "I'm not positive just when it was."

"What did Frank say when he came upstairs?"

"He just told Mr. and Mrs. White that he wanted to go out to dinner."

"What time was that?"

"It was some time after noon."

J. R. LEACH CALLED.

The witness was excused. The next witness, J. R. Leach, division superintendent for the Georgia Railway and Power company, proved a good witness, for both the state and the defense.

Mr. Leach stated that he is familiar with the schedules of different lines in the city. The Georgia avenue cars leave the center of the city on the hour and every ten minutes after the hour, arriving in Whitehall, when there is a five minute schedule. It takes them from two to three minutes, depending on the amount of traffic, to go from Broad and Marietta to Whitehall and Alabama. The Washington street cars, he said, also pass Whitehall and Alabama. They leave at two minutes after the hour, and every ten minutes from then on. He said that it takes just about 12 minutes for the Washington street cars to go from Whitehall and Alabama to the corner of Georgia avenue and Washington street. He said that it takes just about the same time for the Washington street cars to go from that corner to the corner of Georgia avenue and Glenn street.

SOLICITOR DORSEY EXAMINES.

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined the witness.

"There's no such thing as a 7 1-2 minute schedule, is there?"

"We figure on them, but they are not posted on cars," was the answer.

"How long have you been with the power company?"

"Fifteen years."

"Don't the cars very frequently reach the center of the city ahead of time?"

"Yes, they do, although it is against the rules. I have to pass them, too."

"Didn't you last week suspend a man for being six minutes ahead of his schedule?"

"Yes."

"After Matthews testified, didn't you see him come in ahead of time?"

The question was ruled out.

By repeated questions the solicitor drove home the fact that cars frequently overtake and pass the first schedule time, and that they are especially prone to come in ahead when crews are about to be relieved.

Mr. Arnold, on re-direct examination, brought out the statement that the English avenue car has a pretty hard schedule.

C. D. ALBERT TESTIFIES.

The next witness to take the stand was C. D. Albert, of Ithaca, N. Y. He is head of the department of machine designing at Cornell university. His home is in Ithaca, N. Y. He said that he had been on the Cornell factulty for five years. He stated that he knew Leo M. Frank from October, 1906, to June, 1910. He was then an instructor in the mechanical laboratory, and Frank was student under him. He knew Frank very well and his character was good. The witness was not cross-examined. When he left the stand he went over and shook hands with Frank, who greeted him very cordially, Prof. Albert sitting down and talking with Frank and the prisoner's wife.

J. E. Vanderhoit, of Ithaca, N. Y., was called. He is the foreman in the Cornell machine shop. Vanderhoit testified that he had known Frank since 1903 and had been associated with him for two years at Cornell university. He testified that he knew Frank's character to be good. Attorney Hooper, cross examining him, asked "How long have you known Frank?"

"Twenty-five years," said the witness.

"How many students on an average are there in that university each year?"

"Two hundred to three hundred in my department."

"How many are there in the school?"

"About 1,200 this year."

"And you didn't take any special note of Leo M. Frank, then?"

"I came in contact with him every alternate day."

"You don't mean to say that you know all about the morals of all these 300 men that you teach every year, do you?"

"Well, I see them all."

"You are never out with them when they start to paint the town red, are you?"

"No, sir."

"Some of them do paint the town red, don't they?"

"A certain class of them do."

"You don't pretend to tell about the morals of Frank outside of your class, do you?"

"I do not."

MAE FLOWERS ON STAND.

The witness was excused, and Miss Eula Mae Flowers was called.

"Did you work in the pencil factory on Saturday, April 26?" Mr. Arnold asked Miss Flowers.

"No, sir."

"Did you work Friday, the day before?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did Herbert Schiff get the data from you for the financial sheet, Friday?"

"Yes, he got it Friday night."

"What time did he get it?"

"At 10 minutes to 6 o'clock."

Miss Flowers continued that the data which Schiff got showed the production in her department for the preceding week. Attorney Hooper cross-examined the witness.

"Did you always turn these slips in Friday night?"

"Yes."

"Did it touch Friday's production?"

"No, sir."

"What particular department is yours?"

"The packing department."

"Did you see any blood spots on the floor in the metal room after the killing?"

"No, sir."

"How did it happen that you didn't see them?"

"Well, it was not my business."

"And you had no curiosity to see them?"

"No, sir."

Witness was excused.

SAT IN BALL GAME.

C. F. Ursenbach, of 62 Washington street, whose wife is a sister of Mrs. Leo M. Frank, was the next witness. He testified that Friday, April 25, he called Frank over the telephone and asked him if he would go to the game on Saturday afternoon.

The witness said that Frank replied he did not know for certain then but would call him later and let him know. He said that when he went home Saturday about 1:30, his cook told him that Frank had called up and said he could not go to the game.

He said that Frank was at his house twice on Sunday, the first time about 12:15, when he called him and Mrs. Ursenbach of the tragedy at the factory. He noticed no scratches or bruises on Frank. He said that Frank appeared disturbed and nervous as a man would be naturally under the circumstances.

The witness said he himself felt disturbed. He testified that Frank came to the house again in the afternoon and that when Frank left about 4:30 o'clock he borrowed the witness' rain coat. That same evening, Sunday, he and Mrs. Ursenbach met Mr. and Mrs. Frank on Washington street and that Frank returned to him the raincoat.

He testified that the two families visited frequently on Saturdays and Sundays. He said he and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Frank had just learned the game of bridge whist and played it quite a good deal, playing usually nearly every Saturday night.

HOOPER EXAMINES WITNESS.

Mr. Ursenbach was cross-examined by Attorney Hooper.

"What kind of a card did you say you and the Franks played?"

"I said we were very much interested in the game of bridge whist. The Seligs usually played poker on Saturday night, but we did not join in their game."

"When did you say the baseball engagement was called off?"

"I said Saturday about 1:30 when I went home the cook told me Frank had called up and said he could not go to the game."

"You are certain Frank didn't call you himself and tell you he couldn't go to the game?"

"Yes, I'm certain I did not talk to him over the telephone. The cook said he called up and tried to get me, and had left the message with her."

"How was it you say that baseball engagement was made?"

"I telephoned to Frank and invited him."

"You are certain Frank didn't telephone you?"

"No, I telephoned him."

"When was it you said you lent him the raincoat?"

"Sunday afternoon at my house."

"Isn't is a fact that Frank borrowed the raincoat before?" demanded Mr. Arnold. "Is that the way to try this case, with the audience giggling?"

Judge Roan addressed the spectators. "If there is any more disorder out there, I won't let you in here at all tomorrow."

Judge Roan instructed the deputy to seek the man who laughed. Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor put the man out.

The next witness called was Mrs. F. M. Frank. A striking resemblance between the two was noticeable as Mrs. Ursenbach took the stand.

She testified that she remembered on Saturday receiving a message through her servant about 1:30 to the effect that Frank could not go with Mr. Ursenbach to the ball game. She testified that she saw Frank at her house about 12:15 o'clock Sunday. He told them then of the tragedy at the pencil factory. She noticed on him no marks of any kind, no scratches nor bruises. His manner, she testified, was nervous as a man naturally would be under the circumstances. She said that he returned to the house Sunday afternoon and she and her husband met Mr. Frank and his wife on Washington street Sunday evening.

Attorney Arnold borrowed from the solicitor the affidavit of Minola McKnight and read to Mrs. Ursenbach that portion which claimed to report remarks which passed between Mrs. Ursenbach and Mrs. Frank. In the affidavit Mrs. Ursenbach was referred to as "Miss Rauzin.' Mrs. Ursenbach explained that her given name was Rosalind. She supposed "Miss Rauzin" was the negro's pronunciation of her name. Reading the affidavit, Mr. Arnold asked the witness if she had said to Mrs. Frank: "It's mighty bad," and if Mrs. Frank replied: "Yes, I'm going to get after her."

Mrs. Ursenbach stated that nothing of the kind had occurred.

Mrs. Ursenbach was cross examined *by Attorney Hooper. The witness stat*ed that she remembered her husband lending Frank his rain coat to Frank Sunday afternoon.

"Where was the rain coat Saturday?"

"In my room."

"What time Saturday did you notice it?"

"I don't know that I noticed it that day?"

"Then you don't know that it was in your house?"

"No, but I know it was there Sunday when my husband asked Mr. Frank if he wouldn't wear it."

"Who authorized speaking to Minola McKnight about the case?"

"Why, I don't know. I didn't speak to her, and I didn't hear anybody else."

"What did Frank tell you about the crime?"

"He told me how he was called down there, and how horrible it was."

"What time was it he told you that?"

"A little after 12."

"What else did he say about it?"

"He was talking to Mr. Ursenbach and I was frequently out of the room."

"Tell us something that you heard."

SAID CRIME WAS BRUTAL.

"He said it was a brutal crime."

"Didn't he say anything about getting a lawyer or hiring the Pinkertons?"

"I didn't hear him."

"What time did he say he left the factory?"

"He didn't say, I think."

"How did he show his nervousness?"

"He kept patting his foot on the floor."

"Did he wring his hands or run them through his hair?"

"I don't think so."

"Did he say how he slept that night?"

"He didn't say."

"What did he tell you about the ringing of the telephone?"

"He said he thought he heard it in his sleep."

"What else did he say about the crime?"

"He said they were trying to find out who killed the girl."

"Did he tell you about identifying the body?"

"Yes. He said he was down there in the afternoon."

"Are you sure he said afternoon?"

"I think so."

"Did he say he saw the body?"

"He said the body was a gruesome sight."

"Did he mention the changes he made in the time clock?"

"I didn't hear anything like that."

"Did he say he suspected Gantt, or Newt Lee, or anybody?"

DISTRUSTED GANTT.

"He said he was sorry he let Gantt into the factory because he distrusted him."

"He didn't say that he thought Newt Lee or Gantt did it?"

"No, I don't remember that he mentioned Lee. I was in and out of the room. Oh, yes, he did say that Newt Lee was a good negro as far as he knew."

Witness said he did not know when she heard the name of the murdered girl. She said she was at the Selig home again Monday evening.

"What did Mr. Frank say then?"

"He said the detectives seemed to suspect him."

"Was he nervous then?"

"I don't think so."

"You mean to say Frank was nervous before he was suspected, and not nervous after he was suspected?"

"Well, really I don't remember. I think he patted his foot that afternoon."

"When was the last time you played bridge with him before the tragedy?"

"It was that week. I don't remember the day."

"When did you play after the murder?"

"We didn't play, but Sunday night Mr. Frank phoned to Mr. Ursenbach to see if we were going to."

"Did you hear the conversation?"

The witness said no, and Attorney Rosser moved to rule it out. He was sustained by Judge Roan.

MRS. A. E. MARCUS CALLED.

The witness next called, and Mrs. A. E. Marcus, of 489 Washington street, another sister of Mrs. Frank, went on the stand. She stated that she played cards at the Selig residence, Saturday night; saw Frank sitting in the hall; noticed nothing out of the ordinary about his demeanor, and that he went to bed about 10:30 o'clock.

Mr. Hooper, cross-questioning the witness, asked:

"Where was he sitting?"

"Out in the hall."

"You didn't let him break up your poker game, did you?"

"One of the ladies said something to him about not reading a story, and he told it to us instead."

"I see. You didn't want any story of a baseball game to break up a poker game, did you?"

The witness shrugged her shoulders, and the examination ended.

KRIGSHAW IDENTIFIES.

Victor H. Krieghaber was called to the stand as the next witness for the defense. Mr. Krieghaber is a clerk in building supplies and has lived in Atlanta for 22 years, he said. He has known Frank for three years, he said, and his character was known as good.

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined the witness.

"How often do you come in contact with Frank?" he asked.

"Not frequently."

"You are much older than he, aren't you?"

"I don't know how much older." This caused audible laughter in court.

"Was it not about once a week?" demanded Mr. Arnold. "Is that the way to try this case, with the audience giggling?"

Judge Roan addressed the spectators. "If there is any more disorder out there, I won't let you in here at all tomorrow."

Judge Roan instructed the deputy to seek the man who laughed. Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor put the man out.

The next witness called was Mrs. C. F. Ursenbach, the sister of Mrs. Leo M. Frank. A striking resemblance between the two was noticeable as Mrs. Ursenbach took the stand.

She said that he returned to the house Sunday afternoon and she and her husband met Mr. Frank and his wife on Washington street Sunday evening.

Attorney Arnold borrowed from the solicitor the affidavit of Minola McKnight and read to Mrs. Ursenbach that portion which claimed to report remarks which passed between Mrs. Ursenbach and Mrs. Frank. In the affidavit Mrs. Ursenbach was referred to as "Miss Rauzin.' Mrs. Ursenbach explained that her given name was Rosalind. She supposed "Miss Rauzin" was the negro's pronunciation of her name. Reading the affidavit, Mr. Arnold asked the witness if she had said to Mrs. Frank: "It's mighty bad," and if Mrs. Frank replied: "Yes, I'm going to get after her."

Mrs. Ursenbach stated that nothing of the kind had occurred.

Mrs. Ursenbach was cross examined *by Attorney Hooper. The witness stat*ed that she remembered her husband lending Frank his rain coat to Frank Sunday afternoon.

"Where was the rain coat Saturday?"

"In my room."

"What time Saturday did you notice it?"

"I don't know that I noticed it that day?"

"Then you don't know that it was in your house?"

"No, but I know it was there Sunday when my husband asked Mr. Frank if he wouldn't wear it."

"Are you sure he said afternoon?"

"I think so."

"Did he say he saw the body?"

"He said the body was a gruesome sight."

"Did he mention the changes he made in the time clock?"

"I didn't hear anything like that."

"Did he say he suspected Gantt, or Newt Lee, or anybody?"

DISTRUSTED GANTT.

"He said he was sorry he let Gantt into the factory because he distrusted him."

"He didn't say that he thought Newt Lee or Gantt did it?"

"No, I don't remember that he mentioned Lee. I was in and out of the room. Oh, yes, he did say that Newt Lee was a good negro as far as he knew."

Witness said he did not know when she heard the name of the murdered girl. She said she was at the Selig home again Monday evening.

"What did Mr. Frank say then?"

"He said the detectives seemed to suspect him."

"Was he nervous then?"

"I don't think so."

"You mean to say Frank was nervous before he was suspected, and not nervous after he was suspected?"

"Well, really I don't remember. I think he patted his foot that afternoon."

"When was the last time you played bridge with him before the tragedy?"

"It was that week. I don't remember the day."

"When did you play after the murder?"

"We didn't play, but Sunday night Mr. Frank phoned to Mr. Ursenbach to see if we were going to."

"Did you hear the conversation?"

The witness said no, and Attorney

Rosser moved to rule it out. He was sustained by Judge Roan.

MRS. A. E. MARCUS CALLED.

The witness next called, and Mrs. A. E. Marcus, of 489 Washington street, another sister of Mrs. Frank, went on the stand. She stated that she played cards at the Selig residence, Saturday night; saw Frank sitting in the hall; noticed nothing out of the ordinary about his demeanor, and that he went to bed about 10:30 o'clock.

Mr. Hooper, cross-questioning the witness, asked:

"Where was he sitting?"

"Out in the hall."

"You didn't let him break up your poker game, did you?"

"One of the ladies said something to him about not reading a story, and he told it to us instead."

"I see. You didn't want any story of a baseball game to break up a poker game, did you?"

The witness shrugged her shoulders, and the examination ended.

KRIGSHAW IDENTIFIES.

Victor H. Krieghaber was called to the stand as the next witness for the defense. Mr. Krieghaber is a clerk in building supplies and has lived in Atlanta for 22 years, he said. He has known Frank for three years, he said, and his character was known as good.

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined the witness.

"How often do you come in contact with Frank?" he asked.

"Not frequently."

"You are much older than he, aren't you?"

"I don't know how much older." This caused audible laughter in court.

"Was it not about once a week?" demanded Mr. Arnold. "Is that the way to try this case, with the audience giggling?"

Judge Roan addressed the spectators. "If there is any more disorder out there, I won't let you in here at all tomorrow."

Judge Roan instructed the deputy to seek the man who laughed. Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor put the man out.

"Are you familiar with the elevator and the noise it made as anyone else, weren't you?"

"Yes."

"Looking after the elevator was part of your business, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

"Were there any wheels of the elevator in the basement?"

"Yes, one small wheel."

"Were there in the top of the building?"

"Yes, the sheave wheel and some other wheels were on the top floor."

"Were they closed or open?"

"They were closed in."

"You couldn't see them then, could you?"

"Yes, you could see two of them from the fourth floor."

"Did those wheels make any noise?"

"No."

Attorney Arnold took the witness in hand for a few more direct questions.

"When did you leave the factory, Mr. Finley?"

"About three years ago."

"Mr. Dorsey asked you whether the power box made any noise. Did you ever hear of a power box making any noise, Mr. Finley?"

"No, except when a fuse would blow out."

"When the machinery would stop, could you hear the elevator?"

"Yes, I should say you could hear the sound in any part of the building."

ANOTHER CHARACTER WITNESS.

The next witness called was Nathan Klein, a character witness for the de*fense. He testified that he is 32 years* old, has lived 29 years in Atlanta, is in the wholesale lumber business, that the family lives at 92 Windsor street, that he has known Frank six years, and that Frank's character is good.

"Do you recollect seeing Mr. Frank on the evening of Thanksgiving day, 1912?"

"Yes, I saw him at a dance at the Hebrew Orphans' home from 8 o'clock until 11:30 that night. Mr. Frank, myself and some others were a committee in charge of the dance. It was for the benefit of the B'nai B'rith lodge."

DORSEY'S VIGOROUS ATTACK.

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined the witness, and injected new life into the sluggish proceedings by going after the character witness in the most vigorous fashion of any whom he had attacked during the day.

"You've been with Mr. Frank a good deal down at the jail, haven't you?"

"Yes."

"How much."

"Some days minutes to an hour five days during the week."

"Were you there when Conley sought an interview with Frank?"

Attorney Rosser objected to the words, "sought an interview" on the ground that they implied a conclusion, and Judge Roan sustained him.

"Were you there when Conley asked to confront Frank?"

Attorney Rosser entered a vigorous objection. He was sustained by the court.

"Then tell us just what did happen, Mr. Klein. Did Conley come down there?"

"Yes, he was brought there by Detectives Black, Scott and Campbell."

"Did Frank see him?"

"No."

"Did you send down a message to them?"

REFUSED TO SEE CONLEY.

"Yes, I told them that Mr. Frank would see no one."

"Did they bring Conley to the front of Frank's cell?"

"Yes, they brought the negro to the front of Frank's cell."

"Did Frank come out and see Conley?"

"No. I went to the front and acted as spokesman."

"Then Frank didn't come out at all, did he? He stayed in the back end of the cell all the time?"

"I said he did not come out."

"He wouldn't see the detectives, either, would he?"

"No."

"He wouldn't even see his own detectives, would he?"

Attorney Rosser objected to Solicitor Dorsey referring to Scott as Frank's own detective.

"All right, then," said the solicitor. "We'll call him Detective Scott. Frank didn't see him, did he?"

"No, he didn't see him."

"What did Frank say?"

"He said he would see nobody except in the presence of his attorney."

"Did Frank offer to send for his attorney then?"

"He said if they wanted to see him they knew how to get at Mr. Rosser."

"Was this before or after Conley had been taken to the factory?"

"I think it was the day he admitted writing the notes on Friday."

"What was Frank's manner at that time?"

"He was perfectly cool. He considered Conley the same as one of the city detectives."

"How do you know that?"

"I conferred with him and he said so."

"Why did he say that he wouldn't see Scott?"

"He said he would see none of the city detectives, and that included Scott."

"Are you sure he said that included Scott?"

"No."

"Then you just concluded that. Now tell us how Frank looked when Conley came up that day."

"He looked very much disappointed because the grand jury had just indicted him. He expected to be cleared before the grand jury."

"Why did he say he expected to be cleared?"

"He didn't say why. I just knew that he expected to be cleared."

"What did he do when the news came that he had been indicted?"

"I went down to Witdauer, and Frank said he didn't think it was possible. He said he had been in a hopeful frame of mind."

"When did you first see him after he was arrested?"

"I saw him at the station house."

"What was Frank doing then, was he?"

"The papers said he was being detained, but there was a policeman on guard over him."

"He expected to go to jail, didn't he?"

"I don't know whether he did nor not."

"Did you see the telegrams he sent to his uncle?"

"No."

"Who was his uncle?"

"Mr. Moses Frank."

"How often did you go to the National Pencil factory to see Mr. Frank?"

MANY VISITED HIM.

"I should say fifteen times or more, in connection with B'nai B'rith work."

"Who else besides yourself was with Mr. Frank at the jail?"

"Several friends went down to see him. Sometimes there'd be as many as six or seven there at once."

"Were you one of those who helped to make arrangements to shift the adviser," said Senator Penrose, "and if the administration is being guided by him the sooner his connection with the government is severed the better it will be for the unfortunate Americans residing in Mexico."

The senator had a newspaper article read, consisting of a letter from a Mexican to Felix Diaz, sharply criticising Hale's activities. He advised Senator Bacon he would give the name of the writer to him and the foreign relations committee.

Senator Bacon said he would pay no attention to an anonymous communication. Senator Penrose replied that some of the matters he would set forth in his speech later would have to be treated anonymously, since American citizens would not make statements and subject themselves to attacks of Mexican bandits.

A telegram was read from Lieutenant Governor Reynolds telling of the danger in which his son-in-law and family were and appealing to Senator Penrose for help.

The first resolution went over and then Senator Penrose introduced another calling on the president to direct the secretary of state to transmit to the senate the reports of the consul at Durango covering occurrences since the first of the year. This also was forced to go over and Senator Bacon demanded it be referred to the foreign relations committee.

AMERICANS SLAUGHTERED.

Senator Penrose said he believed the president and Secretary Bryan were trying patriotically to do their duty but "Americans were daily being murdered and slaughtered."

"Here is a prominent citizen of Pennsylvania who may have fallen before bullets of the Mexicans by this time," he said. "I understand over 100 Americans have been killed and their names are on record with the department of state."

Senator Bacon maintained the president was proceeding in good faith to work out the Mexican question and pleaded that he be allowed time. He thought the American people upheld him.

Senator Penrose asserted he was not a jingo, but daily American men were being murdered and American women outraged and it was time to "take action of a police character" to prevent such occurrences.

Mexican Revolutionist Also Asks Intervention

(By Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 15.—The Mexican consul at El Paso reported to the government today that Colonel Jesus Carranza, a brother of Governor Venustiano Carranza, of Coahuila, the head of the revolution, has asked the United States to intervene in Mexico.

John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson, had a conference lasting until a late hour last night with Federico Gamboa, Mexican foreign minister, at Senor Gamboa's private residence. Mr. Lind went and returned unaccompanied.

Several thousand Indians in the Huatusco district of Vera Cruz have revolted according to official reports received here. The Indians are said to have listened to promises made to them by Carranza's agents that the land is to be divided among them. The Indians are poorly armed. The governor of the state of Vera Cruz has sent a mission to try to bring about their pacification.

Detachments of federal troops have been sent from here against bands of adherents of Emiliano Zapata, who have been operating in the neighborhood of Milpa Alta in the federal district southeast of the capital and against a group of rebels at Texcoco and Otumba, northeast of the city.

give up the keys to his iron safe in which they located liquor.

The court of appeals held that the officers of the law had committed a much graver offense than the one which they charged against the accused. Discussing the methods employed by the officers in obtaining evidence against Underwood, the court of appeals' decision says:

"Where a person was arrested on suspicion of keeping on hand intoxicating liquors in his place of business, the arrest being made without a warrant, and the officers, while holding him in illegal custody, violently seized his person and, against his utmost resistance, took from his pocket the keys to his iron safe, and with the keys unlocked the safe, and found therein intoxicating liquors, testimony on his trial for the offense of keeping intoxicating liquors on hand at his place of business, as to the finding of the liquors in his safe should have been excluded, because the evidence was wrongfully obtained by the officers, in criminal violation of the law by an unlawful search and seizure, following an unlawful arrest and the accused was thus compelled to give evidence tending to criminate himself, in violation of the constitutional restriction on the subject."

Chief Judge Hill, in the course of the opinion, says:

"In endeavoring to find evidence sufficient to establish the crime which they suspected he was guilty of, these officers of the law committed much graver offenses than the one of which they suspected the accused. He was suspected of keeping intoxicating liquors on hand at his place of business, an offense malum prohibitum. They illegally deprived him of his liberty, they searched his premises illegally, they made an assault and battery upon his person, and, in so doing, they violently pulled down the constitutional bulwarks which protected him as a citizen, both as to his person and as to his property.

"The language of Chief Justice Beckley in Rawls vs. State, 9 Ga. A. 366, is here pertinent. 'The law ought to hold out no encouragement to violent and lawless men to commit crime for the sake of detecting a previous crime and bringing the offender to punishment. The law should never suffer itself to become an enemy or antagonist to its own reign.' Here, under the facts, was a multiplication of crimes committed by the officers of the law, crimes against the inherent rights of the citizen, secured by the constitution of this state, in order that a comparatively venial offense, made so by statute, but not inherently an offense, could be detected.

"If such means can be adopted in the detection of crime and approved by the courts, the law would not only be antagonistic to its own reign, but a state of anarchy would exist.

"The two provisions of the constitution which we have been discussing appear in the fundamental law of every state of this union, as well as in the federal constitution. They are the sacred civil jewels which have come down to us from an English ancestry, forced from the unwilling hand of tyranny by the apostles of personal liberty and personal security. They are hallowed by the blood of a thousand struggles, and were stored away for safe-keeping in the casket of the constitution. It is infidelity to forget them; it is sacrilege to disregard them; it is despotic to trample upon them. They are given as a sacred trust into the keeping of the courts, who should with sleepless vigilance guard these priceless gifts of a free government. We hear and read much of the lawlessness of the people. One of the most dangerous manifestations of this evil is the lawlessness of the ministers of the law.

"This court knows and fully appreciates the delicate and difficult task of those who are charged with the duty of detecting crime and apprehending criminals, and it will uphold them in the most vigilant legal discharge of all their duties, but it utterly repudiates the doctrine that these important duties cannot be successfully performed without the use of illegal and despotic measures. It is not true that in the effort to detect crime and to punish the criminal, 'the end justifies the means.'

"This is especially not true when the means adopted are violative of the very essence of constitutional free government. Neither the liberty of the citizen nor the sanctity of his home should be invaded without legal warrant. Suspicion is no substitute for a legal warrant, and the badge of authority is the emblem of law and order, and gives no right to the wearer to arrest without warrant, imprison without authority and torture without mercy.

"Any compulsory discovery of self-incriminating evidence is abhorrent to a proper sense of justice and is intolerable to American manhood. What is commonly known as the methods of the 'third degree' so frequently used by zealous officials or interested detectives may be an appropriate part of that jurisprudence which holds that every man is guilty when accused of crime until he proves his innocence, but it has no place in the jurisprudence of a land where the cardinal principle of humanity and justice is that every man is presumed to be innocent until his guilt is shown by legal evidence beyond a reasonable doubt. These arbitrary methods of discovering crime are subversive of the fundamental principles of law, destructive of the indefeasible rights of personal liberty, personal security, and private property, and place at the mercy of every petty official and conscienceless criminal the life, liberty and reputation of the citizen.

"They flourished in the dark days of the star chamber and the Spanish inquisition, but could not exist in the clear atmosphere of political liberty and personal freedom. Besides, these instruments of oppression are successful only when used against the ignorant or the wicked. The former can not combat the artifice and tricks of the experienced official, and the latter will not hesitate to involve the innocent to himself escape detection. Therefore courts of justice will not approve such methods to discover crime, and the law, seeking pure and impartial sources of evidence, will refuse to admit compulsory confessions of guilt and condemns as dangerous, untrustworthy and without probative value testimony against others obtained by the use of physical torture or mental coercion.

"In the instant case the only evidence of guilt having been discovered in the forcible violation of the constitutional provision that no man shall be compelled to give testimony that in any manner tends to criminate himself, the conviction was unlawful."

breaks developed in the feed pipes which carry the gasoline. This allowed the drippings to fall on the exhaust pipe, which gets almost red hot when the car is running fast; and just as the car pulled into the station the drippings ignited.

The passengers were hurried out. The small feed tank, carrying two and one-half gallons of gasoline, exploded first. This increased the heat and flames and fifty-six gallons of gasoline in the storage tank were boiling and sizzling. The tank exploded forty-five minutes after the first blaze, and a column of flames seventy-five feet high shot up into the air.

Car No. 2 has had a number of accidents, and the line has come to regard is as hoodooed. When it was shipped it was wrecked en route, and after it got here so many smaller accidents happened to it that it was finally sent to the factory to be rebuilt. Since its return to the line it has been considered the best car, but it was still unlucky.

T. O. Bishop was the motorman on the car at the time it caught fire, and C. B. Milam was conductor.

The car was valued at $8,000, and carried an insurance of $4,000.

FOUR MEN MEET DEATH IN FALL OF 100 FEET

Workmen on Structure Over the Mississippi River Are Killed

(By Associated Press.)

MEMPHIS, Aug. 15.—Four men were plunged to death yesterday when a temporary structure on which they were working in repairing the Mississippi river bridge gave way and they fell 100 feet. The dead:

J. R. M'MEEN, blacksmith, Springfield, Mo.

W. R. HOSTLER, blacksmith helper, Memphis, Tenn.

W. M. NIGLES, bridge laborer, Great Falls, Mont.

L. W. CHAUDETTE, laborer, Memphis, enn.

The dead men were part of a force of 100 engaged in overhauling the bridge. According to reports to Superintendent Majors, of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad, employing the men, the scaffolding on which the men were working gave way without warning. The bodies were rushed to hospitals in this city.

An investigation as to the cause of the accident is being made.

LEESBURG MARSHAL IS HURT IN JUMP FROM AUTO

ALBANY, Ga., Aug. 15.—H. B. Logan, marshal of Leesburg, while riding in an automobile in search of Dock Mathis, the negro who Monday night killed R. L. Jossey in Lee county, jumped out of an automobile running thirty-five miles an hour and was badly injured at 3 o'clock this morning.

Logan had been up for two nights. He was sitting on the back seat when he suddenly stood up and made some remark about having to get out and jumped from the side of the car.

It is believed he was asleep when he jumped, which fact alone saved his life, as his body was limp when he fell. He was brought to Albany and then taken to his home in Leesburg.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SOUTH.
J. S. FRENCH, Pastor.
Atlanta, Ga.

Col. J. C. Woodward, College Park, Ga.

My Dear Col. Woodward: I am greatly pleased with the progress made by my son during his attendance of the past year at the Georgia Military Academy, and with the physical as well as mental development he shows. I am sure I could not have selected another school which would have been more satisfactory, and I only regret that the "time limit" of my church compels me to remove this fall so that I can not have him return.

I sincerely congratulate you on the school you have built up, and hope for you all possible success in the future.

Very truly, J. S. FRENCH.

DON'T BLAST FOR HEALTH!

Use PODOLAX. Don't dynamite the bowels with dangerous calomel or violent saline purgatives. Their disastrous effects will far outweigh any good they might do you. They'll lash the liver into a very spasm of energy for the moment, but you'll pay for it! The reaction will come close on its heels. Mr. Liver will say: "Very well. I've done a full week's work this one day. I'm simply exhausted. The balance of this week I'll rest up." Then what? Just this: poison will start, and grow, and pile up mountain high in your system because Mr. Liver is taking that vacation. One weakness breeds another. Next thing will be upset stomach, indigestion—nausea at the very thought of food; sick-headache, constipation and—but that's enough. You're worse off, you see, than you were before.

PODOLAX doesn't play the game that way. You're not bluffed into believing that you've found a true friend—and then left in the lurch. Not a bit of it. PODOLAX will give you every benefit you can possibly get from calomel, salts, castor oil, nasty tasting mineral water, pills or whatever may be your choice of a Purgative. And right where all other remedies stop, PODOLAX will BEGIN the best and most important part of its work—the part of the work which removes the CAUSE of your trouble. It will give a healthy stimulus to every secretion of the liver and stomach and quickly build you back to perfect health. It's gentle in action, sure in result. Get it at your Druggist's now. Take a little at bedtime. You'll be smiling in the morning. PODOLAX tastes good and has no constipating after-effects.

Godbye, legislature. Officially summer is over.

There is need of some sort of recall in New York state.

Get-rich-quick Wallingfords had better give Georgia a wide berth hereafter.

Justice to Motherhood.

The Legislature has earned the public approval by its enactment of a bill which recognizes the right of mothers to an equal claim with fathers for the custody of minor children. This just and wholesome measure frees the Georgia law from a discrimination that is abhorrent to the thought of modern times and enlightened people. Though the practical wisdom of our courts has for the most part tempered the harshness of a statute that was handed down from the darker times of old England, the fact remained that under the letter of the law a mother's right to the possession of her child, in cases of domestic controversy, was unconsidered. The new law is admirably simple and fair; its substance is contained in the following paragraph:

"In all cases where the custody of any minor child or children is involved between the parents there shall be no prima facie right to the custody of such child or children in the father; but the court hearing such issue of custody may exercise its sound discretion, taking into consideration all the circumstances of the case, as to whose custody today such child or children shall be awarded, the duty of the court being in all such cases in exercising such discretion to look to and determine solely what is for the best interests of the child or children and what will best promote their welfare and happiness."

The virtue of the measure lies in the fact that it removes the discrimination which hitherto has lodged against the mother and, while placing both parents on an equality, gives prime consideration to "the welfare and happiness of the child." From the reasonableness and righteousness of such a law, there can be no fair-minded dissent.

The bill passed both Houses by substantial majorities, only two votes being recorded against it in the Senate. It was drafted by Senator L. L. Smith as a substitute for a measure originally introduced in the House by Representative John Y. Smith, of Fulton, and S. L. Olive, of Richmond. Particular credit for their able advocacy of this bill is due Messrs. Smith, Olive, Wohlwender, Miller and Fowler, of the House, and Senators Allen, McNeil, Irwin, Smith, Burtz and Converse, of the Senate.

Congress has determined to stay in session, let the snow fall where it may.

It makes us feel even cooler to think that the sun's ray are setting wheat fields afire out west.

International Support For Our Mexican Policy

It is a significant and reassuring fact that England and Japan, nations which hitherto have recognized the Huerta government in Mexico, are now lending their tacit support to the diplomatic program which the Washington administration has undertaken. The British foreign office clearly intimates its recognition of Huerta was hartened, if not inspired, by a congratulatory speech made by Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson to the provisional president. The ambassador's tone and words were naturally constrained as indicating the policy of the United States. Had it been known at the time that he was distorting and, indeed, roundly misrepresenting the attitude of our Government, England and other foreign nations as well would doubtless have gone more slowly. Thus it was evidently not the purpose of England to embarrass the United States or to set up a Mexican policy at variance with our own.

Equally significant is Japan's refusal to receive Felix Diaz, Huerta's emissary to Tokyo. There have been all manner of rabid rumors here of late concerning the possible influence which Japan might seek to exert in Mexico; it has even been hinted that Japan would seize upon the demoralized conditions across the Rio Grande to retaliate upon the United States for the late California unpleasantness. But her positive refusal to receive Huerta's spokesman should suffice to silence such wild babble. It is, indeed, a declaration of moral sympathy with the peaceful policy which our Government is now seeking to put into effect.

All foreign governments, as dispatches relate, now recognize that the Mexican problem is peculiarly within the sphere of American diplomacy. President Wilson's program is thus much strengthened and the wisdom of the course he has pursued is clearly proved.

Still, the legislature couldn't have been expected to break such an important precedent as the final night session.

We shiver to think how the country would have pulled through thus far with any of these as presidents: Roosevelt, Taft, Harmon, or Champ Clark.

Good Work Against a Bad Bill.

The people of Georgia are especially indebted to those members of the Senate who by their firm and resourceful opposition to a bill, proposing that primaries should be held not later than June the fifteenth preceding a general election, saved the State from the political corruption and the injustice which the enactment of that outrageous measure would inevitably have invited. The filibuster led by Senator G. Y. Harrell, of the twelfth district, and skillfully supported by Senators Elkins, McNeil, Allen and others who realized the public danger that was imminent, resulted in the tabling of the bill until the session of 1914. In the meantime, the people will doubtless become fully aware of the sinister meaning of this attempt to change the date of primaries and will condemn it so forcefully that it will be defeated once and for all.

The manifest purpose of the bill was to nullify the registration law which now safeguards the purity of the Georgia ballot and protects the interests of rightful voters. There have been divers reactionary efforts to repeal this law but in each instance they have failed because the rank and file of citizens recognize that adequate requirements for registration are essential, if our primaries are to be spared the degrading influence of illegal and purchasable votes. Having despaired of their open fight against this wholesome law, its enemies sought in the hurried, eleventh hour of the recent Legislative session to slip through a bill which craftily avoided any reference to the registration system itself but which would effectually rob that system of its force.

Their scheme was to move the date of the primary back to the limit of the registration period, so that the registrars would have little or no time in which to purge their lists of unqualified names. The bill provided that primaries should be held not later than June the fifteenth; it made no provision as to how early they might be held. Thus it would have been possible to order a primary for the very day following the closing of the registration books. Thus, too, the date of the primary would have been fixed for a season of the year when farmers find it well-nigh impossible to leave their crops, and the result would have been the disbarment of a very large element of our rural citizenship from a fair participation in the government of the State.

The House would never have permitted the passage of so unjust and dangerous a measure had its members had time and opportunity to realize the import of the matter in hand. But, as we have said, the bill was smuggled through under false colors without a chance for due consideration or debate.

Hence those members of the Senate who challenged this evil measure when it came before that body and who stood unbending until they were assured it would be tabled, rendered a service that was particularly opportune and valuable. The people have thus been afforded an opportunity to assert themselves against a scheme to rob them of their rights.

It is not what a man believes but how often he can change his belief that counts with Eugene. Whether he began as a Republican or a Democrat he himself perhaps has forgotten but everyone remembers that his notoriety has grown through a steady series of party "flops."

A few years ago when the Democratic tide was running high, Mr. Foss abandoned his Republican brethren and ran for Congress on the Democratic ticket. He was elected and shortly thereafter sought the Democratic nomination for the governorship and was again successful. But since the administration at Washington has proved its purpose and its capacity to put Democratic principles genuinely into effect, Governor Foss has grown very much disturbed over certain tariff-pampered interests in which he is personally concerned; and now he intimates that he will seek the Republican nomination for the governorship at next month's primaries.

OUR DAILY BREAD

III.—THE MODERN BAKERY.

By Frederic J. Haskin

Nothing in the world will so incline the average person toward a diet of bread as a visit to a well equipped modern bakery such as may be found in most of the large towns and cities. All doubts as to the purity of the product is dispelled by the shining walls and white floors, the polished metals and glistening glass, which surround all baking operations. The modern bakery is absolutely a daylight establishment with plenty of sunny windows. The dark, gloomy basement bakery belongs to a former age. It is out of place in the present. No matter how clean its proprietor may endeavor to keep it, the product of the underground bakery is less apt to be germ free than that coming from the surface building which has its air purified and lightened by the sun each day.

The Master Bakers' association has declared in favor of the bakery which is above ground, and despite the fact that excellent results sometimes have been obtained in the old basement shops, these are rapidly being done away with. The model bakery plant is at least two stories high in order that a free circulation of air may be obtained. The large bakeries may have three or four stories, each one of which is devoted to a special part of the bread making process.

The keynote of a good bakery is absolute cleanliness. Usually everything is as nearly pure white as possible. The walls are apt to be of shining white tiles. Some bakers prefer a wood floor, but in that case it is scrubbed daily so that it is as nearly white as soap and water can make it. The great mixing troughs are of white enameled steel, and many of the newest ovens are also built of white tiles with the doors of enameled steel, so that no dark iron or red brick is visible. Other bakers prefer the brick ovens or the steel portable ovens without enamel, but in any case their absolute cleanliness is apparent to the most casual observer.

In every large bakery there is a great storeroom in which hundreds of thousands of barrels of flour are kept in order that the flour may be properly aged before being used as well as to provide ample reserve stock. Contrary to popular belief this flour is not the highest grade upon the market, and bears the trademark of the firms to which the housewife pays the highest price for the flour consumed in her own kitchen. Only the best flour will be accepted by the modern baker, and, because he is learning to know the market and buys in such great quantities, he is able to secure a finer and more uniform quality of flour than it is possible for the housewife to buy.

The flour for baking bread is run through a special screen of silk bolting cloth to remove the last vestige of roughness. This bolted flour is then raised into large hoppers from which it is weighed into the big mixing tanks with the requisite water, yeast, salt, sugar and lard required by the formula. Each ingredient is weighed with scientific exactitude. The mixing usually is done by electric power and the sponge is left to raise at a temperature which is kept absolutely uniform.

The mixing room in which the great masses of dough are mixed by specially devised machinery, in a manner calculated to develop the highest amount of gluten, is maintained at a lower temperature than the fermenting or raising room. The kneaded or mixed dough is transferred into huge steel fermenting troughs in the room used for that purpose. Here the temperature is preserved at whatever stage desired for the especial dough which is bing developed or fermented.

• • •

Th perfectly raised dough is then passed out into the molding room where it is made up into the various kind of bread and rolls produced by the bakery. Many ingenious machines are in use in this room, for the modern baker eliminates as far as possible the contact of the dough with the human hand.

A machine, known as a dividing machine, for separating dough mass into loaves, is especially interesting. A sufficient quantity of dough is deposited into a hopper, from which the dough finally passes into the dividing mechanism of the machine. Six loaves of equal weight are automatically divided, and from there are passed on to the automatic proofing and molding machine.

Another separating machine of equal interest is one into which a portion of dough is deposited. A stool lid clamps down upon it and after the pressing of a lever pressure is brought to bear upon this portion of the dough, the lid is opened and the once solid portion of the dough is divided into thirty-six equal parts. This work is carried on at a rapid speed.

Most bread requires very little handling. In fact, it is only the fancy breads that require handling by hand. Those breads known as Vienna bread, Cottage bread and breads that are baked on the hearth of the oven, are molded and handled by hand.

Part of the bread from the molding department is run through automatic proofing machines and finally, in the pans, which are put upon steel racks. These are then transferred to steam-heated proofing rooms, where the temperature and humidity is controlled. The proofing of the dough at this stage is known in the home as the second "raising" just before baking.

• • •

The modern baker must be a scientific chemist and his bakery equipment must include a chemical laboratory in which various sorts of tests can be made accurately. Seldom if ever do two shipments of flour have precisely the same chemical composition. The wheat may vary from season to season because of some chemical change in the soil. The slightest difference in the milling process may affect the flour. The modern baker takes no chances. Each new flour is tested in the laboratory and special formula prepared for it alone. Sample loaves of bread from the formula are baked in the laboratory in order that the chemist may know absolutely what result he may expect.

The machines and instruments supplied to aid the modern baker are almost without number. The mixing machines in themselves represent limitless variety. One of these, designed by one of the largest bakery establishments in the country, is credited with having been largely influential in bringing about the improved quality in baker's bread so noticeable within the last decade. This machine is operated by electricity so than the operator, by simply pressing a lever, can give a mass of dough as many thousand movements or revolutions as the directions call for. By this invention one man in charge of a mixing room can direct the kneading or mixing of dough sufficient for thousands of loaves. This machine has made it possible to secure 22 per cent more gluten from a given quantity of flour than by any other method. Chemists and scientists agree that the bread made from it is more digestible and also more nutritious.

My dear Prunella: In reply to your recent inquiry respecting the fitness of this place for the spending of a few weeks' vacation, permit me to state that it is peculiarly fit for that purpose, being known as a summer resort and having every evidence to substantiate that reputation, such as grass, trees, lake, sky and food such as is meant for regular human beings. There used to be here a golf links, tennis courts, autobus and motor boats, but these disappeared, unfortunately, with the gentleman who used to prepare the prospectuses in former years, and who now is selling stock for a company that manufactures a machine to remove ink spots from wallpaper. I hope that I may have the pleasure of seeing you soon. Yours faithfully,

UNNOTED HEROISM

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

The world is full of unnoted heroism.

That is the best kind. Spectacular heorism is always a little tainted. The man who stops a runaway horse in the city street, or the man who dives and rescues a drowning woman, or the soldier who dashes forward in the face of death, does well; but there is a better type.

Many can act nobly under the spur of sudden impulse and with an inspiring audience; but to live upon the high plane of self-sacrifice daily takes finer fiber.

There is the workman who brings home his entire week's pay every Saturday night, that it may be used for the care of his wife and children, and that the balance be put in the savings bank. Some look on him as tame and dull, a routiner with no spirit; but he would like to go to the ball game as well as any man to take his beer in the saloon and crack jokes with the boys, and to buy for himself the expensive luxuries men enjoy. He quietly subdues himself in many things; heroism with him is a rule and not an exception; it is of the kind the world passes by, often misjudges and despises.

And how many women, unknown and unpraised, are living days of constant devotion to high purpose! They are hidden in homes, they are persecuted by petty economies, they have given up tastes soul-deep and renounced ambitions dear as life, just to be faithful and loyal in the small corner where destiny has placed them.

What a wonderful, divine thing is a human being! Capable of how serene heights of greatness!

Whoever would see this, however, must himself be great, for small souls all men are worms and spiders.

And against what odds the common man maintains his character! Sensational newspapers pour into his consciousness their daily gathering of perversion, violence and greed; novels exploit their stories of the idle and privileged class and the morbidities of passion; almost every cult and ism exclaims against the innate evil of men and women; yet he clings to his reverences, does his work and keeps clean.

The most admirable nobility is that of the common run of people. The mass of men is better than any class of men.

You can bribe, debauch and ruin this or that group; you cannot corrupt a whole people.

It is mankind that is steadily, persistently good. It is humanity that rejects all poisons. It is the human race that best reflects the faces of the gods.

If any one would drink of the unfailing spring of optimism, feed on the treasures of hope, learn the secret of wholesome faith, and find that sweet, strong quality in spirit that corresponds to the sanity and peace found in nature, let him study to know and to love the common people, for theirs are the infinite resources, the rich supplies of unnoted heroism.

Where Science Is Uncertain

(Kansas City Star.)

We think we know a good deal about this world that we look out upon, that we touch and taste and smell and hear and see. Science has been busy for centuries reducing it to its lowest terms and giving us accurate descriptions of everything about us.

We think we know. But do we?

We look at a wonderful sunset. Is it merely a series of other vibrations? There is a breaking down of a multitude of highly organized chemical compounds? But is that an adequate description of the death of a friend?

We come to feel that science fails to give a true account of the world and that a painting, a piece of music, a poem, gives a clearer insight into the real meaning of things than any treatise on geology or physics or chemistry.

But even science itself is not certain of the materials it is dealing with. Time and space are the framework it uses, and science has felt fairly confident that it knew all about them. But in the last few years it has become doubtful. Sir Isaac Newton described space as rigid and time as flowing at a constant rate. These ideas have been contradicted by recent mathematical work.

If you are walking toward a man who is walking toward you, his motion toward you would be twice as fast as his motion toward a stationary fence post. In the same way, if were walking toward a thunder storm, the light waves from the lightning flashes would be slightly faster for you than for a friend who was standing still. Of course, the difference would be very small indeed, but you would feel certain that it would exist. But some eminent European physicists, who have been experimenting with such measurements, have found that this expected difference isn't there. In other words, space and time are different for two observers, one moving and the other at rest.

It always has been assumed that the distance between two points, or the interval of time between two events, was the same for all persons, whether they were sitting in rocking chairs or traveling on express trains. Now the physicists are beginning to suspect that this is not so, and that time and space really are elastic, contracting and expanding, in accordance with the situation of the observer. A discussion of this recent work will be found in H. Wilden Carr's little book, "The Problem of Truth," published by the Dodge Publishing company.

The matter is referred to here to indicate the uncertainties of science in dealing with the apparently plain data presented by the senses. Science is a convenient method of bookkeeping. It is far from a complete description of the real world about us.

Future Cotton Contracts A Help To The Farmer

The Dallas News prints the following:

KAUFMAN COUNTY, Tex., July 31.—As a farmer I desire to express my appreciation of the article in the News of yesterday on Senator Clark's bill taxing the cotton exchanges. The idea that the farmers are opposed to the exchanges is not true. The great majority of them know but little of this matter and care less. A few political farmers, whose experience on the farm is very limited, have been trying to create sentiment on this subject merely as an issue which they hope to get into office on. I think I have had some experience on the farm. In 1846 I went with my father to Vicksburg and saw him sell good cotton at 4 cents per pound. I have his account of sales from 1850 to 1860. I find that the average price through those years was barely 8 cents. And there were no exchanges then. Cotton was sold directly to the spinner through the commission merchant. In 1874 I came to Texas and began to farm here in Kaufman county. I have been actively engaged in the business ever since, and only put down my hoe to write this letter to the News.

I feel that this is a tremendous issue, and it is my honest judgment that the proposed bill would prove a calamity so far-reaching that children yet unborn would rue its passage. The farmer has many wise friends to advise him in his business; I thank them one and all. But I prefer to work out my own salvation. And I ask nothing of this great government but to be let alone, with the single privilege of buying where I can buy the cheapest and selling where I can get the best price.

As for our friends, I think our truest are the little birds that destroy the depredating insect, and the speculator that competes with the spinner for our cotton. The sportsman has about killed the birds and the politicians would now kill the speculator.

WAYWARD GIRLS' HOME APPROVED BY SENATE

Assembly Appropriates $20,000 for Purpose, Despite Opposition of Senator Stark

The state senate Thursday afternoon passed the house bill establishing a home for wayward girls in Georgia, with an amendment which cut the house appropriation from $30,000 to $20,000, of which amount $10,000 is to be used for building purposes and $10,000 for maintenance. The house later concurred in the senate's action and the bill went to the governor for his signature.

The bill passed only after a warm wordy war in the senate, in the course of which Senator Stark declared that he was emphatically against establishing the home, which, he said, would be merely for women that Chief Beavers had run out of Atlanta;" while Senators Tarver and Elkins scored Stark for his attitude.

When the bill first came up Senator Stark introduced an amendment in a spirit of levity which provided that "the tax for appropriation shall be collected only from the unmarried men of Georgia of the age of twenty-one or over." The amendment was, of course, ruled out by the chair.

"GIRLS, DOGS AND CATS."

When Senator Stark took the floor he said in part:

"Senators, I'm against this bill. If you establish this training school it will really be for women that Chief Beavers has run out of Atlanta. We are too extravagant with the state's money; but the time will come in Georgia when we legislators will have to divorce ouselves from these good women who congregate around here and lobby for bills. These women will come up here next and lobby for hospitals for dogs and cats.

"I don't know of any satisfactory disposal we can make of young boys and girls. In my own county is a school for wayward boys and it doesn't do any good. They wanted $75,000 for this home at first, and there's no telling how much they will want before they get through. I say don't let's give 'em anything!"

Senator Tarver spoke next.

"It is indeed startling," he said, "to hear on the floor of this chamber a senator treating this subject with levity, comparing girls with dogs and cats. At Milledgeville there is established an institution which cares for sixty-one white boys, and it is a wonderful institution. We should be proud of it. We have a negro reformatory and no senators get up here and object to paying its annual appropriation. You care for negroes, for young boys, and yet this senator gets up here and says you might as well provide for dogs and cats as girls. This senator says, 'don't appropriate a few thousands, let these girls go, and care for the boys and the negroes, let them go on in the way of crime and not do a thing about it.'

Senator Foster spoke for the bill, declaring that the state stood indicted of forcing girls into crime if the appropriation was not made, that they would find their way into houses of prostitution because the state forced them into such a life.

GIRLS AND DOLLARS.

Senator Elkins replied to Senator Stark:

"I find the chairman of the appropriations committee," he said, "estimating the dollars and cents the lives of Georgia's girls. He goes off into levity in considering this, the most important bill we have had before us this year. He says that we should not appropriate $30,000 to save the young girls of this state, but he is willing to save the cattle, the corn, the cotton. Yes, he preaches economy, but you can preach economy so long that you get money crazy. This home is to be formatory and reformatory both. Not only to reform those who have gone wrong but to form their characters as well. When the ice crusade went over Atlanta one girl was found playing dolls—she was young.

"The senator jokes about us bachelor senators. I am a bachelor, I do not know the cry of little children but I cannot laugh at this question as I have seen some of the fathers of this house do. Be men, senators, and vote for this bill."

The bill passed 32 to 0, although the appropriation was cut.

Master of Gate City Lodge Elected by Fifth District Convention

CONYERS, Ga., Aug. 15.—The annual convention of the fifth distict of Georgia Masons at its session here Thursday named J. LeRoy Duncan, worshipful master of Gate City lodge, No. 2, of Atlanta, worshipful master of the fifth district convention. Fairburn was selected as the next pace of meeting.

Other officers named are:

Senior warden, Horace Grant, E. A. Minor lodge, Atlanta.

Junior warden, J. D. McHann, Pythagoras lodge, Decatur.

Secretary and treasurer, Marcellus Anderson, Battle Hill lodge, Atlanta.

Senior deacon, Joseph Gregg, Jr., Gate City lodge, No. 2, Atlanta.

Other officers will be appointed later.

The three degrees were conferred in full form at the convention by officers of Gate City lodge, Piedmont lodge and Palestine lodges of Atlanta.

Worshipful Master Duncan is one of the most prominent Masons of Georgia, and has held many other offices of the order in addition to being master of Gate City lodge.

Noon, who is a railway employe here, saw the name written by the young woman's brother, wrote to Miss Barker and a correspondence sprang up which ended in the marriage. Miss Barker came to Minneapolis Monday.

PANAMA EXCAVATION IS PROGRESSING RAPIDLY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The isthmian canal commission announced today that the total amount of excavation from the Panama canal in July was 3,241,968 cubic yards as against 2,650,424 cubic yards in June, the average daily output being 124,691 yards. Concrete laid in July totaled 17,568 cubic yards as against 12,642 cubic yards in the previous month.

EARLY PRIMARY BILL IS KILLED BY HARRELL

His Filibuster Compels Advocates of House Measure to Give Up

Efforts to resuscitate the undesirable primary bill which was pased in the house Monday and was reported unfavorably to the senate Wednesday morning were nipped in the bud Wednesday afternoon, when Senator Harrell, of the Twelfth, by beginning a filibuster, compelled the advocates of the new bill to agree to table it until the next session of the legislature.

The new measure was adversely reported Wednesday morning and the report was adopted, but its friends succeeded at the afternoon session of the senate in having passed two motions, one to reconsider the report, and the other to have a second reading of the bill.

Senator Harrell was on his feet in a moment with a motion to postpone action on the bill until 10 o'clock Thursday morning. He announced that he would start a filibuster by speaking on this motion, and keep on speaking until the hour of adjournment at 5 o'clock.

He spoke until 4:35 o'clock, when the advocates of the motion agreed to give up.

Senator Harrell, however, would not yield the floor until he had the personal assurance of the president of the senate that the bill would not be brought up again at this session.

Senator Harrell held that the new bill would emasculate the good of the present registration bill, and in support of his contention read an editorial in Wednesday's Journal.

HAIL RUINS FARMERS OF STEPHENS COUNTY

100 Persons Reported in Want Because of Crop-Destroying Visitation

One hundred people of Stephens county are destitute, their crops entirely destroyed, the question of livelihood confronts them, and their feeble condition cannot supply an answer.

About five or six miles out of Toccoa a terrific hail storm ravaged the crops for an area of several square miles. The storm occurred the night of the fifth of August. The farmers had excellent crops, the best in years, and a prosperous harvest was in store when the hail storm broke and ruined everything.

The people are in straitened circumstances, bills for their supplies have to be met and a living must be made for families. They appealed to the governor through their representative, Mr. Hayes. Letters have been written to the Georgia senators and representatives in Washington in hopes of obtaining federal aid.

It is doubtful if either state or federal aid can be obtained.

School Wants Room

Friends of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute, a colored school at 78 Griffin street, are asking for funds with which to buy a four-room cottage on the corner of Neal and Griffin street, in order that the school may have more room in which laundry work and domestic science may be taught. The school opens September 24, and wishes to obtain the cottage by that time.

INVESTMENT BILL IS KILLED BY CLOSE VOTE

Bill Regulating Power of Insurance Commissioner Turned Down

A bill introduced by Senator W. D. McNeil, of the Twenty-second district, defining the character of investments to be made by insurance companies organized under the Georgia laws, thus taking this power from the comptroller general or insurance commissioner, was killed in the house Thursday by the vote of 64 to 70.

The measure, as it came to the house, specified the character of investments to be made by the state companies, limiting such investments to not over $30,000 in any one security.

The bill was supported by Representatives Wallace Miller, of Bibb, and L. S. Ledbetter, of Polk. Messrs. Wohlwender and Swift, of Muscogee, opposed it.

A motion of Mr. Ledbetter to reconsider the action of the house in order that it may be possible to lay the bill on the table was last 84 to 33.

AWAIT WORD FROM DEAD MAN'S FRIENDS

The body of A. S. Brown, who committed suicide Wednesday night, is at Bloomfield's chapel and has as yet not been identified. Wires have been sent to Jacksonville, Fla., where it is believed the man lived, but the authorities there have not been able to locate any of the man's relatives at the address left on a note in his pocket.

The police here received a telephone message from W. T. Brown, of Jacksonville, Fla., for a description of the man who he thought was an uncle of his. It is believed that there were relatives living in Atlanta, but all efforts made to locate them failed.

HEAL BABY'S ITCHING SKIN WITH RESINOL

For babies tortured by eczema, prickly heat, teething rash, or other itching, burning skin eruption, there is instant relief in a warm bath with Resinol Soap and a gentle application of Resinol Ointment. The itching and scratching stop at once, baby can sleep, and soon the tormented little skin becomes clear and healthy again. The Resinol treatment is so absolutely free from anything that could injure the tenderest skin, that it can be used on even the youngest infant.

Resinol Soap for baby's daily bath will usually prevent any skin trouble and chafing because it contains the soothing, healing Resinol medication. Doctors have prescribed Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap for eighteen years and druggists everywhere sell them. Trial free; Dept. 7-P, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.—(Advt.)

Is It Backsliding?

UNLESS it is making the right kind of progress, it's going backward, sure as you live.

¶ And your town isn't making the right kind of progress unless the health conditions, the sanitation, the lighting, the paving, and other physical aspects are what they ought to be.

¶ Has your town correct sewerage?

¶ Is the water supply pure and plentiful?

¶ Is fever liable to break out and take toll of the little children? Are there disease-breeding places to menace the homes of your people?

¶ Is the lighting system adequate to the needs of a wide-awake American town?

¶ Are the paving conditions the kind you ought to have?

¶ The best paying investment any town can make is to spend money enough to make itself a good place to live in.

IMPROVEMENTS that make for the health and comfort of the people are the biggest dividend-producers on earth.

¶ Efficient work, efficient citizenship, efficient service to the community are possible only when the physical conditions are what they should be.

MEN AND RELIGION BULLETIN NO. 75

Men of Georgia

"For the Son of Man Is Come to Seek and to Save That Which Was Lost."
Luke 19:10

The House gave $30,000 to the reformatory for girls by House Bill No. 4.

The Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, of which SENATOR W. W. STARK is Chairman, offered two amendments to the Bill. Each was designed to cut off $10,000 from the already slender appropriation. The Bill had originally provided $75,000.

The Senate agreed to one amendment—the other it killed—leaving the appropriation $20,000, which will enable the State to make a good beginning.

But SENATOR STARK fought even this. He sent an amendment to the desk. The clerk read it.

NONE LAUGHED. FEW SMILED.

The Senate's President ruled the amendment out of order.

The purpose of it was only to ridicule the idea of the Bill.

SENATOR STARK said further that if the measure were made the law, next year would come committees urging the State to take care of CATS AND DOGS as well as GIRLS.

Again none laughed. Few smiled.

But many thanked God for the MANHOOD OF THE MAJORITY of Georgia.

Men were thinking, not of ribald salaciousness—but of the girl—the pitiable child whose life and soul depend upon such an home—

They were recalling the thousands of dollars given to the care of hogs and cattle, and to the killing of bugs. They resented the sneer at helping children—even though the children be girls.

SENATOR TARVER demonstrated that Georgia does not believe in damning children.

Likewise did SENATOR FOSTER.

As did SENATOR HUIE.

And SENATOR ELKIN by his words revealed the unutterable emptiness of the sneering amendment.

SENATORS JONES and DUBOSE spoke for suffering humanity.

But SENATOR M'GREGOR opposed the measure. Economy—the saving of a dollar—was his cry—

Nevertheless, the call of the "Ayes" and "Nays" disclosed that thirty-two Senators of Georgia believe in protecting and saving girls. Only ten voted against the Bill. And it was passed.

Friends rushed it across the Capitol to the House.

SPEAKER BURWELL called the House to order. JOHN Y. SMITH, of Fulton, moved that the House concur in the action of the Senate.

PICQUET, of Richmond, obtained the floor.

He attacked the Bill. He tried to amend it.

WIMBERLY, of Bibb, replied to him in words that burned.

SHUPTRINE, a friend of the measure, interrupted WIMBERLY to ask:

"Do you think there is a chance of this House accepting that amendment?"

"No," he thundered. "Not if there are any men with red blood in their veins on the floor of this House."

"Then don't let's argue. Vote," said SHUPTRINE.

And SPEAKER BURWELL put the question.

The hall reverberated with a chorus of "Ayes"—the one hundred and fifteen who originally voted for the measure had gathered other men—the House was almost a unit for HOUSE BILL NO. 4.

Thank God for this!

A list of the men who have helped in this—AND TO MAKE PROBATION A PART OF THE LAW OF GEORGIA—would include two-thirds of the members of both houses.

Doing notable work were Olive, Myrick, Wright, Blackburn, Nunnally, Culpepper, Jones of Coweta, Hollberg, Davidson, Mills and Gower, as well as those named above.

But Georgia owes not only these—she owes every member of the House and Senate who voted for these measures a debt of gratitude.

God will reward.

And the saved boy and girl will call them blessed.

BULLISH PRIVATE CROP REPORT CAUSED ADVANCE

Market in New York Closed 19 to 22 Points Higher Than the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—A private report making the condition of the cotton crop 78.4, against 68.1 two weeks ago, caused a sensational advance covering movements of this morning. Opened firm at an advance of 7 to 10 points. Higher cables were attributed to the same influence, but the advance encountered a good deal of cotton and prices eased off 2 or 3 points. Private wire inquiries further light scattering showers in the southwest and rolling was supposed to be inspired by a bearish view of spinners' attitude.

Prices became firm later in the morning on official forecast for fair weather in the southwest. The market at midday was about 19 to 24 points net higher. Estimated receipts today 1,900 bales.

The market was firm during the early afternoon on continued covering and bullish private reports from Louisiana and Texas. Rains were reported as from the southwest. Prices ruled about 17 to 19 points net higher.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 15.—Cotton futures opened steady at an advance of 3 to 6 points on good sales and a good trade demand. Favorable crop accounts and reports of deterioration through drouth and rain from many points in Texas and caused buying for both accounts. The forecast of general fair weather for the entire western half of the belt caused nervous business among shorts as it was taken to mean that shaking for breaking the drouth in the immediate future were small. At the end of the first half of business prices were up 50 to 75 points over yesterday's close.

There was a steady demand from shorts in evidence throughout the morning and again the steadiness of the market attracted a small amount of fresh buying for long account. Offerings were slender as the best side was wary because of the unfavorable weather coming in from Texas. The detailed weather reports showed almost general rain in Georgia, which were called very favorable but led to little selling as it was not considered that the rainfall in the eastern belt wholly balanced conditions in the western belt. Spot prices were at their highest, 14 points over yesterday's final quotations.

MISS GILES' CROP REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Miss Giles gives county estimates as of August 1, and the conditions 78.4, against 81.8 July 25, 83.4 one month ago and 78.7 last year. The states showing deterioration are Alabama 8 per cent; Mississippi, 2 per cent; Louisiana, 1 per cent; Texas, 7 per cent; Arkansas, 6 per cent; Tennessee, 3 per cent; Oklahoma, 9 per cent. Those showing improvement are North Carolina, 2 per cent; South Carolina, 3 per cent; Georgia, 2 per cent; Florida, 1 per cent. Texas deterioration of 4.4 is due mainly to drouth and severe heat west of the Mississippi.

NAWYARD'S CLARK COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 15.—Liverpool continues the same. Futures firmer than spots which are quoted 1 lower today. Sales of only 4,000 bales, while futures are 2 to 3 better than due, probably partly because of crop deterioration from the western states.

The map shows fair weather in Oklahoma; partly cloudy in the east and west, with only slight precipitation at Abilene and Brownsville, where the private reports show scattered showers overnight over a large area in Texas. Good showers in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama and Atlantic. Indications are for unsettled and showery weather over the entire belt.

Miss Giles makes condition for the belt month 78.4 against 81.8 July, 83 and 76.7 last year. Liverpool says that reports of crop deterioration by English buyers in Texas and Oklahoma caused an advance of 17 points.

Our market opened about 5 higher and advanced further to 11.12 on October. Trade quiet, and in spite of attempts towards a short scare (on reports of drouth damage) the market showed a lack of confidence.

The fact is that Texas has had showery weather for the past four days and indications continue favorable to more extensive rains over Oklahoma. The central and eastern districts are doing very well and interest in forward shipments by the trade is disappointingly slow. There is, however, a specific interest of minor strength in the market and, as sentiment has been so much sold up by the crop spell in the west, attempts at a reaction might become more successful should rains fail to appear over Sunday.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: Limited forward demand on the one hand and trade belief the crop is rapidly deteriorating in the south on the other, were the conflicting features in yesterday's cotton market, around which were grouped several small lots of more or less importance. The trade as a whole can see no logic in building a market that is dependent upon forward demand, even though the pause in buying be known to be caused by something other than lack of general requirement. Manchester has been good to buy buyer during the past twenty-four months that indifference there, even for a short while looms large in trade eyes. However, it is said a large business is pending and that as low the market which would begin to figure should general interest come in to the west in the near future, should Washington, some fine morning, announce that it is contemplating

ONE IS KILLED WHEN TRAIN IS DERAILED

Fast Freight Splits Switch and Fourteen Cars Leave Track

One man was killed when fast freight train No. 209 of the Atlanta and West Point railway was wrecked near Hogansville, Ga., at 1:10 o'clock Thursday morning. The wreck was caused by a split switch.

Hugh W. Pennington, of 165 South Pryor street, Atlanta, is the dead man.

When the accident to the switch occurred the engine and four cars had passed over the switch. The next fourteen cars were derailed and thrown over on their side.

Railroad officials expect to get the wreck cleared shortly after noon. Meantime the fast passengers are being detoured on the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic by LaGrange to Union City.

Hugh W. Pennington was the twenty-year-old son of J. L. Pennington of Eastman, Ga. He had lived in Atlanta a year or more and was last employed by the Harry L. Schlesinger company as timekeeper.

He left Atlanta three days ago, telling his cousin, William C. Pennington, with whom he roomed, that he was going to Acklin, Ohio. He has one brother in Atlanta, Boykin Pennington, of the Ragan-Malone company. It is not known just how his death occurred.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Representative Miller, of Bibb, An Able and Active Legislator

Early in the recent session of the general assembly Representative Wallace Miller, of Bibb, took his place in the foremost ranks of the leaders in the house and by his ability and activity he maintained his position with credit to himself.

Mr. Miller never dodged a single issue. He unflinchingly met every proposition and either supported or opposed it as his judgment dictated. When the permanent registration bill came up for consideration in the house Thursday Mr. Miller fought it and he was one of only two members who spoke against it. The other was Representative O. T. Gower, of Crisp.

In opposing this measure Mr. Miller took the position that it opened wide the door for fraud; that it permitted illegal voters to remain permanently on the registration list with no way to get them off, and that it practically nullified the present admirable registration law. He declared that so long as a man's poll tax is paid, no matter by whom paid, that man is qualified to vote in all elections to come, whether he lives in the county of his orginal registry or not.

Mr. Miller voted against the undesirable early primary bill, on which the previous question was called without debate. He claims that the fact that discussion was throttled on this measure resulted in its being voted through with many members ignorant of its provisions.

There was no more earnest and consistent advocate of tax equalization than Mr. Miller. He contended for a state board of equalization or a state tax commissioner empowered to equalize taxes between the several counties.

All forms of special taxes were fought by Mr. Miller. He was opposed to the exemption of farm products from taxation and was the only member who fought this measure on the floor of the house. Taking the position that this was vicious class legislation Mr. Miller insisted that there was no sound reason why farmers should be exempted and laboring men, saarled men, professional men and business men should be taxed. He contended that whenever one class was made exempt an increased burden was necessarily placed upon all other classes.

Mr. Miller opposed the amendment to the constitution authorizing a special tax levy in excess of the present constitutional limit of 5 mills. He explained his attitude on this matter with was the declaration that tax equali was the one true and permanent remedy for the state's financial ills and that a special tax would be only temporary and palliative and not corrective, and would impose an additional burden upon those who were already supporting the state.

As a member of the rules and general judiciary committee—two of the most important committees in the house—Mr. Miller demonstrated his worth and ability. He was thoroughly conversant with the rules of the house and parliamentary practice.

Much Good Legislation Passed by General Assembly.

The session of the general assembly which came to a close Thursday night was far from a fruitless one. Although it failed to pass a number of beneficent measures of state-wide importance it did enact many general laws of great value.

Up until the last ten days of the session it appeared that the legislature would adjourn without having performed an especially creditable service, but during the period mentioned it got down to work in real earnest and passed important measures with business-like rapidity.

Some of the most significant legislation enacted follows:

Miller-Anderson tax equalization bill.

"Blue-sky" law.

An inheritance tax.

A state home for wayward girls.

Tax exemption of farm products.

Leaving the custody of minor children to the discretion of judges.

Creation of a commission to investigate the advisability of the state printing its own school books.

Creation of a commission to investigate the best terms for the re-leasing of the Western and Atlantic railroad.

The general appropriation bill.

Authorizing superior court judges to grant charters during vacation.

Allowing freight trains transporting perishable goods to run on Sunday.

An increased occupation tax on corporations.

A special tax on bottling works.

A law better regulating the practice of medicine in Georgia.

A permanent registration law.

An annual registration fee of $5 on automobiles.

Creation of a fourth superior court judgeship in Fulton county.

A new charter for the city of Atlanta.

Bill to Abolish Offices of County Treasurers Goes Over to Next Year.

One of the most important bills carried over until next year to be acted upon by the house is a constitutional amendment introduced by Senator J. N. Watts, of the Eleventh district, in the senate and passed by that body with a unanimous vote. It provides for the right of the several counties of the state to abolish the office of county treasurer.

Speaking of his measure Thursday afternoon Senator Watts said:

"The office of county treasurer is recognized as an important one, yet the duties of the treasurer are conceded to be almost without service rendered and there has been for a number of years a very strong sentiment throughout the state that this office should be abolished. This would mean a saving to the taxpayers of Georgia of more than two hundred thousand dollars annually."

Senator Watts' measure would amend the state constitution so as to allow any county in Georgia to have introduced in the legislature by its senator or representative a bill which carries with it a referendum clause. Such a bill would provide for salary, commission or terms upon which the county is to handle its funds.

The bill introduced by Senator Watts reached the house at the close of the session, and as 123 votes is required for its passage, the author with other strong advocates of the measure, decided to request the rules committee to take it from the calendar, where it would have been acted upon on the last day of the session and in consequence a large number of the members who had gone home would not have been on hand to vote for the bill.

Senator Watts' bill will be one of the first measures to be considered by the house next year.

THEATRES

(Criticisms of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managements.)

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

Saturday's performance at the Forsyth will end the stay of the combination of Keith acts that have made the house so popular this week. The shows was pronounced to be a winner after the Monday performances.

It is a well balanced entertainment; theer is good variety with plenty of music and dancing, and enough novelty to blend right in.

The bill for next week is to be headed by Bert French and Alice Eis, who have been features so long at Hammerstein's this summer. They will present "The Dance of Fortune." These people appeared at the Orpheum some years ago in "The Vampire" and made a wonderful hit. Their new dance is more sensational. Willie Weston, the character singer, and Mike Bernard, the champion ragtime piano player, will be on the bill also.

"Victory," the wonderful motion picture taken with the aid and permission of the United States navy in Cuba some weeks ago, and that was exhibited at a private performance in Washington last month, drawing an official indorsement from Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin Roosevelt, will be the attraction at the Grand the coming week at daily matinee and evening exhibitions—10 cents at the matinees, and 10, 15 and 15 cents at night, all seats reserved.

"Victory" is a complete story in five beautiful reels. The entertainment will continue for nearly two hours, and is full of all sorts of exciting and interesting features.

GROCERS WILL BOOST ATLANTA-MADE GOODS

Manufacturers Meet to Talk Over Plans for Proposed Permanent Exhibit

In the effort to aid in establishing a permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods the Retail Grocers' association will push this class of goods each Wednesday after the end of the Wednesday afternoon closing season.

This will make that class of goods more widely known in Atlanta. It is said, and by having space in the proposed exhibit the manufacturer's goods will be much better known here.

A group of manufacturers who have not yet been reached met this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Hotel Ansley to talk over the best manner of taking space in the proposed exhibit in the chamber of commerce building, and how to make the exhibit a success.

NOTED ENGLISH ORGANIST AT AUDITORIUM SUNDAY

Colonel W. L. Peel, of the Atlanta Music Festival association, who has heard Eugene Wyatt play, declares that music lovers here will be given a rare treat Sunday afternoon, when the famous English organist appears at the free concert in the auditorium.

Mr. Wyatt, who has been the organist at the Crystal palace, London, Royal Albert hall, and musical director of All Hallows cathedral, is one of the world's eminent organists. He has frequently played in London to more than 12,000 people at a time. When he plays here it is expected that the auditorium-armory will be crowded to its capacity. His program will be of a nature to give full play to his brilliant ability and technique.

This is one of the regular free Sunday concerts, and all Atlantians are cordially invited to attend it.

DEAD ATLANTA MAN PAID LARGE TAXES IN CHATHAM

Late Mr. J. P. Williams Second Largest Property Owner in Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 15.—By the records in the county tax assessors' office it is shown that Mr. J. P. Williams, who died in Atlanta last week was next to the largest tax payer in Chatham county. The valuation of his porperty as assessed on the books for 1913 was $257,662. The largest individual tax payer in Savannah is Mr. Wimberly J. DeRenne, whose property is assessed at the valuation of $361,600.

The bulk of the property owned by the late Mr. Williams in Chatham county is listed as personal property, $236,662 being under that classification. The returns of the largest tax payer in the county show all of the property as realty. There are ten individual estates in Chatham county listed at over $100,000.

Obstinate Acne Quickly Yields

Fine Remedy that Clears Skin of Pimples on Cheeks, Temples, Sides of Nose and Chin.

Acne attacks the glandular structure of the skin, more particularly those tiny glands that secrete fat.

And it is here that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier is most active in its influence.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S., the purpose of which it is to stimulate the cells in the tissues that they select from the blood the nutriment that makes new skin and thus eliminates all irritants, acids and parasites that inflame the glands. There is a natural tendency of the fine network of blood vessels in the skin to throw off impurities, but where a persistent inflammatory process has invaded the skin, the natural repair work of the blood is interfered with. It requires the stimulating activity of S. S. S. to overcome such morbid conditions. If you have been troubled with acne, do not despair of a cure.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The great Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if you blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 181 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

STATE OF GEORGIA, Fulton County.—Mrs. Mattie Davis vs. J. D. Davis. Superior court, September term, 1913. No. 28576.

To J. D. Davis, greeting: By order of court, you are hereby notified that on the 1st day of July, 1913, Mrs. Mattie Davis filed suit against you for divorce returnable to the September term, 1913, of said court. You are hereby required to be and appear at the September term, 1913, of said court, to be held on the first Monday in September, 1913, then and there to answer the plaintiff's complaint.

Witness the Hon. J. T. Pendleton, judge of said court, this July 1st, 1913.

ARNOLD BROYLES, Clerk.
JOHN W. COX, Plaintiff's Attorney.

In your hand you hold a five-cent piece.

Right at the grocer's hand is a moisture-proof package of Uneeda Biscuit. He hands you the package—you hand him the coin. A trifling transaction?

No! A remarkable one—for you have spent the smallest sum that will buy a package of good food; and the grocer has sold you the most nutritious food made from flour—as clean and crisp and delicious as it was when it came from the oven.

GEORGIA RIFLE TEAM HAS FIRST DAY SHOOT

High Scores Made in Practice at Camp Perry National Competition

BY LIEUT. J. C. ADOLPHUS.

CAMP PERRY, Ohio, Aug. 15.—The Georgia rifle team finished its first day's practice shooting Thursday. The team went on the firing line at 500 yards in the morning. The weather conditions were ideal. After finishing 600 yards, the team then went to the 1,000-yard range, where some good scores were made.

The following were the eight high men of the day:

Sergeant O. C. Hollern, Major W. P. Wheeler, Sergeant W. R. Brown, Sergeant L. Hale, Captain O. L. Rudisail, Sergeant Anderson, Captain W. T. Spratt and Lieutenant J. C. Adolphus.

There is only a difference of six points between the first and the eighth man. This morning each member of the team enters the Leech match. There are 500 entries in the match and 100 prizes.

General Lap is leaving nothing undone that will add to the comfort of the members of the team. He is of the opinion that the team has a most excellent chance to finish higher this year than in several years past. Several of the foreign teams have arrived and some of them tried their rifles out at 1,000 yards and were very much elated over the score of 35 out of a possible 50.

General Evans, of the department of the gulf, is chief range officer. Much depends on the executive ability of the chief range officer and the National Rifle association is very fortunate in having a man of General Evans' ability to command the shoot.

BIG RAILROAD WILL AID IN TUBERCULOSIS FIGHT

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad will use its great influence in co-operation to break down the "great white plague." The Baltimore and Ohio has fitted up an anti-tuberculosis exhibit car to be sent over its rails, furnished to the health departments of the various states through which its lines are operated, and it will be used in statewide campaigns.

The car is fitted up with charts and other exhibits which show the progress of tuberculosis, its causes, and much of the means for its eradication. It also contains an arrangement, with chairs, by which the physicians in charge of this car can lecture to those who are interested in eradicating this dread disease.

CAPITOL OF NATION IS MOVED MILES FOR $2.25

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—It cost only $2.25 to move the United States capitol a distance of forty miles, and the railroad company which completed the work is a defendant in the district supreme court today in a suit for $4,000 for having damaged the structures, for there were two of them.

The "capitols" are models of the big building in which the nation's laws are formed, and the property of Nathan Rubinton. The owner declares he shipped them here from Baltimore at a cost of $4.50 with the assurance that they would be delivered safely and intact. He claims they suffered in the trip.

To Miss Margaret Grant

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, who are among the popular southerners at Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs this summer, will entertain at a beautiful garden party Saturday afternoon in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Margaret Grant, who is one of the belles of the famous old resort.

Dance at Piedmont Club

The week will close with the usual dinner dance at the Piedmont club Saturday evening.

A number of parties have already been arranged, the event as always, to mark the end of a week of informal entertaining.

To Miss Hazen

Miss Helen Jones' supper party this evening at her home in Inman Park will be in compliment to the guest of honor, Miss Hazen, the guest of Miss Mignon McCarty.

The party will include Miss Hazen, Miss McCarty, Miss Margaret Buckner of Roanoke, Miss Caroline King, Miss Lalla Bright Cannon, Mr. Tyler Waller, Mr. Clarence Tripp, Mr. Frank Spratlin, Mr. Drury Walters, Mr. Fred Hoyt and Mr. George Street.

To Miss Small

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. White will entertain this evening at a theater party in honor of their guest, Miss Adaline Small, of Macon.

The other guests will be Miss Janie Arnold, Miss Ethel Law, Mr. Linton Floyd, Mr. Clarence Jordan and Mr. Emmette White.

In Honor Visitors

Mrs. A. H. Alfriend entertained at tea at the Piedmont club Tuesday afternoon in honor of Miss Helen Woolfolk, of New Jersey, who is the guest of Mrs. Virginius Hitt. Tea was served on the terrace, the party being completed by Mrs. Hitt, Mrs. Lewis Johns, Mrs. F. J. Merriam, Mrs. Garnett McMillan, Miss Susanne Poullaine, Miss Caroline Crenshaw and Miss Lalla Bright Cannon.

The table about which the guests were seated was attractive with pink and white phlox.

Thursday Miss Woolfolk shared honors with Miss Hattie Crenshaw, of Alabama, at a lovely luncheon at which Mrs. Garnett McMillan entertained at her home in College Park.

The table was bright with quantities of crimson salvia and asparagus ferns.

Invited to meet the honor guests were Mrs. Howard Stakeley, Mrs. Oscar Palmour, Mrs. A. H. Alfriend, Miss Caroline Crenshaw and Miss Carlton, of South Carolina.

Dinner Dance at Country Club

The Thursday evening dinner dance at the Capital City Country club was a delightful event of the week, assembling a large number of stay-at-homes who enjoyed a delicious dinner served on the porches and the informal dancing which followed.

Among those present were Miss Elizabeth Morgan, Miss Alice May Freeman, Miss Caroline Muse, Miss Emma Kate Amorous, Miss Gladys Alvin, Miss Marion Arundson, Miss Jennie D. Harris, Miss Cobble Vaughan, Miss Marion Hodgson, of Athens; Miss Nell Trippe, Miss Carolyn King, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wood, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Moore, Jr., and Mrs. J. K. Ottley, Mr. and Mrs. L. Z. Posser, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Speer, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Carhart, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Atcheson, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Conroy, Mr. and Mrs. W. Osborne, Mr. Arthur Clarke, Mr. Ernest Ottley, Mr. Raymond Haynes, Mr. Hen Daniels, Mr. H. B. Mines and others.

Terrace Tea to Recent Bride

Miss Elizabeth Morgan was hostess at a delightful little tea at the Piedmont club this afternoon in honor of Mrs. Frampton Ellis.

Tea was served on the terrace, the table having a lovely decoration in vases of white and pink phlox, the flowers in harmony with the bonbons and other details of the attractive table.

Miss Morgan was a charming hostess, wearing a becoming gown of rose-colored mull embroidered and worn with a pink hat trimmed with flowers.

Mrs. Thomas Morgan, who assisted her daughter, wore a gown of black taffeta combined with lace and worn with a black hat trimmed with white plumes.

The pretty honor guest wore a lovely gown of white chiffon voile trimmed with light blue taffeta, a blue hat the same shade trimmed with blue plumes and pink roses completing the toilette.

Invited to meet Mrs. Ellis were Miss Carolyn King, Miss Mary Brown, Mrs. W. H. Rhett, Mrs. John Oliver, Mrs. Prioleau Elliott, Mrs. W. A. Speer and Mrs. Thomas Morgan.

Misses Rodgers Entertain In Honor Visitors

Misses Ethel and Virginia Rodgers entertained informally Thursday afternoon at their home on Piedmont avenue in compliment to Miss Alma Klump, of Columbus, the guest of Miss Eddie Lee Terrell, and Miss Allison Smith, of Birmingham, the guest of Mrs. C. B. Walker.

The house was decorated with ferns and dwarf sunflowers, the colors of yellow and brown being carried out artistically in the details of the refreshments.

Those invited were Miss Emily Cassin, Miss Katherine Dickey, Miss Ellen O'Keefe, Miss Theodora Warfield, Miss Charlotte Hennen, Miss Emily Cassin, Miss Kinnon, Miss Gladys Dunson, Miss Winnie Wilson, Miss Agnes Williams, Miss Mary Kate Davidson, Miss Fannie Lee Henry, Miss Hortense Loeb, Miss Virginia Stanard, Miss Mae Holland Roberts, Miss Millie LaFontaine, Miss Eva Palmalee, Miss Mortel Linthicum, Miss Ruth Lamb, Miss Frances Ashworth, Miss Mary Glynn, Miss Mamie Morris, Miss Catherine Newbanks, Miss Lottie Mayer, Misses Eddie Lee and Louise Terrell, Miss Edith Boone, Miss Rosalind Wurm, Miss Marie Norris, Misses Mary and Sally Dewsnsure, Miss May McMillen, Miss Roberta Moran, Miss Eva Owens and Miss Christine Hooper.

An interesting game was played and the prize was a sterling manicure piece, the guest prizes being a gauze fan and a gold bar pin.

TOUCH OF BLACK VELVET

The black velvet or satin ribbon about the throat is in fashion. Like the one shown in the sketch it often holds a pearl pendant. Beside the new throat ribbon, the sketch shows the long, transparent sleeve, the transparent tunic, the fruit-trimmed hat with black velvet chin ribbons and the short silk coat, not quite an Eton and not quite a bolero, all characteristic of late summer fashions.

Bridge Luncheon For Miss Woolfork

Miss Helen Woolfolk was the honor guest at the delightful bridge luncheon at which Mrs. Virginius Hitt was hostess this morning.

The game was played in rooms bright with golden glow and salvia and the game was followed by a delicious luncheon served at the card tables.

The trophies in the game were a silver vanity box and a bonbon dish and the honor guest was presented a novelty powder pencil in silver.

Beside Miss Woolfolk, there were two other attractive visiting girls among the guests, Miss Hazen, of New Jersey, who is the guest of Miss Mignon McCarty, and Miss Buckner, of Virginia, who is with Miss Helen Jones for the summer.

Completing the party were Miss McCarty, Miss Adaline Thomas, Miss Carolyn King, Miss Frances Connally, Miss Emma Kate Amorous, Miss Nell Trippe, Miss Lalla Bright Logan, Miss Laura Cowles and Mrs. Julian Prade.

Porch Party

Mrs. R. H. White entertained at a dinner party this afternoon in honor of her guest, Miss Adaline Small, of Macon. The game was played on the porch, which was bright with zinnias and other garden flowers.

Silk stockings and a book were the prizes, the game being followed by 5 o'clock tea.

Invited to meet Miss Small were Miss Theodosia Andrews, Miss Lucile Bean, Miss Frances Springer, Miss Jamie Arnold, Miss Ruth Gresham, Miss Nelle Walker, Miss Grace Bloodworth, Miss Adelaide Callaway, Miss Virginia Woodin, Miss Elizabeth Small, Miss Alice Snodgrass, Miss Marie Dinkins, Miss Helen Stewart, Miss Mary Murphey, Miss Eloise Baldwin, Miss Ethel Law, Miss Edwina Harper, Miss Isabelle Simpson, Miss Evelyn Greene, Miss Constance Berry, Miss Julia MacIntyre, Miss Fraser Mitchell and Miss Isabel Mitchell, of Thomasville.

Reception to Miss Hunter

The ladies of the West End Baptist church will have a reception and silver shower in honor of Miss Clifford Hunter, who will leave soon for north China, where she will represent the missionary societies of the Atlanta Baptist association.

The reception will be given Monday afternoon, August 25, at the West End Baptist church.

A cordial invitation is extended all members of the various societies of the association.

Miss Hunter is a graduate of Agnes Scott and of the Louisville Missionary Training school, where she has recently finished the course.

Miss Hunter is splendidly equipped for the work before her and in which she has the hearty support and interest of hundreds of Baptist women.

Morning Bridge

Miss Eva Beatty and Miss Marie Norris, who are spending a few days with Mrs. James H. Taylor, at her home in Inman Park, were the honor guests at a bridge luncheon at which Mrs. Taylor entertained today.

Pink roses were used in the rooms where the game was played and used on the prettily appointed table at which luncheon was served at the conclusion of the game.

The trophies were silver picture frames.

Beside the honor guest those present were Miss Irene Bennett, Miss Margaret Farnsworth, Miss Lallie Tipton, Miss Margaret Green, Miss Alline Perryman, Miss Mildred Harris, Miss Josephine Smith, Miss Marie Oliver, Miss Marguerite Gause and Miss Winnie Isom.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

The woman of today who dresses according to the latest fashion or caprice, uses a butterfly as a symbol She is doing it very well, too.

The fashion sprung up in London and has been copied by all those who like just this kind of thing. There are butterfly gowns and hats, parasols and stockings, girdles and even gloves.

The butterfly gowns are made in various colors of transparent fabric with butterfly sleeves floating away from the arms and dropping well below the waist. There are butterfly hats made of wired wings—sometimes two or three chasing each other around the head. On all these clothes there is a generous sprinkling of sparkling stones.

Not only brilliants are used, but imitation sapphires, topazes, tourmalines and jet, both white and black.

It is not only in the large garments, but in the small details, that the butterfly idea is carried out. The buckles on one's evening slippers are butterflies, and so is the embroidery on one's stockings. Butterfly jewelry is worn especially in hairpins made of brilliants and used in the evening.

Butterflies in the Hair.

Not only are the pins made with butterfly heads, but there are large pieces of jewelry made of precious stones that are used as tiaras and also butterflies of silver and gold, or black gauze. These are deftly placed on the flat coiffure to give the appearance of having just floated down and lighted on the hair. It is carried out very well by some women and is one of the prettiest head dresses invented.

There are tiny butterfly ornaments for the neck worn on a black velvet dog collar and there are also butterfly bows edged with rhinestones to be placed on a girdle. These are put front or back, wherever a woman wants them and wherever they suit the uplift of the drapery. You know all the modern skirts seem to have had their material caught up by the hand and drawn up to the belt, usually in front to give a short waisted expression to the figure. Wherever drapery comes, there sits the butterfly.

Some women have even gone so far as to put butterflies on their writing paper, paint them on the doors of their bed rooms and embroider them on their parasols, handkerchiefs, and lingerie. The latter idea is not new, for Paris has been putting the butterfly on underwear for many seasons. It is done in colored embroidery or made of lace, inset in the material wherever it is most effective.

The butterfly handkerchiefs are exceedingly attractive. They have this bit of embroidery done just over the initial or several initials, which is the form of marking a handkerchief that has replaced the monogram. In fact the monogram is less in fashion now than for decades.

The Butterfly Hat

The butterfly hat is attractive and artistic. It can be made in any way the wearer desires. There may be only a butterfly bow on a simple shape, or the entire hat may be a pair of wings with waving antennae floting from the middle. By the way, these two long tendrils are now made from feathers and worn in the coiffure by the woman who does not care for the whole butterfly.

There are all sorts of ways of building these butterfly hats, and there is no restriction as to color. In none of these garments does any one attempt to follow the exquisite colors of a butterfly's wings. Only the shape is imitated.

The four princesses who attended Princess Victoria Louise when she was married to Prince Ernest, duke of Cumberland, in May, represent, in their youthful, charming selves, three of the great powers of the world and one very interesting Balkan country, says the Review of Reviews.

Princess Mary of England was sixteen years old on April 25 last.

The eldest child of the Italian royal pair is a girl, Yolanda, now just past her twelfth birthday. The Rumanian monarchs are childless, but the "heir designate," Prince Ferdinand of Hohenzollen-Sigmaringen, has five children, the second of whom, Princess Elizabeth, now in her nineteenth year, is always know as the Rumanian princess.

The future alliance of the Balkan nations is to be cemented by the marriage of several royalties, according to diplomatic information from Bucharest.

Princess Elizabeth of Rumania is to wed Crown Prince George of Greece; Prince Charles of Rumania is to marry the Grand Duchess Tatiana, the czar's second daughter, and Prince Alexander, the Servian heir apparent, is to be the husband of the Grand Duchess Olga, the czar's eldest daughter.

Former Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter on part of their cruise around the world, but the exact dates for Mr. and Mrs. Longworth's traveling for part of the big tour have not yet been given out. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter will make a year's tour of the world in Howard Gould's yacht Niagara. The itinerary and personnel of the party which will accompany the Leiters have just been announced. The start will be made from New York in September. After spending some time in British waters, the Niagara will cruise in the Mediterranean until about the first of the year. Then she will be started eastward through the Suez canal, and will visit India, Ceylon, China, Japan, the Philippines and Honolulu. The return home will be by way of San Francisco and the Panama canal.

Mr. and Mrs. Leiter and their young sons, Joseph Leiter, Jr., and John Leiter, will make the entire trip. In Europe they will be joined by Mrs. Leiter's parents and sisters, Colonel and Mrs. John R. Williams, and Misses Frances and Dorothy Williams. They have also arranged to meet former Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and have them as guests for a part of the cruise.—Exchange.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

When Mistah Mocker the Mockingbird agreed to lend his wonderful voice to the plan of Chatterer the Red Squirrel for playing a joke on all the little feathered people of the old orchard he didn't dream that it could be anything but a joke, the most harmless kind of a joke. Of course, he knew that Sammy Jay is a thief and that none of the other birds like him, and always try to drive him away. It seemed to him that it would be the greatest kind of a joke to hide and then scream like Sammy Jay until the other birds came hurrying to drive him away, and that when they found that it wasn't Sammy Jay at all, but their friend Mr. Mocker, they would all have a great laugh at the way they had been fooled. You see, it never entered his head that there could be any harm in it—that Chatterer the Red Squirrel was all the time planning to take that chance to steal from Drummer the Woodpecker.

But that is just what Chatterer was planning and just what he did do. And all the time he chuckled to himself to think how easily he had gotten Mistah Mocker to help him. But Mistah Mocker didn't know this. So when at last he showed himself he didn't know what to make of it when no one laughed. No, sir, he didn't know what to make of it. He stopped laughing himself and stared first at Drummer the Woodpecker, then at Mrs. Drummer, and after that at each of the others in turn. There wasn't even a smile anywhere. Instead there were angry looks. Then Drummer the Woodpecker darted at him fiercely and tweaked a feather from Mistah Mocker's coat.

"So you're a friend of Sammy Jay, are you?" he snapped. "You will try to fool us while he sneaks around and robs our nests, will you? Take that, and that!" and with each "that" his sharp bill struck poor Mistah Mocker. Then without waiting for Mistah Mocker to explain Drummer and Mrs. Drummer hurried back to their home, for they suspected that Sammy Jay had taken this chance while they were away to rob them of the beautiful white egg they had left in the bottom of their nest. They were sure of it when they reached home and found the egg gone, and straightway they told their neighbors.

When the other birds saw Drummer the Woodpecker dart at poor Mistah Mocker they all did the same thing and they screamed so loudly that Mistah Mocker couldn't make himself heard at all. Now, He isn't a coward. Oh, my, no! Mistah Mocker isn't a coward! But what could he do against so many? Nothing, just nothing at all, but turn tail and fly away. And this wasn't so easy, either. At last he reached the Green Forest, and one by one the other birds returned to their homes in the old orchard until he was quite alone.

Dear me, dear me, what a looking sight Mistah Mocker was! His coat was all rumpled up and torn, and he was hurt, too, for some of those bills were very sharp. But his feelings were hurt even more. He couldn't understand it at all.

"It was all a joke," he kept saying over and over to himself. "It was all a joke." Then, as he thought it all over he remembered a saying he had once heard a long, long time before:

The thing that seems a joke to you
Is sometimes serious seem on to;
A prank you harmless mean to be
Your friends may fail to deem so.

And all the time, safe in his hollow tree Chatterer the Red Squirrel was smacking his lips over the fresh egg he had stolen from Drummer the Woodpecker and chuckling wickedly over the trouble that he had gotten Sammy Jay and Mistah Mocker into.

"It was all a joke," he kept saying over and over to himself.

The Evening Story — Merely a Hat

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

Hulda Keith worked in the largest, best equipped and most popular store in town. It catered to the wealthy in all matters, especially in the matter of hats. The head milliner, who was also buyer, had a knack for the business. She was her own chief advertisement. She sold so many hats simply by wearing her own becomingly. She sold many more hats by fitting out the pretty girls in the store with proper headgear. They were mostly girls who lived at home and had their money to dress on. But Hulda Keith boarded and she had very little money with which to buy hats.

SHE HAD ON HER MOST CHIN LIFTED AIR.

Although she loved hats and all pretty things, Hulda did not change her hat when the first spring millinery began to appear in the windows of the store. The other girls made a frantic rush to grab their choice, regardless of what it might cost. They preened themselves in their gay new straws, while Hulda continued to wear her black felt.

"Hulda Keith, aren't you ever going to get a new hat?" Maud Simpson asked indignantly. "You look a fright in that one. And frights have a way of disappearing from this store, I can tell you, Mr. McClaskey likes a girl to look nice. If she can't or won't he finds somebody that will."

Hulda said nothing. What was there to say? She wanted a new hat and was saving money for it just as fast as she could. She had been brought up with an old-fashioned horror of getting in debt. But she wondered if Mr. McClaskey did discharge her what she would find to do next. It came to her that something more than her own girlish longing for beauty depended upon a new hat. She must have it somehow.

Hulda took the only means she knew to swell her hat fund. She went without her lunch for a whole week. She walked the whole way even when it rained. And on Saturday night she got her hat. As she hurried out of the store she heard Maud Simpson say to Walter Reese:

"My goodness, Hulda Keith's got her spring hat at last. I'd like to have seen what she bought."

Hulda's face burned with shame and hurt. Maud Simpson was one of the prettiest girls in the store and she was always dressed beautifully. She had no living expenses to pay and all the money she earned went to buy personal adornment. Considering Maud's ability to attract it was no wonder that Walter Reese should be drawn to her. But it was a wonder that Maud should be drawn to him, for he was "country" through and through, as the girls said—big and red haired with a boyish way of blushing at nothing. He had come to the store since Hulda and already had been promoted twice. It was beginning to occasoin some awe that he could leap ahead so fast. No knowing where he would go, especially since McClaskey seemed to be making a real friend of him.

From the day of his entrance into store life Hulda had seen that he was not like the other men there. From them she shrank instinctively. Not that they ever noticed her particularly. Nobody stops to admire a daisy when there are red roses all about. Especially a daisy in a bad hat. Hats were of immense significance at the store, but Walter Reese semed not to have learned that fact yet. In consequence he was quite nice to Hulda in her old hat. But when the store dance was held he took Maud Simpson. Hulda had not gone at all. She could not dance and, moreover, she had nothing nice enough to wear. There was, she knew, no possible chance of her ever winning more than a friendly look from Walter Rcese. But even a friendly look is better than nothing, when one is starving to death. Hulda felt that look following her now, half in pity, half in wonderment, as she fled out into the night with the big hat clutched lightly in her hand.

She walked home and arrived tired to exhaustion. She climbed up to her stuffy little back room. Tears came and brought their own relief and a headache for which tea was the only panacea. Hulda lighted the gas jet and made some. After that she felt so much better that she decided to try on her hat.

Even in the wrinkled green glass of the cheap combination bureau and washstand she could see that it transformed her. The golden straw brought out all the shell tints in her cheeks and showed up her eyes like violets; the broad, brown velvet bow melted into the dusy of her hair. She drew a deep breath and smiled. "Oh, you pretty, pretty hat," Hulda crooned, "I'm so glad I've got you."

She bent and kissed the brown velvet. And when, a little later, she crept into bed she was so happy that she forgot her aching feet and sore muscles, and so went to sleep at once.

She woke to find the day most glorious. A chime of nearby bells was striking out an old tune. It was Sunday and Hulda had been brought up to go to chuch. This morning she was particularly glad to go. She had her new hat. Besides Walter Reese would be there. They happened to attend the same church.

Hulda ate her breakfast in a flurry. She sang as she dressed. The new hat was even more becoming than it had been last night. Sleep had taken the lines and shadows of weariness out of his face.

Walter Reese was already in church when she entered. A few moments later an usher brought in Maud Simpson and gave her a seat just across the aisle from Hulda. She did not look at Hulda or give Hulda a chance to bow to her. She had on her most chin-lifted air and she kept her eyes directly on the pulpit. Hulda, however, could not help looking at Maud. For Maud was in black from head to foot—the kind of black that turns a blond girl into gold and mother of pearl. Never, never had she looked so charming. But she was like a big cloud in the sky for Hulda. Gone was her girlish pleasure in her new hat. In the radiant April day, in the fact that Walter Reese was within ten feet of her. Gone, too, was her enjoyment of the beautiful service. She could only wait and hope dully for the moment when she could get away from it all and run home and cry.

It ended at last and Hulda made her way toward the door. At the door she paused in dismay. The blue and gold of an hour before had turned to leaden hue and rain was splashing down in great drops on astonished church goers. Hulda had no umbrella. She thought of her new hat and the long way she had to go and her heart sank. At that moment she heard Maud Simpson's voice speaking clearly behind her.

"Oh, I never go anywhere without an umbrella, this time of year especially."

Hulda shrank back Maud went by her without apparently seeing her. She had Walter Reese at her side. He glanced at Hulda and bowed. Hulda, struggling with tears, bobbed a miserable return. She saw Maud at the edge of the portico unfurl a gleaming new silk umbrella. There was something wrong with the catch and while he was busy with it Maud glanced back over her shoulder at Hulda. Her glance seemed to say: "Go home in the rain if you must. I don't care. You see I've got two umbrellas at my disposal and one of them is Walter Reese's."

HE HAD COME BACK FOR HER.

Folk were huddling under the portico waiting for the storm to pass. Hulda's face was very white as she drew back out of sight where no one would observe her wretchedness. It seemed to her that every drop of rain was faing on her heart.

"Miss Hulda!"

She looked up with big, dazed eyes. There was Walter Reese, and it came to her that he had had some little trouble making his way to her through the crowd about the portico.

"Miss Hulda, I have an umbrella. I see you have none. May I give you the shelter of mine home?"

He had come back for her! There in the crowded vestibule, with the light, swift April rain splashing outside, romance in all its youth and freshness and sweetness became revealed. But none saw it save the two for whom it was intended. When they walked out together under the same umbrella they wore to the indifferent eyes that followed only a pretty, shabby little girl in a new hat and a big, kind hearted young man who did not mean that hat should get wet.

That wonderful walk through the lessening rain, shoulder to shoulder, keeping step all the way! They talked, and Walter made Hulda augh The augh sent the last vestige of tears scudding, and when, as they paused at the boarding house steps, the sun darted out like fire, Walter drew a deep breath. "It's going to be a pleasant afternoon, after all," he said. "Wouldn't you like to go to the park this afternoon, Miss Hulda?" The flowers are all coming out and it's the nearest thing to the country I can find here."

"Oh, I'd love to go!" Hulda cried, her eyes shining happily. 'I've never been to the park yet, because I couldn't bear to go alone."

"Well, I've been going there alone," he answered, "but after this maybe we can go together sometimes?"

"Maybe," Hulda promised. And her face under the little new hat was the face of a girl who sees her dreams beginning to come true.

Milltown Social News

MILLTOWN.—One of the most enjoyable of the week's social events was the al fresco party given by Mrs. Guy Huckabee, on Saturday morning, in compliment to the visiting young ladies of the town.

The top score prize was awarded to Miss Rubye Raskin. Miss Palin drew the guest's prize, a lovely gold bat pin.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Mae Palin, of Albany; Miss Campbell, of Dawson; Miss Dugget, of Douglas; Miss McDonald, of Waycross, and Miss Puckett, of Hahira.

Misses Palin and Campbell, of Albany, are the attractive guests of Miss Ruby Church this week.

Miss Frances Cleveland is expected home next week, after an extended trip through the mountains of north Georgia.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bailey are on a pleasure trip to Park Royal and other points in South Carolina.

Miss McDonald, of Waycross, is visiting her sister, Mrs. C. M. Infinger.

Mrs. Dr. Heflin left this morning for a week's visit to relatives in Atlanta.

It's as good as its reputation---and folks say it's the best!

Where Shall We Go to Get It?

"Don't go! Come right here"—say the merchants of Atlanta in today's JOURNAL.

Wonderful how these live business men anticipate your needs.

Right now they are cleaning their August stocks and planning what they shall offer you at Christmas.

The steamers and trains are bringing in your fall attire—planned long ago.

But the important part in the Atlanta merchants' fall and winter plans is to start with fresh, new goods.

He must sell what he has right now. That's why August is a month of unusual retail sales. Better clear shelves and a temporary loss, than capital tied up in summer merchandise.

It pays to watch JOURNAL advertising every day in the year, but it will never pay you better than right now, in this month of August.

The time to buy is when the other fellow is anxious to sell, and never are the merchants offering better inducements than now.

Read and see!

Two Double Headers With Lookouts--Motor Races for Friday

Barons Ahead Of All Clubs In Attendance

Atlanta Must Spurt Up During Present Home Stay and Take Honors for 1913--Chance to Approach 1907 Mark

Right now Birmingham and Atalnta are in a hot tugale for the attendance honors of 1913. No other team in the league has half a chance with these real baseball burgs and which of the two will win out is yet problematical.

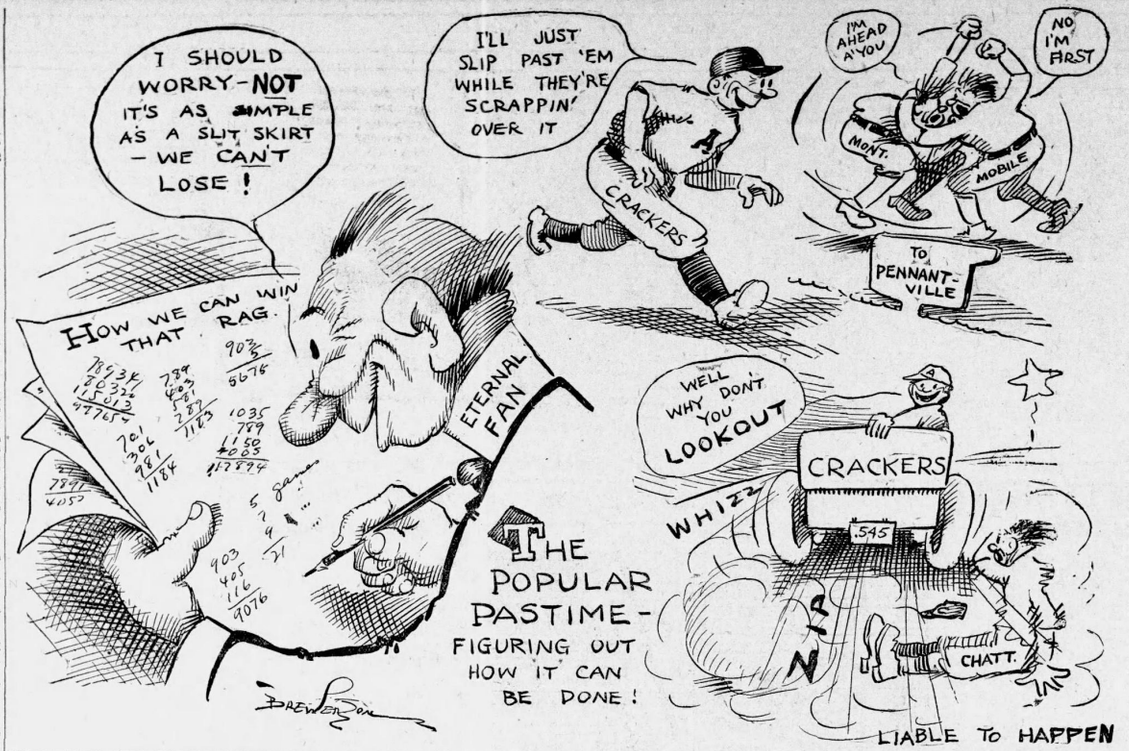
Birmingham is drawing like a house afire, and the local fans will certainly have to get up and hustle if they intend to take the honors. Right now Birmingham is just a little bit ahead, but this is mainly due to the fact that the Barons have had more home dates, and it is believed the Crackers can overcome the handicap during the long home stay which began Thursday.

Up to Thursday the Crackers had played forty-eight home games to 111,596 fans. This is already far above the 1912 record, which was 106,000, and there is every indication that it will approach the 1907 record of 197,000, which is the largest attendance ever shown in the Southern league. The largest crowd the Crackers have played to on the home lot was on opening day, when 8,856 paid admissions passed through the gate. The next largest was at the two games July 4, when the admissions were 8,713. On only five days has the crowd been les sthan 1,000, and there is not another city in the circuit that can say the same.

On the road the team has also drawn fairly well, though nothing like at home. The biggest crowd on the road was encountered at Mobile on Sunday, May 4, when 6,433 paid their way past the gates. This was when Mobile was going like a house afire.

In the matter of postponements the Crackers have been lucky. The team has played sixty-eight of the seventy scheduled games, the only two postponements which were not played off being in New Orleans and Montgomery.

At home there are a number of postponements, but they will all most likely be payed off during the present long home stay. The main idea just now, however, is to beat Birmingham in the race for the attendance honors of 1913. Birmingham is out to cop and it is going to take good crowds to turn the trick, but as long as the Cracker club plays good ball the crowds will be there.



HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

(By Associated Press.)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 15.—Birmingham expects to seize the second game of the series with Nashville today. Weather clear.

Batteries—Birmingham: Foxen or Evans and Mayer. Nashville: Williams or Beck and Gibson.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 15.—Mobile was to open its last series of the season with New Orleans this afternoon, Manager Finn announcing that W. Robertson or Hogg would officiate on the mound with Schmidt behind the plate. Wilson and Adams will probably work for New Orleans. The weather is clear and warm.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 15.—Montgomery and Memphis begin a series of three games at Red Elm park here today. Parsons and Seabough for Memphis and Sparks and Gribbens for Montgomery are the probable batteries. The weather is clear and warm.

Russell Ford, the ex-Cracker hurler, shut the Chicago team out, allowing only five hits. He himself failed to get a hit.

BUNTS AND BINGLES

BY JULIAN MURPHEY

The day of the recall is now near at hand and it will be somewhat of a surprise just what optional players will be taken back by the major clubs. Practically every club in the Southern league has optional players on the list and by August 15 these men must be recalled at the optional price or lost.

ONE WITH ATLANTA.

Joe Conzelman, the young college hurler, is the only player with Atlanta who is under an optional agreement. Fred Clarke's Pittsburg bunch has an option of this young star and it may be that it will not be exercised. The boy has a great future before him and it is the wish of the Atlanta club that he be allowed to remain here. Conzelman has the making of a fine hurler and though he may not be ripe for the big show right now he is sure to go up in a few short years.

While Conzelman is the only player with the Crackers who is here optionally, there are several others who are attracting more than one good look from the big show people and many will likely be sold for trials. Already Wallace Smith and "Slim" Love have been grabbed by the Washington team and others are more than likely to follow. Among those who stand the best chances are Harry Welchonce, Tommy Long, Carl Thompson, Izzy Bisland and Elliott Dent.

Over at Birmingham there are three players—Catcher Mayer, Infielder McDonald and Outfielder Knissley—who are under optional agreements and all three are more than apt to be called before the optional agreement expirs. Mayer will go to the Chicago Americans and McDonald and Knissley to the Chicago Cub outfit. All three have been going great and their work warrants second trial in the big show.

CATCHERS SHOW WELL.

Of the star players now showing great work in the league the catchers probably rank the bunch. There is Gibson at Nashville who is the property of the Detroit club, Mayer at Birmingham, who belongs to the Chicago Americans and Schmidt at Mobile and Street at Chattanooga. All this bunch is showing class and stand a good chance of going to the majors. Street and Schmidt have had years of work with major league outfits while Gibson and Mayer are youngsters who failed to make good their first trial. Of the four the youngsters stand the better chance of making good.

Already several star pitchers, notably Elmer Brown, of Montgomery, and Harry Coveleskie, of Chattanooga, have been sold for trials in the big ring. Coveleskie goes to the Detroit club and Brown to Brooklyn. Both these pitchers have shown great class in this league this season and their work warrants a trial with the big league outfits. Kid Williams, of Nashville, has also been sold to Detroit and will report at the end of the season.

Atlanta to date has sold only three players—Wallace Smith, Joe Agler and Silm Love. Love and Smith go to the Washington club and Agler has been bought for duty by the Jersey City International league bunch. Agler is sure to stick and prove a star while the other two have a mighty good chance and others who will follow stand just about as good a chance.

TWO CRACKERS MAY GO BACK TO MAJORS

Joe Conzelman and Carl Thompson May Be Taken Under Options

The law providing for the recall of baseball players provides that they must be recalled by August 15, or they become the property of the club holding them.

Atlanta has two players subject to such optional agreement, which men will become the property of the club if not recalled by tonight. These two men are Carl Thompson, pitcher, and Joe Conzelman, pitcher.

When Carl was released by Birmingham he went back to the New York American club, and they let Atlanta have him on the optional agreement. If they do not recall him tonight he will be a Cracker in fee simple. Joe Conzelman, the other hurler, is subject to the recall of the Pittsburg Pirates. All other players in Cracker uniform are the property of the club.

Smith will also exercise his right of recall which he holds in Players Keating, Nixon and Reynolds.

Double Header Slated Friday

As a result of the rain on Thursday which spoiled one game of the scheduled double bill, two games will be played on Friday, if possible, the bill starting at 2:15 as usual.

Atlanta has to go some to overtake the Gulls at their present rate of travel, but if the team does not break their stride they should do it, although a six-game margin at this stage of the race looks as big as $100,000 does to Navin.

Gil Price and Love or Dent will probably do the battery work for Atlanta today, with a chance of Voss, the new recruit who has not received a trial yet, being sent in for a workout.

Dunn will have to do the receiving as Harry Chapman is out until next week with the injury he received in the Birmingham game. Harry twisted his ankle in trying to make a quick return to first.

For Chattanooga, Coveleskie will probably work one game and Kroh the other, Street doing the receiving.

Last Game for Philly Mogul

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—William H. Locke, president of the Philadelphia National league baseball club, died Thursday afternoon at Ventnor, N. J., a suburb of Atlantic City, after a long illness.

Wildness Hurt Chance of Win

Game Played Following Hard Shower--Conzelman Wild in Last Rounds

Between the showers the Crackers and Lookouts managed to get in one of the two games scheduled for Thursday, but so far as ridding the schedule of a battle it counted for nothing, the result being a 3-3 tie. The game was played in a sea of mud and went but seven rounds.

Joe Conzelman hurled for Atlanta and Howell and Covaleskie divided the fork for Chattanooga. Conzelman pitched by far t ehbest ball of the afternoon, but became unlucky in the seventh and allowed two runs and a tie. The Pole was hit freely in the seventh when he first relieved Howell, but he settled down at the tail-end of the inning and it was all off.

One of the big features of the game was the pegging to second of Joe Dunn. Joe put it right to the bag every time and there was never a chance for a Lookout to get away.

In the first inning Conzelman fanned Dee Walsh on three pitched balls. Dec hit only one and this counted as a strike, as it happened to be the second ball.

Pat Graham certainly stung the old ball hard, being robbed of two hits by sensational fielding. Once it was Bisland who picked up a grass-cutter and got his man at first, and the next time it was Wallace Smith, who performed a great fielding act.

Harry Holland handled his hardest chance in jam-up fashion. It came in the fourth when Walsh hit a hard driev toward third. In the sixth Harry got credit for an error as the result of a bad throw to second in an effort to force a runner.

Calvo, the ne woutfielder of the Atlanta club, made his appearance in right field and got away nicely. He handled his only chance, got one hit and showed an excellent arms. He appears to be very fast on the bags.

COBB VS. JACKSON

Cobb climbed close to Jackson in Thursday's game by hitting safely twice in four times, while the Cleveland star got only one out of three. Only three points now separates the averages of these two batting fiends.

ALEC SMITH IS FIRST AMONG GOLF STARS

Ex-Atlanta Crack Turns in Grand Score in the Metropolitan Meet

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Aug. 15.—After an exciting finish in the open championship tournament of the Metropolitan Golf association at the Salisbury links, Alec Smith, the Wykeryl club's professional, won the title by a margin of one stroke from Tom McNamara, of Boston, who won the championship honors a year ago.

Smith made the best round during the tournament when he turned in a card of 70 in the third round early Thursday, but he putted poorly in the final round for 75, which made his total for 72 holes 291.

John J. McDermott, of Atlantic City, national open champion, who had led the big field from the start, was looked upon as a sure winner after Smith's score was seen. He, too, was weak in putting and his final effort, a 79, placed him three strokes behind Smith with a total of 294.

McNamara was going nicely at this stage, as he went out in 36 holes on his final journey and needed a 34 coming in to win. He was unequal to the task. On the home green he had a 12-foot put for a 4, which would have tied Smith, but he missed and was down in 5 for a round of 72, making his aggregate for the four rounds 292.

Oswald Kirky, of Englewood, N. J., led the amateurs with a total of 311.

Following are the scores of the leading players at the finish:

Alec Smith, Wykagyl, N. Y., 75, 71, 70, 75; 291. Tom McNamara, Boston, 74, 75, 71, 72; 292.

John J. McDermott, Atlantic City, 71, 71, 73, 79; 294. Jack Hobens, Englewood, N. J., 72, 72, 73, 79; 296.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

Mobile took the fourth straight from the slumping Hillcats, and is now 3 1-2 games ahead of them. Atlanta by tying her game is only 2 1-2 games behind Montgomery and six games behind Mobile.

Both the Giants, Phillies and Cubs, the three leaders of the National league took two games Thursday. The Giants now have an eight-game lead.

The Naps repeated the Phillies in a hard-fought game, reducing their lead to 6 1-2 games. Cleveland has a 4 1-2 game lead on the Senators.

Is Thirteen To be Hoodoo Of This Race?

Thirteenth Meet of Season at Local Motordrome Will Be Staged on Friday Night, Point System of Scoring

The number thirteen figures quite prominently in the motorcycle race meet scheduled for Friday night at the local motordrome. It happens to be the thirteenth meet of the season, comes after thirteen postponements owing to rain, is in the year 1913 and is on Friday night, though fortunately not the thirteenth. Only the fact that it does not happen to be Friday, the thirteen keeps the riders from balking at riding, all figuring that as Friday did not happen to fall on the thirteenth it is all right.

The card for Friday night looks mighty good. It is a slight change from the ordinary run of events, the point system being used in the big match. It is the intention of Noon Hudson, who is to be in charge of the course, to get the races away promptly.

A new wrinkle on the sweepstakes idea will be run in to vary the program. There will be a three-heat race between five of the riders, Glenn, Richards, Renel, Luther and Lewis. The first heat will be three miles, the second five, and the third seven. The first, second and third places in each of these heats will be awarded ten, six and three points respectively.

In addition to this, there will be a special match race between Graves Lockner and Swartz. Two two-mile heats and a three-mile heat will be run in this race, the best two in three winning.

MOTORDROME PURSE.

(One mile to qualify; two-mile final. Two men in each heat to qualify for final.)

First Heat—Swartz, Graves, Richards and Glenn.

Second Heat—Lewis, Luther, Renel and Lockner.

SPECIAL MATCH RACE.

(One, two and three-mile heats—best two out of three heats.)

First Heat—Swartz, Lockner and Graves.

Final of Motordrome Purse—Two miles.

VELEDROME DE BUFFALO SWEEPSTAKES.

(French point system. Ten points for first, 6 for second and 3 for third. Distance, 3, 5 and 7 miles.)

First Heat, Three Miles—Richards, Renel, Glenn, Luther and Lewis.

Second Heat of Special Match Race, Two Miles—Swartz, Lockner and Graves.

Second Heat of Sweepstakes, Five Miles—Richards, Renel, Glenn, Luther and Lewis.

Third Heat of Special Match Race, Three Miles—Swartz, Lockner and Graves.

Third Heat of Sweepstakes, Seven Miles—Richards, Renel, Glenn, Luther and Lewis.

STARS OF ONE DAY

James Archer, of squat throw fame, rapped out one hit in four times up, batting one of Chicago's runs in the first game, and in the second game he got one ou tof four.

Al Bridwell was up eight times and hit safely once in the two games.

Derrill Pratt got one out of four.

Mike Balenti batted .500, getting two hits in four trials.

Johnston, of St. Louis, was up four times and succeeded in hitting once.

Yerkes was up five times and got one hit.

Tris Speaker could connect only one time in four trials.

Bobby Byrne was up five times, scored one run, and got one hit.

Zach Wheat scored one of Brooklyn's runs and got one hit in four times up.

Jake Daubert also got one hit in four times up.

Red Smith failed to connect in four times up.

Joe Jackson batted .333 for the day, batting one out of three. He did not have a chance in the field.

Dode Pasicert was up seven times in Thursday's double header, and did not get a hit or score a run in the afternoon's performance.

Holland Sold To Griffith

Clarke Griffith figures that Harry Holland, who is plugging the third corner of the Cracker infield with such success, will be just as big a hit with the Senators as he is with the Crackers, and has called on him to report at the end of the Southern league season.

It took $3,000 for Griffith to call Manager Smith's hand on this little deal, and the friends of the ex-Tech star who have been watching him gobble things up around third, and lambast the pill at a .327 rate, feel that he will be worth it to Griff.

Batting Figures

Welchonce pulled a point or two ahead of the bunch and Long boosted his average in Thursday's tie-up with the Chicks.

FARREN

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

THE MAIN IDEA.

(Mathewson has won more games than any pitcher in the National league this season, and has averaged fewer bases on balls.)

Outlining once again the ancient plot,
It isn't, in the scramble, what you've got;
But only that percentage of the slate,
Which you can deftly push across the plate.

It isn't so much Matty's speed or curve,
It isn't altogether brains and nerve,
But merely holding it with proper thongs,
And putting it to work where it belongs.

There may be times when you consider the situation overflowing with kinks and poignant pangs. But suppose that the boss should dron in some morning and announce that waivers having been received, you had been traded to Waco, Texas, for a promising office boy? Or that you had been sold to Lansing, Mich., which deal called for only half the salary you had been receiving? Yet there are times when you doubtless have figured the ballplayer's life was a holiday compared to your own existence.

THE TWO STRATAS.

It's soft enough for the Mathewsons, the Johnsons, the Cobbs and Collinses. But it isn't quite so pungent for the cove who figures that if he desn't make two hits today he may wake up in St. Louis, Cincinnati or Albany, Ga., day after tomorrow. Not exactly.

WHERE ELSE?

If C. Mack can slip by this season while developing a school, a school or cluster of young pitchers, where should he wind up next season, when said youngsters are fully developed and ready? When Brown, Hauck and Shawkey are replete with experience and J. Coombs is ready to partake of fray again?

Each year is said to furnish some overpowering disaster, but 1913 leads the list with Wagner batting below .300 and Ed Walsh unable to work in one game a week. If conditions grow worse it would be no surprise to see Mathewson tearing off two passes in a single game.

Which recalls the fact that Matty was thirty-three years old on Tuesday. If he has as much speed left at ofrty-four as Cy Young carried at that age, he should still be good for his .690 percentage. A pitcher doesn't need an awful lot who knows why, when and where to use it to the last inch and the final ounce.

GRAND STAND DOPE.

If McGraw had followed popular clamor from time to time he would now be conducting a flag fight minus Marquard, Fletcher, Murray, Merkele and Snodgrass.

Only it wouldn't be a flag fight, but a heroic struggle to emerge from seventh place and nose out either Reds, Dodgers or Cardinals.

Anent Johnson's recent winning streak and the salary he may demand next season, a more or less C. R. writes in to know what we figure Shrapnel Walter is worth to his people annually. He is worth every cent he can get and possibly more. He may not be the entire Washington ball club—in fact, he isn't—but you know where the Washington ball club would be without him.

VARDON VS. PUTTING.

If Harry Vardon happens to enjoy a putting streak while over here there will be a quantity of trouble for more than several American rivals. Weakness with the putter has prevented Vardon from outclassing his closest rival by four strokes. In other respects it isn't likely that America's best can give him a battle. But unfortunately for the eminent English player the putt happens to be the concluding stroke, and the one that finally entices the ball into the hole. What doth it profit a bloke to reach a green in two and then putt-putt like a motorboat for the next five minutes?

If loaded with base hits and double plays you don't happen to recall just who Vardon is, we can only describe him as the Ty Cobb and Walter Johnson of England as a big guy on the other side. This would about let him out.

There is one angle at least where golf has it on baseball. J. H. Taylor won a British championship in 1891 and 1913. But how many of those listed as big league ball players in 1891 still remain intact? Also, when a cove drops off his game in golf he is rarely traded or sold to some south Michigan or central Texas course.

Two Brown Hurlers Are Out of Game

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15.—The local American league club will be without the service of two of its best pitchers for some time. Roy Mitchell, star right-hander, who alleges he was insulted by Umpire O'Loughlin in New York Tuesday and who engaged in a verbal battle with the arbiter, Thursday received notice from President B. B. Johnson, of the American league, that he had been indefinitely suspended.

"Lefty" Hamilton, Manager Stovall's best twirler, will be out for about ten days as the result of an injury to his pitching arm received while the team was en route from New York Wednesday.

Tinker Peeved At Red Owner

CINCINNATI, Aug. 15.—A statement attributed to Manager Joe Tinker, of the Cincinnati team, now playing in Philadelphia, and published here, quotes him as saying that the condition of his team is bad and that possibilities of improving it are worse. He blames President Herrmann, of the club, for disposing of a number of players that, while worthless to the Cincinnati club as players, would have been valuable in trades that might be made.

"How can I obtain good players," said Tinker, "when I have no players to offer? The minor league officials will not give up a player nowadays unless his place is filled to some extent by another player. Mr. Herrmann has ridded the team of all superfluous material and I am up against a stone wall. Herrmann is a fine fellow and a good sportsman, but has not seen fit to do as McGraw and Mack do, hold a few men in reserve for trades."

When Mr. Herrman discussed the above interview today he said:

"I believe Tinker has been misquoted to a certain extent, but if he has not I am surprised. He has been consulted in every trade or sale. You can say, however, that we are satisfied with Joe Tinker, and this rumor about his quitting is, I believe, false."

COLBY, EX-GEORGIA STAR, IS TRAINING ALBANY ATHLETES

ALBANY, Ga., Aug. 15.—Glen Colby, the star utility player of the Albany baseball club, was yesterday afternoon elected physical director of the Albany Young Men's Christian association. The election was held at a regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the local institution.

Colby's application for the position, to succeed Emil Schlenker, who recently resigned to accept a similar position with the Waycross Y. M. C. A., was looked upon with favor by the local directors for various reasons. There were several other applications for the position, but Colby's terms fitted in with the needs of the local institution to such an extent that his name was really the only one seriously considered.

His proposition was to serve the Y. M. C. A. for seven months in the year, and be free to play in organized baseball during the other five months of the year. As there is practically no need of a physical director at the local Y. M. C. A. during the summer months, this proposition appealed strongly to the local directors, and a committee was appointed to make a contract with Colby for seven months, beginning September 15. In addition to the feature mentioned, Colby's application for the position was favored because of his experience in athletic work and his well known ability along these lines. Colby is an all round athlete, and an expert in gymnasium work. His ability to handle classes of boys has been amply demonstrated in the work he has done in preparatory schools, and this also appealed strongly to the local directors, because the boys' classes in the Y. M. C. A. here are large and enthusiastic.

Although Colby is now a member of the Albany baseball club, he has not been playnig recently, because of illness, from which, however, he has about recovered. He will be in good trip to take up the duties of his new position by September 15.

Valdosta Loses Game To Thomasville Nine

VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 15.—Thomasville defeated Valdosta, 4 to 1, Thursday afternoon. The visitors won the game in the sixth, after two were down, on two hits and four errors.

Vaughn and Cheney both pitched fine ball, but the latter received better support. Their pitching and Medlock's three-base hit were the features.

Batteries: Cheney and Dudley; Vaughn and Wise. Umpires, Brewster and Derrick.

Jonesboro Wins

JONESBORO, Ga., Aug. 15.—Jonesboro defeated the Grant Park Elks Wednesday in an interesting game. The locals won by making their work count in the pinches. The features of the game were the batting of P. Mann and the pitching of Parks Reeves, who relieved Tanner in the second inning and only gave up two hits.

Batteries: Tanner, Reeves and Camp; Thompson, Fox and Hadley.

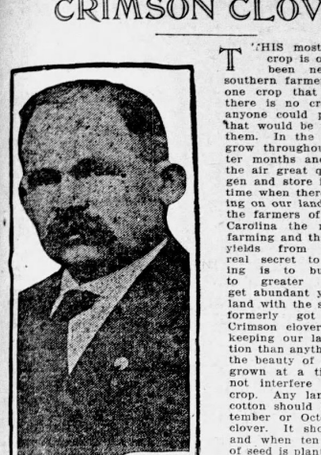
POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

CRIMSON CLOVER



THIS most valuable legume crop is one thing that has been neglected by the southern farmers more than any one crop that I know of, and there is no crop on earth that anyone could put on their land that would be worth as much to them. In the first place it will grow throughout the entire winter months and will draw from the air great quantities of nitrogen and store it in the soil at a time when there is nothing growing on our lands. It has learned the farmers of North and South Carolina the road to profitable farming and the way to get great yields from few acres. The real secret to successful farming is to build up our land to greater production and get abundant yields on the same land with the same labor that we formerly got scanty returns. Crimson clover has come nearer keeping our lands in this condition than anything I know of, and the beauty of it all is it can be grown at a time when it does not interfere with any other crop. Any land that is now in cotton should be planted in September or October with crimson clover. It should be inoculated and when ten to fifteen pounds of seed is planted per acre among the cotton and corn it will grow luxuriantly throughout the entire winter, and if the stalks are removed from the land at least one ton of hay can be cut early in April and the heavy sod turned under will build up the humus more to the land than a heavy coating of manure, and will put enough nitrogen in the soil to produce forty to fifty bushels of corn on the average acre in Georgia that is now only producing ten to twenty bushels per acre. It will almost double cotton yields per acre and if this routine is kept up for a few years it makes our lands produce wonderful crops that will never fire or burn during the summer months when we are short of water fall.

I have seen a number of acres of corn this year planted benina crimson clover and it will certainly convince anyone of its value to see any crop produced following where it is grown. Almost the same thing can be said of vetch, but one of the troubles with vetch is that it does not make such good hay and does not grow off so quickly and get off of the land as quick as crimson clover. This should be planted any time during September or October and the sooner the better. It does not interfere with cotton or corn that is standing on the land. By taking a small harrow or scooter and scrape and running between the rows this can be planted and plowed in and get at least one to two months growth before the cotton or corn is finished being harvested, and this is what our southern farmers must pay more attention to, to make our lands produce more bountiful crops. It can be done so easy and so cheaply that we cannot afford to neglect this important work longer. It is wonderful what bountiful yields of both cotton and corn can be had after crimson clover and it is to us what red clover is to the western states. The only difference is we can usually get this quicker and get results in a few months after it is planted when the average western farmer has to wait one or two years to improve his land by the use of ordinary red clover. With peas and crimson clover we can make an acre in Georgia very rich in a short time, and by the use of these two great legume crops we can make every acre in Georgia producing four times what it is at present. That is what the southern farmer is having to come to, great productions on few acres and the sooner we get at it the quicker will we get better results than we have ever had before. The farmers of North and South Carolina have long ago found this out and during the winter months most of the fields in these states are like a carpet of velvet with crimson clover growing on nearly every farm, and it certainly has brought the lands of these states to such a high stage of production that the farmers are independent and are making as much if not more money than any class of people I know of. Crimson clover and peas are showing them the way to prosperity and riches, and it will do the same for the Georgia farmers if they will take advantage of the opportunity that is offered them. Try a small amount of it this year and you will never regret it. We are fast learning and gaining experience from others and the sooner we put their ideas into practice the better off we will be.

Yours very truly,

Geo. Rucker

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

You will find stamp enclosed for book on alfalfa growing. I noticed a small patch of it planted in my neighborhood this year and I would like to learn something about the preparation for it and the kind of land most suitable for raising it. J. G. HAMER.

ANSWER.

Your request for book on alfalfa received, but you do not give your postoffice address. Your letter is like hundreds of others which are sent to me that would receive attention if their name and address was given, but many of them have to go to the waste basket by not knowing where to address the letter to.

I will gladly send you my book on alfalfa, giving full details for a 2-cent stamp, and it will be invaluable to you. I will have to know your postoffice address before you can get the book.

YOUR OWN IDEAS IN A HOME.

EVERY person has his own ideas in regard to his own home. To get these ideas worked out properly, there is only one solution that is to build it himself. Most people haven't the time and money to do this, so have to take the ideas of someone else, which, nine times out of ten, are all wrong, since very few of us have the same ideas in regard to details when, as we all know, play a very important part in each home.

We are just about to complete a modern, stone-front, 7-room bungalow in one of Atlanta's prettiest residence parks—West End Park. The foundation and body is almost completed. The plastering, painting and inside details are just about to be put in.

We offer you a unusual opportunity to come in, talk over your situation with us, give us your ideas and let us work them out in this unusually attractive location.

This home is on a lot 60x150 feet, facing two streets, which gives you a permanent outlook.

This place has furnace heat, sleeping porch, hardwood floors and every conceivable improvement.

The price and terms are such that it places this individual home within the reach of all.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Nos. 12, 14 and 16 Trinity Avenue, Three-Story and Basement Building, Sold for $60,000—Former Bootery Quarters on Whitehall Leased—$15,000 Alterations at 63-5 North Pryor—Ivy Street Paving Started—Realty Luncheon

The Georgia Realty Trust company has sold to J. R. Smith & Co. Nos. 12, 14 and 16 Trinity avenue for an aggregate consideration of $60,000, or nearly $1,000 a front foot, including the value of the improvements.

This property is on the north side of the street between Whitehall and Forsyth streets. It consists of a three-story and basement building on a lot 19 1-2x51, and is occupied by Sterchi Brothers & Barnes, furniture dealers.

The transaction was handled through Dr. Jos. H. Lumpkin and J. H. Maddox, of the Smith & Ewing agency. The property is diagonally across Trinity avenue from the rear of the former Trinity church site.

WHITEHALL LEASE.

Forrest & George Adair have leased for the Donnelly company to a ready-made clothing concern No. 34 Whitehall street, a store room adjoining the quarters of the Normally company.

The store room has a frontage of 18x125, and was formerly occupied by the Bootery.

The lessee will make a specialty of young men's clothing, a rather unique sort of retail business.

PRYOR STREET ALTERATIONS.

The building inspector on Friday granted a permit to L. Z. Rosser and J. B. Forbes for alterations to a building of the value of $15,000 on Nos. 63-5 North Pryor street. Gude & Co. are the contractors.

This is the former location of the Dougherty-Little-Redwine Co., who sold it to Mosser, Hossed and Porter. The latter will convert the structure into an loft and store building, installing elevators and making partitions.

The Dougherty-Little-Redwine Co. has taken temporary quarters further down Pryor street, pending the completion of its new building on South Pryor street near Mitchell.

IVY STREET PAVING.

The county force is at work on the improvement of Ivy street from the junction of Peachtree street. The street car company has laid its tracks.

The county is relaying the belgian blocks, but when the fill has settled and a permanent pavement is warranted a smooth pavement will be laid.

This improvement will take a lot of congestion off Peachtree street and will offer a direct route from the north side to the Ga.-Ala. terminals entered by Edgewood avenue and Decatur street.

BOARD LUNCHEON.

Following the new departure, the Atlanta Real Estate board held its monthly luncheon Friday at 12:30 o'clock at the Hotel Ansley. It was aw ell attended one.

Harris G. White, president of the board, and Charles P. Glover, its former president, talked briefly on their impressions at the Winnipeg convention, steps were taken for the humorous luncheon feature of S. B. Turman, another delegate to the convention, who, however, was charged with rank desertion.

There were other talks and a good time generally was had. Some new committeemen were elected and other routine business was transacted. It was the first meeting under the presidency of Harris G. White.

MOST WOMEN AGAINST VOTES, DECLARE ANTIS

Suffragettes and Anti-Suffragettes Are Planning Their Campaigns

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—While their unconverted sisters were insisting before the house rules committee that a majority of them did not want the ballot, delegates to the National Council of Women's Voters today met to discuss ways and means for winning universal suffrage throughout the country. This was the closing day of the council's three days' conference.

The morning session considered the legislative proposals to be advanced by women next year in those suffrage states in which the legislatures meet. Reports on suffrage conventions in Alaska, were made by Mrs. James Wickersham, wife of the delegate from the territory; in Illinois by Mrs. Claudius U. Stone and in Kansas by Mrs. Victor Murdock.

The anti-suffragists had their innings today when, led by Mrs. F. W. Scott, of New York, president of the national association opposed to woman suffrage, they appeared for an informal hearing before the house rules committee. They were prepared to prove, they told the committee, that the agitation was kept up by a comparatively small number and that the great majority of northern women looked with disfavor upon their sex entering the turmoil of politics.

Preaching the cause of "votes for women" from the house tops, speakers for the National American Woman Suffrage association have gone back to Bible times for quotations to prove that national repute have been drafted 'nto the aerial squad.

The one unfashionable quarter of the northwest section the apartment buildings are so close together that speakers for the "cause" have been enabled to address audiences of two and sometimes three roofs at one time. The roof garden rallies are said by the crusaders to be highly successful, as it is enabling them to reach Tammanyites who will not attend their street meetings.

Appreciation Expressed For Work of Miss Lathrop

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, and Miss Lucia Ames Mead of Boston, members of the executive committee of the National Council of Women's Voters, called on President Wilson today and expressed their appreciation for his retention in office of Miss Julia Lathrop, head of the children's bureau. Miss Lathrop accompanied the callers and all three talked briefly with the president about the bureau's work, in which the president expressed much enthusiasm and interest. The subject of votes for women was not discussed.

Carmen Slip Out of Window as Officers Watch at Entrance

(By Associated Press.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 15.—After they had completed their, organization early today representatives of the Intervurban Trainmen escaped from the hall in which the convention was being held and through a hotel while fifty interurban and city street car company officials with the lights out in their automobiles shining on the entrance to the hall in an effort to identify the men as they came out. The trainmen made the trip, by way of a fire escape from which the hall was not discovered by the officials until long after the last had disappeared.

SIX STRIKE-BREAKERS KILLED IN MINE CLASH

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 15.—Police officers who returned here today from the extension mines reported that six strike-breakers had been killed and many members of the provincial constabulary wounded in a clash yesterday with striking miners. Other reports gave a smaller number of casualties.

LOLA NORRIS REPEATS STORY OF ELOPEMENT

Girl Witness Adds Vigorous Testimony of Sorority Sister in Slave Case

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Lola Norris, who followed Marsha Warrington on the stand yesterday in the trial of Maury I. Diggs, charged with violation of the Mann white slave act, was the first witness called today. She resumed the story related by her companion in trouble and sorority sister.

Only in the smallest detail did she vary the testimony of Lola Norris differ from that of the other girl.

Her answers were sharper and more spirited than those of her companion. She was able to supplement nothing to the narrative of the Warrington girl. She could only confirm statements and descriptions already given. Step by step she went over the flight to Reno she and Marsha Warrington had made with Diggs and Jane Caminetti. Then the cross-examination began she retained her composure, answering evenly and with no hesitation.

In accordance with the announcement of Judge Van Fleet, the case was to be adjourned at the close of this afternoon's hearing until next Tuesday morning. It is probable that the defense then will begin the presentation of its case.

EDWARDS FAVORS LUCAS FOR SAVANNAH OFFICE

Senators Bacon and Smith Also Indorse Him for Postmaster

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Congressman Charles G. Edwards, of the First district, upon his return to Washington yesterday afternoon informed friends report that he has determined to recommend Marion Lucas for postmaster at Savannah. Mr. Edwards' announcement of Lucas's choice, and it is conceded generally that the president will nominate Mr. Lucas for the office, thus terminating the activity of George S. Haines and his friends.

"Marion Lucas will make a good postmaster," said Mr. Edwards today. "He is young, active and vigorous. The people of Savannah demand the best possible service, and Lucas will give it to them. He is a good Democrat, and is my friend now as he was when I needed friends, and I cannot forget such a man.

"Moreover," Mr. Edwards continued with emphasis, "Mr. Lucas and his friends have not attempted to ignore me in the matter of the Savannah postoffice. It is my home city and I feel that it is only right that I should have that the president should and will leave the matter entirely with me to suggest a man for the office."

Senator Bacon said:

"I shall stand by Congressman Edwards' recommendation and if he names Mr. Lucas I will support him for the nomination."

Senator Smith said:

"Mr. Lucas will make a good postmaster, in my opinion. He is a good Democrat and is strongly indorsed by the people to be served."

George F. Haines, who is an applicant for the office, was postmaster at Savannah during the Taft administration. Friends of Mr. Haines have asked Senator Bacon to arrange for them an interview with the president, and it is expected that they will come to Washington next Monday to urge the selection of Mr. Haines. Those who will accompany Senator Bacon and Mr. Haines were William Williamson, William Garrard, Wright Hunter and W. B. Stephens.

Congressman Edwards had not intended to commit himself or submit an indorsement of Lucas until the vacancy actually occurred at the Savannah office, but on his return to Washington he learned that friends of Mr. Haines had prepared to take the matter with the president, apparently in an effort to force the hand of Senator Bacon, in which action was resented by Mr. Edwards. Mr. Lucas has always been a close personal friend of the friends of Mr. Edwards and the latter stated today that the obligations he was under to Lucas would compel him to support Lucas.

An investigation was sent to Savannah to investigate charges which were preferred against Postmaster Baker some time back. The charges were submitted by Mr. J. Cooper and were set out in specific orders and very much as an indictment would be drawn. There were thirty-four pages of the charges, which ran all the way from "gross inefficiency" to "too much toddy," lack of executive ability, "undue preferences" among the clerks, favoritism, poor service, "favoritism" and a dozen and other things, some serious and other frivolous. The investigation watch so that there would be somebody on guard there with him all the time?"

"I don't know as to being on guard there with him. I know I went to see him nearly every day, and that Dr. Willdauer went to see him I think nearly every day, and that many other friends went 'to see him.'"

This concluded the cross-examination. Before the witness was excused Attorney Rosser asked:

"Do you remember whether I was in the city on the day they took Conley to the jail to see Frank, or whether I was in north Georgia trying a case?"

"I don't know as to that."

R. E. SONN CALLED.

R. E. Sonn, of 478 Washington street, superintendent of the Hebbew Orphans' home, resident of Atlanta for the past 28 years, was the next witness. He testified to Frank's good character.

Alex Dittler, of 240 Courtland street, a resident of Atlanta for 38 years, present secretary of the Jewish Educational Alliance and the Federation of Jewish Charities, formerly a deputy city marshal, and for a number of years a deputy clerk of the superior court in this county, also testified as to the good character of the accused.

Arthur Heyman, a law partner of Solicitor Dorsey, was another character witness. He said that he had known the defendant for three or four years and that his general reputation is good.

The solicitor cross-examined his partner, and brought out the statement hat Mr. Heyman had seen Frank only seven or eight times and talked to him alone for no more than a few minutes at a time. Mr. Heymen admitted that he knew nothing of Frank's relations with girls at the factory nor of how he spent his afternoons and holidays.

COURT ADJOURNS.

Court then adjourned until 9 o'clock Friday morning.

Luther Z. Rosser, chief counsel for the defense stated privately to reporters that he hoped to conclude the defense' cause by Friday night.

LET COURT DECIDE, HE SAYS IN REPLY TO GLYNN DEMAND

forthwith called, in order that a speedy determination may be had.

"Respectfully,

"WILLIAM SULZER.

"Governor."

Counsel for Lieutenant Governor Glynn later made an appointment to confer this afternoon with D. Cady Herrick, counsel for Governor Sulzer, in an effort to devise a way in which the courts could speedily settle the controversy.

GREAT SEAL PADLOCKED.

The secondo day of the dual administration in New York state dawned on a whirlpool of confusion in the capital. A steel chain with a heavy padlock decorated the great seal; the privy seal lay under lock and key; the way to the executive chamber, William Sulzer's citadel, was bolted and barred and from the two offices the rival claimants to the governor's office continued to exercise their functions.

Control of the national guard, access to the great seal, recognition by New York's secretary of state and by the governor of New Jersey were prerogatives stripped from Governor Sulzer by Lieutenant Governor Glynn, who claims to be the acting chief executive.

Posesssion of the privy seal, whose imprint validates all documents coming before the governor on affairs wholly within the state, and occupancy of the executive chambers, remained with Sulzer.

It was Glynn's move on the political chess board today. He planned a checkmate. He gave no hint to his opponent of what this move would be.

MRS. SULZER IMPROVED.

Mrs. Sulzer still lies ill today with specialists in constant attendance. She was slightly improved by a refreshing sleep.

Aaron J. Levy, majority leader, who led the fight on the assembly floor for impeachment is also suffering from a nervous breakdown.

The impeachment of Governor Sulzer will not affect his salary check, preliminary to or during the impeachment trial. He will continue to draw $833 a month from the office of the comptroller during the remainder of his term unless convicted on the impeachment charges. Then, of course, his salary will be stopped.

Members of the senate whose regular salary is $1,500 will, for a short time, receive pay at the rate of $12,000 a year each. This will be during the time they are sitting with the judges of the state court of appeals as a court of impeachment.

Secretary of State Mitchell May returned from Saratoga this morning and called at the office of Leutenant Governor Glynn before the latter's arrival at the capitol.

"I merely called to pay my respects," said Secretary May "and to asure Mr. Glynn personally that I have decided to recognize him as acting governor of the state. As I read the law I can find no other way to act consistently. It s not with me a case of taking sides. I can see no other way to perform my duty under the constitution.

"I have not yet asked the attorney general for an opinion as to whom I should recognize. However, if I am asked to certify any act of William Sulzer as governor I shall submit the question to the attorney general and await his formal opinion before taking action."

A sensational report was current this morning that Governor Sulzer would seek the indictment for treason of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, and organization leaders who commanded the anti-Sulzer forces in the battle for impeachment.

"There's nothing to it" asserted D. Cady Herrick, chief of Sulzer's staff of lawyers, when asked if the report was true.

WANTS TO PUNCH NOSES.

"The only thing that's worrying me is Mrs. Sulzer's condition," the governor told a friend as they entered the capitol together today. "She is very ill and the d— scallawags have brought her name into the affair."

This was the first public reference the governor has made to the statement that Mrs. Sulzer had used some of his campaign contributions without his knowledge to invest in stocks. He spoke in the presence of the newspaper men.

"I feel like punching the noses of the scallawags who brought her into it," said Sulzer.

"Another thing," the governor said, "I can fight my own battles for myself. It was wrong to bring a woman into the case. I wish there was some way we could keep her name out from now on. She is very ill and I was up with her nearly all night."

Mr. Sulzer looked gaunt and hollow eyed when he walked into the capitol grounds.

Case for Georgia Courts Delayed by Sulzer, Says World

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The New York World publishes the following today:

"If Governor Sulzer had not been too busy with his personal troubles last Monday to give a hearing on the case of Homer Reed, an insurance broker, living at Riverside Drive and 135th street, Reed might now be at large or on his way to Georgia to stand trial on the charge of swindling John Miles, of Rome, Ga., out of $3,000 in the sale of stock in a new defunct insurance company. As it is, Reed is in jail with a fair chance of staying there until September 7, when the thirty days for which he was committed to permit action on the request of the governor of Georgia for extradition expires.

"Neither his counsel, Elliott Norton, Assistant District Attorney Johnson nor Deputy Sheriff Bailey, who represent the governor of Georgia, can see a way out of the tangle.

"The case came up before Supreme Court Justice Weeks yesterday afternoon on a writ of habeas corpus directed to Warden Fallon, of the Tombs, but he said he had no right to act on it.

"The papers are in Mr. Sulzer's hands and Mr. Johnson suggested that Governor Sulzer again be asked to act. Should this be done, and Reed's return to Georgia ordered, it was admitted that there was grave doubt as to whether his prisoner would be turned over by Warden Fallon."

New Jersey Governor Didn't Recognize Lt. Gov. Glynn

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 15.—It developed today that an error was made last night in the announcement that Governor Filder, of New Jersey, had recognized Lieutenant Governor Glynn as the governor of New York in making requisition for a man arrested in New York City on a criminal charge and who was wanted in New Jersey.

The executive clerk in the governor's office here stated today that in forwarding the requisition paper no name was used, the document merely having been addressed to "the governor of the state of New York," as has been the custom.

New York Police Officers Balk at Sulzer Signature

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The New York district attorney's office and the police department today found themselves confronted by the question of William Sulzer's right to the office of governor. Deputy sheriffs from West Virginia armed with a warrant signed by Mr. Sulzer permitting them to take James Molley, of Martinsburg, W. Va., arrested in New York, discovered no officer in the county or city willing to take the responsibility of honoring the impeached governor's signature.

At the district attorney's office it was said that the only means by which Molley's release from the custody of the New York police could be obtained under existing circumstances was through writ of habeas corpus, which would serve to bring the prisoner before a supreme court justice, to whom the question of the legality of the warrant would be submitted.

up another league without the permission of all cities concerned. This will prevent the Dixie league from securing protection from the powers that be in baseball.

Some two seasons ago a plan was made to place a South Atlantic league club in Atlanta to play only on the dates on which the Southern league club was out of the city. This, however, fell flat when the Southern league team here lists who wish to have clubs in Atlanta, Birmingham, Nashville, Chattanooga, New Orleans and Memphis, with the probability that the circuit will be increased to eight clubs a bit later. It is planned to have the northern division teams of the Dixie league playing at home while the northern division clubs of the Southern are away in the south on a road trip. This would furnish continuous baseball in each of the cities.

If reports are to be believed there is a batch of money back of the Dixie and it is possible that it will start operations in 1914.

Several local people are interested in the new league, it is said, but the main impetus is furnished by magnates of other cities.

Hints dropped from time to time lend color to the belief that the Dixie league is being backed by out-of-town capitalists.
